IDEA OF A UNIVERSITY

THAT ONLY IS TRUE ENLARGEMENT OF THE MIND WHICH IS THE POWER OF VIEWING MANY THINGS AT ONCE AS A WHOLE, REFERRING THEM SEVERALLY TO THEIR TRUE PLACE IN THE UNIVERSAL SYSTEM, OF UNDERSTANDING THEIR RESPECTIVE VALUES, AND DETERMINING THEIR MUTUAL DEPENDENCE.

—John Henry Cardinal Newman.

HAVING even a portion of this illuminative reason and true philosophy is the highest state to which nature can aspire, in the way of intellect; it puts the mind above the influence of chance and necessity, above anxiety, suspense, unsettlement, and superstition, which is the lot of the many. Men, whose minds are possessed with some one object, take exaggerated views of its importance, are feverish in the pursuit of it, make it the measure of things which are utterly foreign to it, and are startled and despond if it happens to fail them. They are ever in alarm or in transport. Those on the other hand who have no object or principle whatever to hold by, lose their way, every step they take. They are thrown out, and do not know what to think or say, at every fresh juncture; they have no view of persons, or occurrences, or facts, which come suddenly upon them, and they hang upon the opinion of others, for want of internal resources. But the intellect, which has been disciplined to the perfection of its powers, which knows, and thinks while it knows, which has learned to leaven the dense mass of facts and events with the elastic force of reason, such an intellect cannot be partial, cannot be exclusive, cannot be impetuous, cannot be at a loss, cannot but be patient, collected, and majestically calm, because it discerns the end in every beginning, the origin in every end, the law in every interruption, the limit in each delay; because it ever knows where it stands, and how its path lies from one point to another.

UKE CHAPEL, COMMANDING THE CENTERMOST SITE ON THE CAMPUS, IS THE SPIRITUAL CENTER OF THE UNIVERSITY. ALL STUDENTS FIND ITS STEPS A MEETING PLACE BETWEEN CLASSES.

—AMES BUCHANAN DUKE, IN SILENT BRONZE, WATCHES FROM HIS RIGHTFUL PLACE IN THE CENTER OF THE WEST CAMPUS QUADRANGLE, THE UNIVERSITY WHICH HIS GREAT GENEROSITY CREATED.

THE CLOCK TOWER IS SEEN THROUGH THE ELM TREES IN THE EARLY MORNING SUNLIGHT. THE TOWER IS THE DOMINANT BUILDING OF THE DORMITORY QUADRANGLES ON THE SOUTH CAMPUS.

— IMPRESSIVE IS THE GOTHIC FACADE AT THE ENTRANCE OF DUKE MEDICAL SCHOOL. BETWEEN THIS — TOWER AND THE CLOCK TOWER IS THE WORLD'S LONGEST AND MOST BEAUTIFUL CAMPUS.

THE EAST CAMPUS LIBRARY STANDS CLEARLY ETCHED AGAINST THE BLACKNESS OF NIGHT. ITS SIMPLE DIGNITY IS CHARACTERISTIC OF THE GRACEFUL BUILDINGS OF THE WOMAN'S COLLEGE.

— THE INEFFABLE CHARM OF THE UNIVERSITY IS NEVER MORE EFFECTIVE THAN IN THE SPRING AND — SUMMER TWILIGHT. STUDENTS RELAX BEFORE THE LIBRARY WHILE ENJOYING ITS BEAUTY.

AN interesting story is the spectacular transformation of the old and established Trinity College into the Duke University of today. There were those who said that it could not be done but time has made evident the wisdom not only of the people who made the original plans but also of those who are carrying them out. Among the men and women who helped to give us a great university we now pay tribute to those who have remained at their posts day after day, year after year.

To these few men, small in number in comparison to the burden of responsibility which they support, is due all the credit for the expansion of our school from a small unknown college to a great university of national fame. To their efforts are we indebted for the privilege of attending a school of unquestioned superiority. Although the fame of Duke is spread by its students as they go to their life's work in the world, all the prestige they attain can find its foundations in the influence of the men with whom they associated in college.

It has been our lot to be in college during a time of war and national crisis when civilian life is far from easy. Our hope for a continued opportunity to finish our education rests, in great part, with those whom the trustees of Duke wisely chose and entrusted with its administration. Students come and go but these men and these women carry on the life of the school. They can be thanked for much of the excellent reputation that Duke University has wherever colleges are discussed. They have organized and now operate a concern which, by all our united efforts, will attain an even greater importance in the years that are to come. These are the officials who determine the policies and general conduct of the school and theirs is the responsibility of both large matters and small. They meet and deal with emergencies and they handle routine. However, it is for more than this that we wish to honor them.

The officers of the administration of our university have been more than willing to help us, to advise us, to listen to our troubles. We believe that they have shown the wisest possible policy in endeavoring to understand the student viewpoint. Whenever possible they have maintained an administrative policy which has been based on convenience to the students. We believe that we have been most fortunate in having at our head men and women who wish to serve us, who have been our friends and a great inspiration. From them we have learned a respect for and admiration of authority. We owe to them and to the university which is theirs and ours more than the gratitude of words.

THE CULTURE AND ATMOSPHERE OF THE UNIVERSITY ARE FORGED INTO ACCOMPLISHMENT BY THE INTELLIGENT LEADERSHIP OF THE ADMINISTRATION

ADMINISTRATION

THE fifth president of Duke University, DR. ROBERT LEE FLOWERS, was elected at the Winter Session of the Board of Trustees in January 1941. Behind him are nearly fifty-one years of competent and diligent service to Duke; ahead of him is the loyal faith of all Duke men and women that he will add to its enlargement and betterment in every curricula. Dr. Flowers came to Duke in 1891 as an instructor in mathematics, immediately upon his graduation from the United States Naval Academy. With the inauguration of President Few in 1910, he was elected Secretary of Trinity College and in 1923, Treasurer. To these duties were added those of vice president a few years later. Dr. Flowers received his M.A. from Trinity in 1900 and his LL.D. from Davidson College in 1927. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Alpha Tau Omega fraternities.

Dr. Robert Lee Flowers, President of Duke University.

M. Webb, J. N. Barnhardt, Dr. J. B. Craven, J. N. Seppark, H. B. Porter, D. S. Elias, T. M. M. Grant, Willis Smith, J. L. Horne, Jr., R. G. Cherry, W. B. Mayer, M. E. Newsom, P. H. Hanes, E. S. Bowling, J. R. Smith, C. K. Proctor.

HENRY R. DWIRE, Vice President in the Business Division graduated from Trinity College in 1902. In 1903, he received his M.A. He has served in several different capacities since his affiliation with Duke University. Previously, he headed the Alumni office and was in charge of all public relations.

DR. WILLIAM H. WANNAMAKER has been Dean and Vice President of Duke University in the Department of Education for the past fifteen years. Having graduated from Wofford College in 1895, Dean Wannamaker received his M.A. from Trinity College in 1901 and from the Harvard Graduate School in 1903.

MR. CHARLES E. JORDAN, Secretary of Duke University, graduated from Trinity in 1923. After graduation from the Duke Law School in 1925, he became assistant secretary of the University. Since then, he has also been secretary of the Scholarship Committee, chairman of the Publications Board, and secretary of the Duke Faculty. He was made secretary of the university in June 1941.

MR. CHARLES BLACKWELL MARKHAM, Treasurer of Duke University, graduated from Trinity in 1906. As an undergraduate, he was a member of 9019, Phi Beta Kappa, and ODK. Following a year each in graduate school and Columbia, he returned as an Assistant Professor of Mathematics.

WALTER K. GREENE, Dean of Undergraduate Instruction, received degrees from Wofford College, Vanderbilt University, and Harvard University. He taught in southern preparatory schools, organizing the Greene University School in 1910. In 1928 he came to Duke as English professor and in 1930 became Dean of Undergraduate Instruction.

HERBERT J. HERRING, A.B., A.M., Dean of Men, having graduated from Trinity College in 1922, practiced teaching until 1924 when he returned as assistant Dean. Besides being Dean of Men since 1935, he has been active as class adviser and assistant professor.

ALAN K. MANCHESTER, Dean of the Freshmen, graduated from Vanderbilt in 1920, received his M.A. at Columbia, and Ph.D. at Duke. After five years of research in Brazil, he came to Duke as an instructor of History and in 1934 became Dean of Freshmen.

DR. WILBUR C. DAVISON, Dean of the School of Medicine since its organization, came to Duke in 1927 from Johns Hopkins. He is a graduate of Princeton University, studied at Oxford University, and received his M.D. degree from Johns Hopkins Medical School. He taught at Baltimore Medical School and served as assistant Dean of Johns Hopkins Medical School before coming to Duke.

RALPH SIDNEY WILBUR, Chairman of the Department of Electrical Engineering, obtained his B.S. in M.E. and his M.E. degrees from Tufts College. Before coming to Duke Professor Wilbur taught at the University of Pennsylvania, Lafayette College, and Annapolis, Md. Coming to Duke to teach the engineers in 1933, he was an Associate Professor of Mechanical Engineering.

H. CLAUDE HORACK, Ph.d., LL.B., LL.D.; came to Duke in 1930 as Professor of Law. In 1934, he was appointed Dean of the Law School. During the last seven years he has been active in national legal clinics, having been President of the North Carolina Bar Association, President of the Association of American Law Schools, and a life member of the American Law Institute.

HAROLD C. BIRD, Chairman of the Department of Civil Engineering, received the Ph.B. degree from Yale University in 1908 with two years honors for excellence in all subjects. He also received his C.E. degree from Yale in 1911. After varied experience of teaching engineering, he joined the Duke Faculty, leaving a position as engineer and purchasing agent for a large company.

DR. HOLLAND HOLTON, Director of the Duke University Summer School, graduated from Trinity College in 1903, and received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. He has been Director since 1920. Dr. Holton became associated with Trinity College in 1912. Trinity College Summer School will be enlarged this year for those students taking advantage of an accelerated schedule.

DR. CLARENCE F. KORSTIAN, Dean of the School of Forestry, was educated at Southeastern University and Yale University. Dean Korstian has directed the program for using the facilities of Duke's 5,000 acre forest and new equipment for practical application as well as research. The Duke School of Forestry is one of three such schools in the country.

DR. CALVIN B. HOOVER, Chairman of the Departments of Economics and Business Administration, came to Duke in 1925 as an assistant Instructor of Economics. Four years ago he was appointed Dean of the Graduate School, succeeding William Henry Glasson, who served in that capacity for thirteen years. The Graduate School has attained eminence, but is still growing.

DR. FRANK C. BROWN, Comptroller of Duke University, has capably fulfilled the duties of campus maintenance. He came to Duke as Professor of English in 1909 and assumed his present responsibilities in 1918. The modern buildings of both campuses were constructed under his direction. Dr. Brown is, in addition to Comptroller of the University, the head of the Department of English.

WILLIAM HOLLAND HALL, Dean of the College of Engineering, returned to Duke to teach in 1915. He had attended the Naval Academy and later studied at Duke, obtaining his A.B. and A.M. During the first World War he went overseas with the Y.M.C.A. In 1927 he received his M.S. in C.E. from the University of Wisconsin. Since 1939 he has been Dean of the College of Engineering.

DR. PAUL N. GARBER, Dean of the Divinity School, has been connected with the School of Religion since 1926, when he served as registrar and Professor of Church History. Last year he succeeded Dr. Elbert Russell as Dean of the Divinity School. Dr. Garber is the author of a number of books relating to church history, and is a recognized authority in Methodist History.

MR. J. FOSTER BARNES is the Head of the Department of Choral Music and came to Duke after years of extensive musical training. After graduating from Richmond University with an A.B. and Emory University with an M.A., he studied under private instructors in New York and Chicago. Since coming to Duke, Mr. Barnes has developed the magnificent Duke Chapel Choir and the widely-publicized Men's Glee Club.

W. M. UPCHURCH, JR., Director of the Appointments Office, received his A.B. degree from Duke in 1931 and his LL.B. in 1936. He has been connected with Duke's Alumni and Appointments Offices since 1934, serving as manager of Quadrangle Pictures, and director of the Summer School Choir. Mr. Upchurch serves hundreds of Duke graduates and various corporations and schools in their employment and personnel problems.

DR. ALICE MARY BALDWIN, Dean of the Woman's College, is a native of New England, who received her Bachelor of Art and Master of Art Degree at Cornell University. The University of Chicago awarded Dean Baldwin her Doctor of Philosophy degree, prior to her coming to Trinity College in 1923 as the Acting Dean of Women for Summer School. She assumed her duties as the Dean of Women the following year. When the College for Women was separated from Trinity College and established on the East Campus in 1930, Miss Baldwin became its first Dean. She has directed a selected faculty in expanding the program of curricular activities and well-rounded social organizations.

Dr. Alice Mary Baldwin, Dean of the Woman's College.

RUTH SMITH, Assistant Dean of Women, graduated from Agnes Scott College in 1912 where she received the A.B. degree. In 1927 she received the A.M. degree from Columbia University and came to Duke as Assistant Dean of Undergraduate Instruction.

MRS. W. S. PEARSONS, formerly Elizabeth Anderson, graduated from Trinity College in 1922 receiving the A.B. degree. Since 1930, she has served as Assistant Dean of Freshmen and also later assumed the duties of the secretary of the Committee on Admissions.

MISS MARY GRACE WILSON, graduate of Winthrop, first came to Duke in 1929 as the acting Dean of Women during the summer term. When the Woman's College was organized, Miss Wilson became the social director. In 1937, she was appointed Dean of Residence.

MISS MARGARET PINKERTON, Dean of the School of Nursing, succeeded Dean Bessie Baker at the beginning of the 1939-40 year. The School of Nursing was established along with the School of Medicine in 1925 and shares its destination of recognized achievement.

MEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

AT the beginning of this year the Student Council decided to eliminate those activities which it believed were not typical of a Student Government Association. In carrying out this objective, we were forced to eliminate some of our activities of former years, and instead, to spend more time serving the campus as a whole. A few examples of our new services will give a cross-section of our activities for the year.

Just after the Council took office in April 1941, the need was felt for an organization to stimulate better school spirit and pep meetings. We organized the Trident Club, which was very successful in its work through the year.

In the fall, in answer to a plea from the students for better Saturday night recreation, the Council sponsored informal weekly dances, on a non-profit basis.

After much discussion, the Council decided to bring before the students an amendment toward a more democratic system of voting. Instead of the old method of pre-voting registration, a plan was submitted, in a Constitutional convention, to allow voting simply through identification of Athletic books and the checking of the signatures thereon. This amendment passed with an overwhelming majority.

Recognizing the need for closer inter-campus relations between the Men's S.G.A., the W.S.G.A., the Engineers' S.G.A., and the Nurses' S.G.A., we formed an Inter-campus Council. The representatives from the above organizations met twice a month and discussed problems.

The Student Council also stimulated an improvement in the proctor system in use at the University, through suggestions offered in Faculty meetings.

In conclusion, the Council would like to thank the Student Body for the cooperation it has given us throughout the year. In addition to our regular judicial duties, we have tried to make this year a successful one, from point of view of achievement.

Larry Blanchard, Pres. Men's Student Government.

ENGINEERING COLLEGE GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

Cochran

BEFORE this year, the engineering students were represented on the Trinity College Student Government; however, this year the Engineering Student Government Association was born. In the past few years the Division of Engineering grew so rapidly that at the beginning of the school year 1940 it was deemed necessary that a new college be created in Duke University. This new college was called the College of Engineering, and it was the third college to become a part of Duke University. After this transformation, another need arose; the necessity of a student government to provide a ruling body sympathetic to the needs of the engineering students. At that time there was present in Southgate an organization known as the Engineers' Club, and the ruling system of this body was used as the framework for the new Engineering Student Government Association. Because the Student Government is an outgrowth of the Engineers' Club, it seemed only natural for the new organization to sponsor student activities and create interest in campus-wide affairs. In all of its undertakings it has been the desire of the Student Government to provide for the students of the college a better government. With this goal as a guide, we followed such lines as we thought would bring about the realization of our name.

The policies have manifested themselves in the form of the Engineers' Glee Club, the newly founded publication—The Duke Engineer, the Engineers' Ball, freshmen orientation, the Engineers' Sing and Intramurals.

At the first of this year, a budget was drawn up, and a great percentage of the funds collected went to decorate Southgate's Reception Room and the remainder was set aside to cover the policies of the Student Government.

Shea, Darling, President; Wagner, Lynch.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

NEEDING an organization by which the students could govern themselves, students of the Woman's College had organized the first student government in 1919. A few years later in 1924, when the Woman's College became a part of the University, the Woman's Student Government Association of Duke University was founded.

The Association was organized with these chief purposes: to regulate all matters pertaining to the life of the women of the College not under the jurisdiction of the Faculty; to further a spirit of unity among the women at Duke; and to cooperate with the Faculty in creating and maintaining high ideals for the women of the University. To effect these ends, a system was set up by which the execution of the business of the Association was placed in the hands of two bodies: the Executive Council and the Judicial Board. The students who serve on these bodies are selected by the entire Association, after the candidates are eliminated by a series of tests and interviews.

This year's Council had as its aim to further the purposes listed above, but the year 1941-1942 brought with it new problems which the Council was called upon to face. With the national emergency and the subsequent war, many new situations and duties were created, and the entire Student Government Association began to lay the foundations for the defense work which college students will be called upon to do. It is the hope of this year's Council that in some way it has furthered the ideas upon which the Association was founded, and that the Association will be stronger because of the Council's work this year.

CLASSES

*THE SENIORS, CLASS OF 1942 — THE JUNIORS,
CLASS OF 1943 — THE SOPHOMORES, CLASS
OF 1944 — THE FRESHMEN, CLASS OF 1945*

PECULIAR to each class is its definite connotation to the students themselves and its salutary function for the college. The freshmen are the necessary new material bringing with them entirely different backgrounds and viewpoints. They are introduced to the Duke way; and they learn to adjust to it. When they enter, college is merely a word full of mystery; by the end of their first year they have served the initial apprenticeship and are ready to assume responsibilities. In their sophomore year they return to a familiar place where they begin to constructively lay down the foundation of their future development in college, whether it be scholastically, in activities, or in a general culture background. The sophomore has a touch of the proverbial superiority but not enough to be obnoxious to the upperclassmen or burdensome to the Freshmen, yet he has a sufficient amount to impress himself. The main responsibility of the Juniors is that of being the incoming Senior class. It is in this year that their time is spent in working to fulfill their ambitions for high honors so that they can be attained when they are Seniors. The Juniors begin to concentrate on their scholastic major and to specialize. The Senior year marks the culmination of all the three preceding classes. Those who have been outstanding in activities have now reached the top; it is they who are training the incoming Freshmen. There are also those who have obtained highly coveted scholastic honors. Yet now when they have become the leaders of the campus the time has come when their thoughts and plans turn to the future. Thus each student has progressively advanced from the time when he was a neophyte till now when he has completed his four years. Perhaps he has gained all he expected from college, perhaps more, but in all probability he has missed some of those honors and benefits he had hoped for. Yet, despite this, he has matured a great deal, he has learned to adjust to new ways and live with widely differing people. College, in taking off the rough edges and training the students to think, has prepared them to start at the bottom again in the outer world, only this time they have a substantial background to guide them—a background which will anchor them to stability and better service their abilities. For they are to utilize their training in a World now torn with war and later to be reconstructed by men who have had a specialized training in the different phases of scholastic endeavor: Engineering and Chemistry for the rebuilding of destruction; Business Administration for the reestablishing of broken commerce; and Medicine for the mending of broken bodies.

THE SENIOR CLASS

THE SENIOR CLASS MARKS THE CULMINATION OF ALL THE THREE PRECEDING CLASSES. THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN OUTSTANDING IN ACTIVITIES HAVE NOW REACHED THE TOP; IT IS THEY WHO TRAIN AND THEY WHO FURNISH A SOURCE OF INSPIRATION FOR THE INCOMING FRESHMEN.

THE Class of '42! How proud we were to shout this simple phrase back in 1938—and how proud we've been to keep it ringing for four happy years. Once again on June 8 that same cry will be heard coming from the throats of over five hundred fortunate young men and women—though this time with more reverence and perhaps with some solemnity. Yes, June 8 will mark graduation for that happy freshman class of 1938.

We've been a typical Duke Class. We've watched the University grow and expand within our very sight. Few Quadrangle, the new gymnasium, and the addition to the hospital are but tangible examples of the growth we've experienced. We stood with our "dinks" on in 1938 to witness a great football team begin its trip to the Rose Bowl, and later that year we were privileged to witness an inspiring centennial program.

Every year brought new joys and new sorrows, but somehow we've bridged them all. The national emergency touched us with some impact for we've lost quite a few of our class to the defense efforts of our country, and have witnessed the establishment of a Naval ROTC unit on this very campus.

Down through the years we grew along with

Duke. We lived her traditions to the fullest, and perhaps added some of our own. We worked and played together, and now that we reflect, we're proud to have been the ones chosen to share this heritage. It's been a valuable one—one that will grant character and strength to a group of confident graduates embarking upon perhaps the most perilous tides in the country's history.

SAMUEL E. WRIGHT
Rocky Mount, N. C.

JULIA WILDA WYNNE
Erwin, Tenn.

The four-year span of college existence from Freshmen to Seniors has seen many changes in our lives here at school and the lives which are to be ours upon graduation. William Preston Few, the president and soul of the University, was succeeded by Robert Lee Flowers. The Graduate Dormitories and the new Gymnasium were built. The football team brought glory to the University by two trips to the Rose Bowl. In these and innumerable other ways were progress and improvement brought to the University.

But now the turmoil and confusion and destruction of the outside world has forced its way into the Ivory Tower which has been our home for four years. We regretfully and yet proudly see classmates leave this home to take up arms against the foes of all our homes; for in a Democracy such as ours is manifested a two-fold creed; that of a duty and that of a right. It is our right to participate in the liberties and privileges of our society, and yet it is our duty as citizens of that society to protect it against those who would, against our will, change our form of life.

THE JUNIOR CLASS

THE MAIN RESPONSIBILITY OF THE JUNIORS IS THAT OF BECOMING MEMBERS OF THE INCOMING SENIOR CLASS. IT IS IN THIS YEAR THAT THEIR TIME IS SPENT IN WORKING TO FULFILL THEIR AMBITIONS FOR THE ATTAINMENT OF HIGH HONORS IN ACTIVITIES AND SCHOLARSHIP.

WE are here, almost at the fulfillment of our college days. We may look back with mingled sentiments over our three years of scholastic turmoil in this chaotic world of disillusionment, a changing social order, and shaken ideals.

Perhaps for some of the members of the Class of '43 this college experience has brought disappointments and rejections; but as a contingent of classmates from the East and West this class is certain to be remembered as one which from the beginning to the end attained the heights of scholastic achievement and extra-curricula activities. These attainments brought not only satisfaction and recognition of individuals, but also a great enrichment of the growing traditions of our beloved Alma Mater.

Many classes lay their claim to immortality by their success in one field of endeavor alone, on the gridiron, on the hardwood court, in scholastic prowess, or through student government leaders. However, this class through its unusually varied talents, its unified spirit, and its workable co-operation enveloped all of the worthwhile institutions of Duke University.

The Class of '43 looks back with pride, and facing a shaken world, we, the Junior Class, with newly acquired power and authority, look forward to the best year in our history, so that we may assure ourselves pleasant memories of things well done.

We are proud to be a working part of the Class of '43.

Now that three fourths of the job is finished and the other portion looms up ahead surrounded with uncertainty and doubt, everyone in the Junior Class at Duke, along with thousands their age in other institutions, are perplexed with thoughts of what the future may hold for them. Three years at Duke have been lived in the surroundings of beauty and fineness and in close association with hand-picked men from various walks of life and different types of backgrounds. Duke Community has provided somewhat of a world all of its own where there is everything which is conducive to study and culture and character development. Somehow the outside world is really outside, and we hear and learn about it not through active participation, but through reading, through those who have traveled, through visitors.

Suddenly we are faced with reality and it shows us that our planned life in the atmosphere of personal progress and beauty may be bluntly cut short and ended. To this generation of men and women, who were born in a depression, who peddled their tricycles in great prosperity, who first comprehended life and saw it in another great depression, and who are now planning their future when there is hardly a future to plan, comes a feeling of being cheated, of hopelessness, of no faith in men.

Yet in everyone's life there comes a period of testing which will single out the weak, the strong, the great; for the world is made up of these three types of people—the weak who cannot hurdle the barriers, the strong who pass over problems with ease, and the great who, being among the strong, reach back and give a helping hand to the weak. As history is the same, so is human nature in its characteristic repetition. There is faith in the world, there is hope, there is opportunity.

Erudito et Religio have taught us here at Duke that the essence of success hinges upon faith, preparation, and determination. If you can sow a dream, you can reap an action. Sow that action, and you will reap a character. Sow that character, and you will reap a destiny.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS

IN THEIR SECOND YEAR THE SOPHOMORES RETURN TO A FAMILIAR PLACE WHERE THEY BEGIN TO CONSTRUCTIVELY LAY DOWN THE FOUNDATION FOR FUTURE DEVELOPMENT IN COLLEGE, WHETHER IT BE SCHOLASTICALLY, IN ACTIVITIES OR IN A GENERAL CULTURAL BACKGROUND.

THE year '41 wrought a change in the class of '44—for the girls, sophomore dating privileges; for the boys, no more dinks. The metamorphosis from freshman to sophomore has been accomplished, and students both East and West have entered enthusiastically into campus activities. The complexities of that first year at college seem to have smoothed out, and we go about the campus with a feeling of assurance and importance.

The girls who have looked forward to a year without restrictions and limitations have already begun to assume positions of leadership and prestige. The boys have found a newer side to college life. Membership in fraternities and various other campus organizations has been combined with the regular courses of study. We have struggled to prevent our enthusiasm from causing us to jump off the deep end and fall into the proverbial "sophomore slump."

And we cannot be said to lack in college spirit! The reforms we attempted during the very first year bear evidence to that fact. As a freshman class we noticed what we thought was a definite deficiency of school spirit among the upperclassmen at football games. The resulting pep rallies, the freshman-sophomore physical contests, and stirring press articles all reflected our attempts toward a more unified student body. And this year we have ardently supported new drives and help give rebirth to old ones. We boast of a feminine addition to the cheerleading staff, and we hope to see a new development in campus recreational facilities.

For the class of '44 we whole-heartedly predict bigger and better things.

The end of their second college year means to the members of the Sophomore class the beginning of the end to which they have aspired throughout these two of the happiest years of their lives. For many, it means that the life they have worked for and anticipated is close enough for concrete plans to be formulated and executed. For many more, it means that all plans and hopes are made in the shadow of world conflict which they have now become a part. To these, the indecision and doubt that confronts them must be allowed only a minor role in their thoughts and actions of this coming school year if the final summation of college benefit is to be attained.

It is their responsibility to return to their ivory towers and perpetuate the exposition of the heritage their predecessors have formulated and developed for them and the generations of students to follow. It is up to them to maintain the standards personified by their respective Alma Maters that the banners of light and learning may still wave over these institutions and the world at large. For the outside world is no longer outside. It has penetrated the Gothic seclusion of those who have reserved the right to merely watch and theorize. This reservation is no longer respected; the war has finally come home.

But when this too shall pass away, the life for which they have already spent three years in preparation will still exist, but with the changes and modifications that the present world situation implies. It is for this reason that to these people this third and critical year—the absolute realization of their requisite education—must be completed. It is with all this in mind that Sophomores throughout the nation must individually decide their own future, and collectively the future of their civilization.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS

THE FRESHMEN ARE THE NECESSARY NEW MATERIAL BRINGING WITH THEM ENTIRELY DIFFERENT BACKGROUNDS AND VIEWPOINTS. THEY ARE INTRODUCED TO THE DUKE WAY, AND LEARN TO ADJUST TO IT, BUT BY THE END OF THE YEAR THEY HAVE SERVED THEIR INITIAL APPRENTICESHIP.

WHEN the class of 1945 arrived on Duke's two campuses, it brought with it an indefatigable spirit. These students will go down in history as Duke's "war babies," for this year the freshman class felt violent repercussions from the war raging throughout the world. Students of this class were destined to become the first members in Duke's first N.R.O.T.C. unit and also the first students offered the opportunity to graduate in three years, or less, as a result of the university's accelerated program.

By virtue of its appearance on the "Vox Pop" radio program early in September, the class quickly gained nation-wide fame. Further precedence was set when freshman boys donned blue crew caps instead of the traditional "dinks," and when the largest group in history entered the Duke College of Engineering. History was made when "Goon Day," an old Duke tradition, was completely revised by the freshmen women.

A new plan for the initiation of the women's freshman class was adopted which will be given a trial next fall. Plans were also formulated to improve relations with other colleges by inviting the student officers of near-by institutions to address the assemblies on West Campus.

With the realization that their comrades were giving their very lives in defense of the things encouraged by Duke University, such as freedom of thought, education, and government, this freshman class abandoned its carefree attitude and buckled down with grim resolution and determination.

HOWEVER numerous they may be, the honorary organizations of manifold types have come to take an important place in the activity of the more outstanding universities. These societies recognize and reward excellence in a chosen field which may be scholarship, literary achievement, music, leadership, dramatics, business, Spanish conversation, athletics or any of a number of varied interests. A student may belong to only one honorary or he may belong to several but in any case his membership indicates curiosity about and ability for some special phase of college life for honoraries belong in the field of specialization. They encourage men and women to discover and to develop their talents.

And this talent may be developed through a variety of sources and media; all award outstanding achievement in some field, and all exercise the ability of their chosen members for some further advancement of the renown of the organization. It is in this way that the end, the reward of membership, becomes a means, the inspiration for further attainment, to some future end. It follows that in this manner are the individuals' personalities and abilities best developed and best trained to the worthiest course.

Membership in these groups is not a matter of choice but comes as an acknowledgment of work well done and as an incentive to further advance. The golden key is a goal and a badge of merit not only to the undergraduate but also to the college. Some of these societies are chapters of well known national organizations that insist upon the fulfillment of rigorous requirements before granting chapters. Students who belong to these may boast of fellowship with long lists of distinguished members. Other honorary societies are of local origin and have been established to offer a definite representation on campus to interests and activities characteristic of Duke. These organizations are particularly well received by the students as they become part of the tradition of the University.

When a student is invited to membership in an honorary he is expected to contribute to the life of the group. In enjoying this pleasing and valuable companionship of mutual aims and interests the undergraduates justify the existence of these societies. The benefits derived go beyond those of the classroom. The student becomes acquainted with fellow students and faculty members who are like himself. He widens his experience with people and he may even learn something of his own importance. What he has gained will carry over to the outside world for which he has been preparing. He has the memory of past achievement and a promise for the future.

SOCIETY GIVES TROPHY TO FRATERNITY WITH BEST SCHOLARSHIP RECORD.

THE national honorary, Phi Eta Sigma, whose purpose is to recognize and promote excellence in scholarship among first year men was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923 and instituted upon this campus in 1931. To be eligible for membership, a freshman must make an average of 2.25 quality points for the first semester or for the entire year.

To recognize and reward scholarship among freshmen, Phi Eta Sigma awards a plaque twice each semester to the freshman house making the highest average. In addition, a cup is presented annually to the social fraternity whose pledge class excels in scholarship. In this way a spirit of competition is developed among the different houses and pledge classes, which encourages the freshmen to attain higher standards in their studies.

The most important function of the fraternity is performed by its Freshman Scholastic Advisory Council. This council was formed to help freshmen who are experiencing difficulty with their work. This service provides Phi Eta Sigma members as advisers to the freshmen who apply for aid. A great majority of the one hundred and fifty boys helped this year have shown a marked improvement in their grades.

Under the leadership of its president, Nelson Stephens, and with the generous help of its adviser, Dean Alan K. Manchester, Phi Eta Sigma has this year maintained its high and unselfish standards of service to Duke University and especially to the freshman class. This year, by its recognition and promotion of scholarship, Phi Eta Sigma has set a goal, one even greater than those set in previous years, towards which every freshman should strive. The future undoubtedly holds even greater achievements in store for this brotherhood.

For its members are the future leaders of scholastic attainment on the Duke campus and their work and efforts along this and other lines will make its impetus felt. This scholastic attainment, to which the founding of the University is dedicated, is the student's aim.

EAST CAMPUS REWARDS FRESHMAN SCHOLARSHIP WITH IVY MEMBERSHIP.

AN encouragement to high standards of scholarship, Ivy strives to stimulate intellectual curiosity among freshmen women and to foster a well rounded personality. In attaining this goal it urges each member to value the gaining of knowledge and the building of character above the mere earning of quality points. We try to participate in many branches of student life and endeavor to prevent the restriction of the activities to studies alone. These are the words that the president of Ivy repeats to each new member as she is initiated into Ivy. An ivy leaf is pinned on the initiate at the end of the ceremony. "Ivy" was selected because of the use of ivy by the ancient Romans to symbolize the attainment of knowledge and strength, and also because of its close association with our campus.

Each girl in this picture wears a green and gold regalia. These colors, the appropriate motto, Scientia usque crescat, the identification pin, a small gold pin in the shape of an ivy leaf, were chosen by the founders in 1937. Mrs. Walter S. Persons, Dean of Freshmen Women, is the adviser and an honorary member.

Although primarily an honorary society, Ivy has been given the privilege of marshalling at formal functions at the Woman's College. This is the main duty of the Ivy members. On these occasions Ivy members are distinguished by their white dresses and green regalias. As has been its tradition, Ivy always marshals at the formal opening of the Woman's College in September, and at the Student Forum series and other lectures and concerts in the Woman's Auditorium. Ivy also assisted last year by ushering for May Day. Ivy further serves the school by giving each year a gift to some fund or organization on the campus.

Through its varied activities and strict attention to high scholarship, Ivy endeavors to raise a goal toward which all freshmen women will strive and which will be a stimulus to the student body as a whole. In this endeavor Ivy has been highly successful.

PRESIDENT OF HONORARY LEADS DISCUSSION ON CO-ED SCHOOL SPIRIT.

BEFORE each undertaking, Sandals receive instructions from their able president, Antoinette Salley. In the picture they appear very placid, but really their numerous duties compel them to be active.

Their errand-running begins during the first week of school when each member helps freshmen to orient themselves to an entirely new mode of living. The services of Sandals include doing everything during Freshman Week, from carrying baggage and hanging curtains to proctoring placement tests and helping with registration. Later on, the major responsibility of this organization is keeping the Ark.

The Ark is the recreational hall of the campus, and it provides a place to which students may go to dance and play games.

Sandals also takes attendance at the Student Government Assemblies.

The group of Sandals is composed of twenty girls who were selected at the end of their freshman year since they manifested qualities of leadership, scholarship, character, and service. They are an honorary group, which serves as an intermediary between the Student Government and the student body. They are honored by a yearly banquet given by Sandals and Student Government, at which the new Sandals are presented with their new keys.

Then there is the Sandals-B.O.S. Dance, when the Sandals are not at the services of others. This dance has always been one of the most enjoyable ones of the spring season.

In closing this successful year under the expert advisership of Miss Kestler, Sandals hopes that their successors shall make the following year just as enterprising. Although most Sandals activities were obscure, it was the emblem that spurred them on. The silver winged sandal, signifying speed and surefootedness in many errands, guided the eager feet of Sandals. May it always mean as much to the future Sandals as it did to those in the past, since success lies not only in what is accomplished, but in the satisfaction derived.

SOPHOMORE RAT COURT ADMINISTERS PUNISHMENT TO FROSH OFFENDER.

NATIONAL honorary sophomore leadership fraternity, Beta Omega Sigma, founded at Trinity College in 1917, again this year has undertaken its traditional function of regulating freshman discipline and freshman class members in regard to campus traditions. Despite apathy and lack of cooperation on the part of many upperclassmen, B.O.S. has made an uphill struggle to form the scattered components of the class of 1945 into a compact group. During Freshman Week, members of the organization aided the Y.M.C.A. in helping the arriving freshmen orientate themselves. Following this period, B.O.S. began the thankless task of seeing that freshmen class members obey the rules which traditionally govern their conduct—the wearing of freshman caps, speaking to everyone on the campus, recognizing upperclass privileges.

As the fall football season grew older, B.O.S., in cooperation with both freshmen and upperclassmen, made the 1941 homecoming celebration, which for years has been traditionally in their hands, one of the best ever held. With frosh aid, the group built and guarded one of the largest pre-game bonfires ever burned at Duke. Duke homecoming parade entries, under B.O.S. supervision, were the highlight of the downtown celebration. Late in the first semester, B.O.S., jointly with Sandals, East Campus sophomore honorary society, held their annual dance, one of the features of the campus social season.

Besides its duties of freshman discipline, B.O.S. has always had the function of recognizing outstanding leaders of the rising sophomore class. Each year thirty new members are picked to succeed outgoing members on the basis of points given for participation in various activities and organizations. This year's organization has endeavored to eliminate campus politics completely from the election of members.

Interesting to make is a comparison of membership in B.O.S. with a list of present campus leaders. Not surprisingly, outstanding seniors are usually B.O.S. men.

OLDEST HONORARY AWARDS MEMBERSHIP FOR OUTSTANDING SCHOLARSHIP.

WITH the oldest historical background among the honor societies at Duke University, 9019 since its founding in 1890 has sponsored a great variety of campus services. There are in Duke University today at least six organizations and groups of organizations specializing in the fields that have been pioneered by 9019. For example, social fraternities had been banned at Trinity College, and the social activities of the 9019 played no small part in inducing the faculty to permit their return. The society also performed a function similar to the present Red Friars in striving to cultivate understanding cooperation of all college groups in meeting the broader needs of the campus. It was similar to Sigma Upsilon in its literary interests and stimulated contributions to the college magazine, the only publication then founded, and was directly responsible for the founding of the South Atlantic Quarterly, which has grown into national recognition. It was also the forerunner of Phi Beta Kappa, maintaining through the years the general scholastic requirement of that organization, although on at least two occasions it refused to try to obtain a Phi Beta Kappa chapter for the College because the students preferred their own local organization. In addition to giving recognition to scholarship and literary activities, it also recognized other activities, including athletics, provided the student maintained high minimum scholarship, until the coming of the Tombs in 1905. In fact, fifteen years after the organization of the society it was functioning somewhat as a modern chapter of O D K with a more emphatic stress upon scholarship.

In the late 1890's it adopted Washington's birthday as its special holiday and made it the occasion each year of bringing some outstanding lecturer to the campus for "the civic celebration."

In 1910 it organized an interscholastic declamation contest that for several years brought to the campus high school students from North Carolina and adjoining states to the Duke University Campus.

EAST CAMPUS GROUP RULES ON PROBLEMS OF STANDARDS AND SOCIAL LIFE.

OVERCOMING the tendency towards unreasonable regulations this year's Social Standards Committee has injected a new element into its activities by accenting proper grooming and encouraging self-discipline. Not only has the Committee planned its social celebrations with emphasis on decorum and propriety, but also it has endeavored to add an informal note to bring about congeniality and a friendly atmosphere in the college community.

Freshmen and transfer tea dances introduced an eventful year of activity. With members of the committee acting as hostesses, the women were given an opportunity to meet the men from West Campus.

To inform the freshmen of the ideals and aims set up by the group, Committee members held small discussion groups in the houses soon after Freshman Week. In these meetings problems were discussed and improvements suggested.

Plans for luncheons were carried out again this year to enable the students and members of the faculty to become better acquainted. Formal dinners in the Union were followed by student forum programs at which prominent guests were introduced. Such presentations afford excellent opportunities.

Each year the Social Standards Committee gives to the University a gift which it has planned as an annual project.

The social whirl was climaxed by the highlights of the season, the Fall and Spring Co-ed Balls. In accordance with the present world situation, decorations were kept at a minimum, and made simple. Excitement filled the air at the first Ball as everyone awaited the presentation ceremony of the 1942 Chanticleer Beauty Queen. The Co-ed Balls are always interesting because of the customary policy to withhold, until the night of the dance, the motif and decorations.

The Social Standards Committee, in keeping with the high ideals of the University, has tried to effect a plan by which the women may create an attitude of friendliness and congeniality.

FIRST organization ever formed for specialization in business organization and management, Alpha Kappa Psi has been active among undergraduates for many years.

Alpha Kappa Psi is the oldest living organization composed of specialists in business organization and management. Devoted to fraternity, commerce, and collegiate interests, its high objectives are first, to further the individual welfare of its members, secondly, to foster scientific research in the fields of commerce, accounting, and finance; thirdly, to promote and advance in colleges such courses which lead to the successful appreciation of business relationships; and finally, to educate the public to appreciate and demand higher ideals in business.

Beta Eta Chapter at Duke was established in December 1929, and has played an active and important part in campus activities since that time. Each year the chapter extends membership to those students of the upper classes who are pursuing studies in Business Administration and who have shown their ability in this field.

During the past year, membership of the chapter has included some score of students and faculty members. A number of gatherings were fostered specifically for the purpose of exchanging ideas among faculty and students. At open meetings, various business men and professors discussed various current economic problems and matters relating to business enterprises.

The outstanding annual feature is the awarding of the Alpha Kappa Psi Scholarship Medallion to the senior maintaining the highest average in economic studies at Duke University.

Thanks for a successful year are due to Bob Sanderson as President, Professor J. H. Shields as faculty adviser, the officers: Dave Stedman, vice-president; Tom Fletcher, secretary; and Dan Maddox, treasurer. With all its activities Alpha Kappa Psi is probing important problems of professional development in economics, and hopes to become one of the truly beneficial honorary organizations on the Duke Campus. Its potentialities are unlimited.

FRENCH HONORARY MEMBERS MEET TO CONSIDER FUTURE ACTIVITIES.

IN this year's activity, Tau Psi Omega, local honorary French fraternity, began their planning with two major ambitions: to maintain a place as the most active language group on the campus and to become a national organization.

Initial step in the culmination of the first objective was the decision to hold short closed meetings and open house the same evening, thus enabling the group to entertain student guests twice a month instead of once a month. This new policy was totally in keeping with the purpose of the fraternity—improvement of French conversational abilities through practice—for both members and visitors speak only French at open houses. Furthermore, this “stepped up” process allows the fraternity to elect and initiate each semester, accepting a maximum of eight new members at both times.

Major undertaking of Tau Psi Omega is the annual French play, produced in conjunction with the Romance Language Department. At the time of writing it is only to be hoped that this year's presentation of Le Barbier de Seville will be as well received as all the other light classics have been.

This year Tau Psi Omega also revived an old custom of sponsoring a campus-wide contest in the form of a French quiz program for all interested students. Numerous picnics and socials rounded out the fraternity's sequence of activities.

Significant steps have been taken toward the realization of the second objective—that of becoming a national organization.

Negotiations have been completed with a number of French groups in other colleges and it is believed that before the semester is over Tau Psi Omega will have chapters in at least three other states. This year—as in every year gone by—the fraternity owes a rousing vote of thanks and appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Neal Dow, our advisers, who have given so generously of their time and energy to make every undertaking of Tau Psi Omega a success in the present and an inspiration for the future.

EAST CAMPUS SWIMMERS PREPARE THEIR ANNUAL WATER EXHIBITION.

EVERY year, the Nereidian Club is best known on campus for its spring water pageant. At this time, the best in co-ed aquatic skill is displayed among beautiful settings and music. The pageant theme is appropriately something such as a Hawaiian Night Club or King Neptune's Court. With the pool completely transformed to represent such backgrounds, the swimmers form lovely star, accordeon, and whip figures in perfect unison. Diving exhibitions and demonstrations of form swimming are also included.

The closing formation in each pageant, in accordance with tradition, is always the candle-light figure which ends in a beautiful self-illuminated pinwheel progressing to a brilliant float. The pageant is one of the major attractions in campus productions in the spring term.

The Nereidian Club is an honorary swimming organization whose purpose is to stimulate interest and increase proficiency in water sports on the East Campus. Members are chosen for their excellence in style and speed swimming and diving. They are interested not only in improving their swimming skill but also in the more social aspects of the sport. Informal afternoon swims are often a part of the program, followed by supper and the weekly meeting in the club room. Another activity is training for and participation in telegraphic swimming meets sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association.

Interest and proficiency in swimming is furthered greatly by the Junior Nereidian Club. This organization provides an opportunity for all those interested to train in speed, style swimming and diving so that they will better be able to pass the entrance requirements of the Senior Nereidian Club. Frequent supervised swims are held before the period of Nereidian tryouts. In this way the less experienced swimmers are encouraged to improve.

The achievements of the Nereidian Club are evidenced by the increased enthusiasm and proficiency in water sports among Duke co-eds.

TOMBS IS ORGANIZATION OF VARSITY LEADERS OF SCHOOL ATHLETICS.

TOMBS, honorary athletic fraternity, was founded in 1905 at Trinity College. The need for an honorary athletic organization was recognized, and that need has become more intense through the years. Now, Tombs not only provides fellowship among athletes, but it has also become one of the strongest service groups on the Duke Campus. Tombs limits its membership to only those athletes who are outstanding in their particular field, and who have the accompanying qualifications of courage, good sportsmanship, and loyal support to their Alma Mater. The men are leaders in other campus activities and scholarship as well as athletics.

Tombs has annually afforded amusement to the campus and community by its most novel and informal initiation. The newly initiated, clad in odd-colored pajamas, weighted down with buckets, clocks, eggs, noise makers, cigars, and with faces painted a gruesome black, assemble on the Chapel steps to perform their embarrassing and ludicrous tasks to laughing students.

This year Tombs is rendering a new service to the campus. This service is the bringing to the South and the Duke campus in particular, one of the outstanding and most colorful sports events of the year, the National Amateur Badminton Tournament. With each Tombs member doing his part to sponsor the event, the National Tournament was acclaimed as the finest and most successful tournament in badminton history. This service was in addition to the traditional Tombs activities of providing card displays and stunts at football games whenever the necessity arose.

Tombs also provides entertainment for visiting collegiate teams, sponsors Dad's Day, puts on a Tombs Community Sing, and looks after the general welfare of the athletic activities on the Duke campus. Thus, in many and sundry ways, Tombs serves its members, the University, and people who come in contact with Duke. To be invited to membership is one of the highest achievements a Duke athlete may obtain during his four years at the University.

DRAMATIC ORGANIZATION DISCUSSES ITS PLAY PRODUCTION PROBLEMS.

ALPHA Chapter of Theta Alpha Phi has completed its sixteenth year on the Duke campus, under the guidance of president William Thomas.

No longer is this organization to be known as one of the inactive honoraries whose members proudly wear a key and let the theatrical world go by. Theta Alpha proudly announces a new policy which was instituted this past winter.

Not only does the group continue its active interest in Duke Players and various other dramatic activities on campus, but it has begun this year a series of programs in which only active members are allowed to participate.

These programs consist of play-readings at which time both current Broadway plays and outstanding productions of past seasons are presented to an invited audience of students and faculty members.

Several of these programs were presented this past year, the group reading, among other plays, Shas's Candide, several Noel Coward one-acts, and Pursuit of Happiness.

The plans for next winter are to present a reading once a month, thereby building up a regular audience of theater lovers. Other activities of Theta Alpha Phi include outstanding work in the Duke Players' productions, the Hoof and Horn Club, and radio productions.

The members are chosen for excellence in the various fields of the drama, both acting and all phases of technical stagework.

The organization is affiliated with the National Chapter which was founded at the University of Chicago in 1919. The fraternity key, which entitles its wearer to be admitted to the backstage of all professional theaters, is the drama mask, topped by rubies, and bearing the Greek letters of the organization.

It is the hope of the group that the new policy will add to the cultural entertainment of the student body and make Theta Alpha Phi the embodiment of theatrical attainment and an active force on the Duke campus.

SISTER ORGANIZATION TO TOMBS MEETS TO PLAN FOR ATHLETIC EVENTS.

BECAUSE of its athletic nature, Delta Phi Rho Alpha, local honorary society, has for its purpose the creation of a greater and more active participation in intramural athletics. This purpose has been well carried out this year under the leadership of our able president, Peggy Forsberg. Other officers of the organization are Joan Reycraft, vice president; Jean Wells, secretary, and Catherine Kling, treasurer.

The sorority is pictured above observing pictures of various sports and discussing possible candidates for membership. Admission of new girls is limited to two juniors and seven sophomores. These girls are chosen for their outstanding ability and interest in athletics.

Initiation of new members, which is held in march, is similar to that of Tombs which is the brother-fraternity of Delta Phi Rho Alpha. Initiates are stationed anywhere on East Campus from the Washington Duke statue to the steps of Southgate. Each future member is garbed in the traditional "goat costume" of heavy black stockings, one black shoe and one white shoe, a middie blouse and a short black skirt. She must carry a paddle, a rolling pin, a bucket, and various other articles with the Greek letters of the fraternity on it.

Delta Phi Rho Alpha has become very active on Duke Campus. The sorority sponsors an intramural basketball tournament awarding a banner to the winner, and a tennis tournament in the spring giving the victor a cup. Each year a key is awarded to the senior who by her leadership, sportsmanship, and athletic ability throughout the four years at Duke is considered the most outstanding athlete. Delta Phi Rho Alpha is doing much toward sponsoring athletic activities that will add to the prestige of the college and its organizations.

Just as Tombs, the West Campus honorary athletic organization, awards outstanding athletic achievement, so does Delta Phi Rho Alpha sponsor athletic contests and award those who have attained excellence. Its value glorifies the honor of the University.

CRITICISM AND DISCUSSION IMPROVES THE WRITING OF DUKE COEDS.

NATIONAL honorary literary sorority, Chi Delta Phi, is composed of girls who are outstanding in literary achievement on the campus. Members of our little group are Chronicle writers, Archive artists, Duke 'n' Duchess dirt-slingers, and others recognized only for their potential possibilities.

Included in the various activities of the local chapter is the extremely interesting function of drinking tea and eating cookies. Every well-planned meeting is centered about this. The rest of each meeting is spent in discussions—affable argumentation, we call it—during which members may sprawl, scrawl, crawl, or bawl according to the individual's impulse of the moment. The minutes are usually read, but the roll has not been called since last May—the secretary misplaced the list of members.

During the few serious moments of the conclave, the president leads a discussion on short stories, poems, or anything else which may be handy—the last refers to national correspondence. The national office is wondering whether Zeta chapter at Duke needs stimulation or resurrection. Whatever we need, Chi Delta Phi finds this secret existence great fun.

One of the most enjoyable events of our subterranean existence and puttering around was a party we gave. Our treasury, unbeknownst to us, got bigger and bigger as the years rolled by. At one meeting the treasurer told us the incredible amount of money we had. Immediately wild schemes of spending came to our heads, but we finally decided on a party a la Rinaldi's. About a month later into the Pan-Hel. house we drifted. A little later, big boxes of food were brought over from Rinaldi's Grill. We all gathered in a sorority room to listen to several short stories and talk with our guests, Mrs. White and Mrs. Searight. While we were having a very pleasant time being "literary," the homebody's in the kitchen were arranging the food. Finally, though, as the Duke time schedule never slows down, we had to say goodbye and go back to our humdrum work.

DISCUSSION OF BEETHOVEN RESULTS FROM MEETING OF BAND HONORARY.

WHENEVER Kappa Kappa Psi meets, students with varied interests here at Duke are brought together. However, we all have in common our love for music. The fraternity is a selection of outstanding band members picked for their leadership and ability in the organization.

We, as a group, meet every Friday at one o'clock, holding call meetings whenever "Chet" Byrn, president, or "Skipper" Fearing deem them necessary. The fraternity officers are Chester Byrn, President; Henry Wilson, Vice-president; Sumner Jones, Secretary; Clarence Kefauver, Treasurer; and Bill Green, Historian.

That's "Chet" in the shot above leading the group discussion. This is more or less the manner in which we gather each Friday in Mr. Fearing's office.

Our purpose is to keep up the spirit among the band members and help promote an ever-improving marching band here at Duke University. Each year we offer the fellows, along the social line, either "The Baton Ball" or a party.

To date this year, we have acted as host to the bands who participated in Duke's Homecoming festivities, and endeavored to lessen "Skipper's" headaches by assisting him on the field.

Each year, during the football season, the band takes a trip to one of the "away" games. These away contests include such team as Tennessee, Pittsburgh, and Georgia Tech. The men of Kappa Kappa Psi act as Mr. Fearing's subordinates during this time, to assist him in making the run a success. At this time freshmen are given a "Pullman Car orientation" into the band.

We have as an aim the desire to arouse an even more appreciative and cooperative campus public. We believe this can be done by proving the band's ability on the football field and by keeping the band in the public eye. This year will show Sunday band concerts, the Annual Christmas Concert, the May Day performance, and perhaps a Spring Concert Tour to justify the pride of the student body in this organization.

ORGANIZATIONS

Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., PEGRAM CHEMISTRY CLUB, SOPHOMORE "Y" COUNCIL, FROSH "Y" COUNCIL, MEN'S FRESHMEN ADVISORY COUNCIL, WOMEN'S FRESHMEN ADVISERS, PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY, STUDENT FORUM, MUSIC STUDY CLUB, MEN'S GLEE CLUB, WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB, DUKE PLAYERS, BENCH AND BAR, DEBATING SOCIETY, DUKE DAD'S CLUB.

A FULLER college life is offered to students through the medium of organizations. Extra-curricular activities are as much a part of an undergraduates' education and development as are the mental stimuli offered in the classroom; and organizations form an important part of this whole that is Duke. The ability to work successfully in a group; the power obtained from individuals subordinating their own small interests to concentrate as a powerful whole on a common end; a genuine fellowship of mutual interests—these are the chief benefits of organizations. The numerous talents, abilities, and interests brought to Duke by the incoming students have a place in at least one of these many groups. Freshmen upon their arrival are given an immediate opportunity to come into contact with the different organizations which are on the campus to greet and help them. Entering as novices they bring with them a small amount of experience, or perhaps they are equipped only with enthusiasm. They become familiar with the work of that group, whether it be service, musical, dramatic, athletic, or scientific. Later, as they become capable of assuming more responsibility they work not only within their own sphere, but in cooperation with all the other campus groups. Thus, as units, the organizations work individually for their own good and collectively for the betterment of the college. Their strength lies in the fact that there is nothing set or dogmatic about their management. They are constantly changing and improving as they respond to the suggestions and ambitions of the new student bodies. Throughout the year they exchange ideas and advice with many similar groups in other colleges. Through these many activities, from small meetings to conferences with other colleges, these organizations obtain a force and drive that permeates college life. They are alive and ever-changing. Democracy characterizes the organizations. Every individual is afforded the equal opportunity to progress and grow through work and service; and in turn make his University grow also. Every personality on campus can find an organization in which there are people with his same interests and same outlooks. These activities provide sources of development for an individual's creative instincts, his natural talents, and his ability to do his work with others and gain the benefits of working in coöperation. Because of these factors their constructive influence on their members is not only felt for four years but is carried over beyond the small college world into later life.

"Y" CABINET MEETS TO DETERMINE ACTIVITIES OF CAMPUS-WIDE GROUP.

ON the Y.M.C.A. Cabinet, are the four elected officers, the heads of the fourteen committees, and the presidents of the Freshman and Sophomore Councils. The Cabinet has faced, this year, the task of rendering the service to the campus and to the community that our name implies. Years of strong tradition have inspired us to take advantage of every possible opportunity to give generously of our time and abilities to practical Christianity—Christianity as we understand it, both individually and as an organization.

As we look back on most of the year's work, we realize, of course, that we have made mistakes and have neglected opportunities, but we feel at the same time a justifiable pride that our efforts have been well worth the while. Freshman Week, Dad's Day, Socials, Boys' Work, Social Service, Human Relations, Campus Service, Student-Faculty Relations, Deputations, F.A.C., The Freshman and Sophomore Councils, Conferences, Religious Emphasis Week, Publicity, Worship—yes, and even the membership drive—all bring memories of the year 1941-1942.

A word of especial appreciation is due, we feel, to the fellows who have worked faithfully with us in our various undertakings—without their help the work could never have been done.

And now, as we reflect on the future of the Duke Y.M.C.A., it is with a great deal of hope that we pass on to our followers the opportunities that we have had, confident that our ideal of Christian service will be theirs. Now, as in no time in the past, is this spirit of Christianity essential if the World is to recover from the destruction which mankind has wrought upon itself. Upon graduation students will find a world grasping and groping for a solid foundation—for something on which they can depend in black hours. The greatest challenge Modern Christianity has ever had laid before it is the rebuilding and comfort it can give a shattered world. Christianity is more than a religion, it is a philosophy of life, its foundation the continuous progress and unbigoted esteem of mankind.

EAST CAMPUS "Y" SPONSORS SOCIAL SERVICE WORK IN THE COMMUNITY.

FOREMOST in campus leadership this year, the "Y" is ably "prexied" by Jo Brown, and aided by our new adviser, Farrar Babcock. Keynotes of the year have been progress and cooperation.

Early in September, the cabinet had a retreat to plan for this year. When the freshmen arrived, they were met at the train or bus. Sara Vandergriff had her social committee entertain at a tea that first afternoon, serve lemonade during registration, and help at the fall freshmen picnics. The membership drive, led by Helen Brinson, meant that freshmen were soon members with the upperclassmen. By the first of October, the committees were under way. Dinny Welsh had girls working on social service at the nursery school, the girls guardian clubs, Wright's Refuge, the spastic clinic, Duke and Watts hospitals, and girl scouts. The worship committee aided in lenten vespers, religious emphasis week, and discussion groups, under Eleanor Powell. The sophomore commission changed in form; any girls in the sophomore class interested in "Y" work were allowed to join. This proved quite successful with Jean Watkins at its head. The freshman "Y" commission, chosen in December, included members of the class who had shown an active interest. Betty Hutchison was in charge of the "Y" fair held in the Ark on December ninth and tenth, which ushered in the Christmas season, offering gifts of students, their friends, or families. Ethel Lednum headed the student-faculty relations committee. Members of the faculty entertained students at parties on Sunday afternoons and evenings, the purpose being to stimulate informal and friendly relations between the students and faculty members. Those cards or posters concerning the "Y" were the work of Betty Lu Stryker and her committee. Our programs, starting with the banquet in October and ending with the installation of new officers, were in charge of Ann O'Roark. Altogether, we feel that this year the Y.W.C.A. succeeded in its aim of progress, and will continue that progress in years to come.

CHEMISTRY CLUB INCLUDES IN ITS FUNCTIONS A SERIES OF LECTURES.

IN times such as these it is increasingly important that science be aided in every way for the sake of our national defense effort. It is necessary that all scientific organizations work to their fullest extent to preserve and to further knowledge and interest in their respective fields. It was Professor Paul M. Gross, director of the chemistry department, who called the attention of the Pegram Chemistry Club to this increased need of interest and activity in the specialized technical fields.

This has been done with the full cooperation of the faculty and graduate students of the chemistry department, who are quite as much a part of the organization as the ninety undergraduate members.

Although the Pegram Chemistry Club is not an honorary organization, all members must either be taking, or have taken, second year chemistry, that is, inorganic analytical chemistry. The purpose of the club is to stimulate interest in chemistry and to do so in such a manner as will bring the undergraduates, graduates, and faculty to a mutual understanding through friendly social relations. Meetings are held twice monthly on Thursday evenings. At these meetings the programs pertain to both applied and pure chemistry, and there is always a minimum of business and a maximum of pleasure.

The program consists of a talk or movie on chemistry or some allied subject, such as physics, zoology, geology, or medicine, held in the main lecture room, where the picture on the left was taken. A business meeting follows and then a social hour during which our clubroom, pictured on the right, is the center of interest. It is a place for fun, relaxation, and a place to practice piano-playing and singing, or just a place where there is always someone to talk to. A good game of pingpong can always be had in the room adjoining the clubroom which was recently given to the club by the chemistry department. For more strenuous athletics there is a badminton court on the roof of the lecture room.

In the fall and again in the spring, the club sponsors a picnic. This fall Dr. Warren C. Vosburgh entertained at his summer home. Touch football was the keynote of the afternoon, but the high point of the day's pleasure was reached in the evening, as the picnickers ate steak which had been broiled over an open fire. Thus the club tried to further the belief that a chemist should be physically, as well as mentally fit. The organization also brings out this idea at the meetings, for there refreshments highlight the evening's fun.

The club was ably led this year by president Carl Deal, vice-president Annie Laurie Peeler, secretary Virginia Goodbody, treasurer Frank Wren, program chairman Frank Field, and social chairman Margaret Ross. The faculty adviser, Dr. Douglas G. Hill, and graduate adviser, Ruth Stockdale, helped continuously in all matters.

For the past five years the organization has awarded the Pegasus Chemistry Club prize consisting of a Junior membership in the American Chemical Society to the student who, whether a member or a non-member, is taking a senior-graduate course in chemistry and has made the highest quality point average in chemistry, physics, and mathematics courses. Last year this was won by John French.

The symbol of the club is a single crystal, representing the goals: purity, clarity, brilliance, and symmetry. These four aims are the qualities which the club seeks to encourage in its members. It is the conscientious application of these aims which will rebuild a destroyed World and cleanse a plagued Earth. Some future Lavoisier may well make his genius felt; and this genius may equally well emerge from the Pegasus Chemistry Club. It has been said that genius is latent within each of us, and that it is only the events of history which are needed to wash away the sheer coat which conceals our genius. Surely never before in history was such a strong mixture of events at work to bring out the genius of Chemistry. Unexplored fields will be discovered, unconquerable forces will be conquered, and new sources of power will be energized.

IMPORTANT FRESHMAN WEEK DISCUSSION IS LED BY SOPHOMORE LEADER.

BEGINNING the year with four definite purposes, the Sophomore Y Council directed its work and fifty boys carried out a program for the strengthening of one religious activity which needed the Council's support, the building of constructive campus projects, the formulation of closer Y fellowship, and the training of future Senior Cabinet men.

In meeting the first purpose, the Council sponsored the Open Forum Bible Class. Personal attendance and general cooperation with its work aided in giving the class a stronger place on the campus. As in the past, the Council took charge of the Thanksgiving Service. Interest was increased by the presence of Dr. Clarence B. Shedd of Yale University as guest speaker on the program.

Toward fulfillment of the second aim, the Council continued to operate the Bulletin Board. More important, however, was the establishment of a centralized Lost and Found Department in an attempt to benefit the campus.

Meetings such as the one pictured here were held every other Thursday night. Various professors, coaches, and campus leaders gave interesting talks at the meetings. These meetings, together with several socials, aided greatly toward the making of closer fellowship among the members.

By cooperating with the Senior Cabinet in its work of running such projects as Dads' Day, Religious Emphasis Week, Student Membership Drives, and also by giving support to the various Council committees, the members were given valuable training in Y work and toward future leadership in cabinets.

It is the hope of the council that the work done in the accomplishment of these four purposes has in some way benefited the University Community, for each organization, honorary, and club has its share to add to the building of an even greater University. The Sophomore "Y" Council this year, as in past years, has made this purpose its ideal. Future "Y" Councils will follow its steps.

FUTURE "Y" LEADERSHIP IS FORMED IN LARGE FRESHMAN ORGANIZATION.

THE Freshman Y Council again this year operated on a three-fold purpose: namely, to prepare boys for future positions in the cabinet of the senior Y, to acquaint the freshmen with campus life and the activities taking place on the campus, and to help every boy lead a clean Christian life while here at Duke. To achieve these purposes the boys cooperated at all times and accomplished these aims.

The council was formed soon after school opened in September. The officers elected were: Bill Raup, president; Dick Coy, vice-president; Hartsell Cash, secretary; and Bill Thornburgh, treasurer. The group was led by these four boys and the various committees which were organized among the members of the council. These were the social, deputation, project, program, and publicity committees.

A thorough renovation of the Freshman Y Council took place this year. Membership was unrestricted; election of officers was by the preferential system; and many new phases of Y work were added to the curriculum of the council. These changes seemed to stimulate interest in the group and the council was as a whole very successful.

Among the innovations this year was a deputation committee. This group gave programs at several high schools and colleges throughout the state. Joint programs were also held with the freshman council of the Greensboro Woman's College and W.C.U.N.C.

Although changed considerably, the council continued much of the work done in former years. Its members formed the nucleus of the various committees of the Y cabinet. The council also decorated the campus at Christmas again this year.

But all was not work for the freshmen. Many social functions were held during the year. Included in these were the series of Y retreats and various open houses.

The group enjoyed many fine programs at its meeting this year. Among the speakers which the council was privileged to hear were many of our leading professors, athletic coaches, and several outstanding students here at Duke University.

ORIENTATION OF NEW FRESHMAN IS SUPERVISED BY ADVISORY COUNCIL.

HEN opportunity knocks, one should open the door and welcome it in; and because the Freshman Advisory Council is the heir to an idea, brilliant and unique in conception, it has attempted this year to approach, more completely than before, a practical realization of the great possibilities of freshman advisory work.

One hundred upperclassmen were chosen in the spring of 1941 to serve on the council.

Selection was made on the basis of leadership, personality, scholarship, and character. These men have given their time and effort to a job the greatest satisfactions of which are not to be found in blaring recognition, but rather in quiet personal achievement and knowing that a job has been well done. The time and effort required of them have not been small.

The purpose of the Freshman Advisory Council has been to provide the members of the freshman class a chance for contacts and association with a selected group of upperclassmen. It has been our hope that the best in each set of Duke upperclassmen may be transferred undiluted to each freshman class, that through this process every succeeding class may preserve and improve upon the ideas and ideals that Duke men inherit.

The method of the council has been to assign each upperclass adviser to a small group of four or five freshmen. Advisers have followed the development and problems, trivial and important, of their men through the school year, offering what advice and direction that they may have deemed helpful. To the house captains, pictured above, is due much credit for work that the council has done. Their close contact with the work of the advisers in their respective houses has contributed materially to the functioning of the council. A number of structural changes in the organization of the council have been made in an effort to assure continuity of personnel and leadership. The coöperation of Dr. Allan K. Manchester and Mr. Thomas Cottingham was invaluable.

ADVISERS HELP SOLVE NEW COED FRESHMAN AND TRANSFER PROBLEMS.

NLY a small organization, but a group with a definitely important task, the Freshman Advisory Council consists of approximately thirty responsible upperclassmen who are chosen for their qualities of character, leadership, ability, and interest in the work which is required of them. It is the primary aim of the advisers to help freshmen in their adjustment to college life, scholastically and socially, and to make each freshman feel that she is an integral part of the college community. The chief interest of the council is in the welfare and development of the new students. The council is not a disciplinary body. Rather, by means of friendliness, interest, and understanding, and cooperation, this organization works for a permanent development of personality and character, and for a spirit of independence in each new student. Under the supervision of Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson Persons, and in cooperation with the Freshman Office, this work has been ably furthered. From the time of the arrival of the freshman at Duke, the Freshman Advisory Council begins to play an important role in her life here. Advisers are on hand to greet each new girl as she arrives and to help create an atmosphere of friendliness that will make her feel a part of this new life. During Freshman Week, the advisers help freshmen become acquainted with, and adjusted to their surroundings on the campus, and the rules and regulations of the college community. Gradually, throughout the semester, the freshmen begin to feel more and more settled, independent, and familiar with the college community. The Freshman Advisory Council is an important organization on campus. In the first place, it maintains a personal relationship of friendliness and equality with the freshmen in guiding them and advising them. Moreover, it acts as an effective medium for bettering relations between the faculty and the freshmen.

Then too, the organization acts as a source of supply of new material for the more responsible Sophomore "Y" Council and the Cabinet of The Young Men's Christian Association.

PRE-MEDICAL GROUP LISTENS TO LECTURE IN THE BIOLOGY BUILDING.

FROM the date of the founding of the Pre-Medical Society on March 12, 1937, its members have attempted to uphold the purposes for which it was established: to serve as a cooperative center for intelligent pre-medical thought, to establish a closer relationship between pre-medical students and the faculties of both the undergraduate and Medical school, to develop among the pre-medical students an ever increasing sense of the high standards of character and responsibility embodied in the medical profession, to stimulate within the minds of pre-medical students the correlation of a general cultural background with the more specific pre-medical training. Dr. I. E. Gray of the Zoology Department and Dr. F. H. Swett of the Medical School were again chosen as faculty advisers to the society.

Each fall and spring the society admits approximately twenty new members who are selected on the basis of their interest, personality, scholastic average and other recommendations.

Officers are elected from the rising junior and senior members each spring. This year president John McClure, vice-president Henry Bopp, corresponding secretary Joan Reycraft, treasurer Robert Ing, and recording secretary Margaret Mellor have worked hard in planning interesting programs and in making the year a most successful one. In the fall, members heard lectures by various professors of the Medical School. Dr. Swett spoke on "Preparation versus Requirements for the Study of Medicine." Other lecturers spoke about various topics of interest in the field of medicine. The subject of the pre-medical student in the draft was also discussed. Along with the lecture programs moving pictures were shown from time to time. Most of the movies showed different surgical operations and techniques. During the second semester the society presented a symposium on Pre-Medical problems. Students from neighboring colleges and universities were invited. The symposium program consisted of a clinic in the hospital amphitheater, a tour of the hospital and medical school, and a round-table discussion. In the clinic an interesting case was presented and its diagnosis and treatment was correlated with the principles of the basic sciences. The purpose of the symposium was to further acquaint the pre-medical students with the value of their undergraduate work as a basis for medical study and to discuss problems common to all pre-medical training. The annual spring banquet was held in March with the advisers and other faculty members as guests. At this time certificates of membership were presented to the junior and senior members.

The photographs present some of the Society in different phases of their activities. The laboratory shots show students in the Chemical laboratory and in the comparative anatomy laboratory. Both of these studies are vital as a foundation for the study of medicine. The other picture is a typical view of the society listening to a lecture. These pictures were obviously posed.

In addition to the regular programs of the society, and as a source of extra information for those who are interested, the Duke Medical Society invited all members of the Pre-Medical Society to attend the monthly meetings held in the Hospital amphitheater. At these meetings noted medical men from all over the country spoke on the latest developments of research in different branches of medicine.

In the past, the society has not only tried to benefit its own members but it has also tried to help the other pre-medical students solve their numerous and various problems. In the future the society will continue to uphold its purposes and will endeavor to be an organization beneficial to pre-medical students and creditable to the University.

In the near future those who now gather in the Pre-Medical Society will band together to form a bulwark fighting the destruction of the outside world. Their medical training will be accelerated so they may meet the demands placed upon them. Sooner than usual will their abilities and studies meet the tests of practice.

EVERY time you happen to see six ordinarily calm, unruffled Senior women file out of the Women's Student Government Room looking slightly wild-eyed, you would be quite safe in guessing them to be the Student Forum Committee. Chairman "Maidee" Lassen would confess, should you ask her, that her job is not an easy one. Selecting speakers and performers that must satisfy eight hundred women and, at the same time, remain within a meager budget, could never be a simple task.

Once the speakers are chosen, Beth Shaw must see to the contracts. She checks them over with a competent member of the Law School staff, to make sure that the Committee and the University will not find themselves in difficulty by overlooking some minute, inconspicuous clause.

Lucie O'Brien, in charge of publicity, takes care that posters and notices are placed where the students will be certain to see them. Townpeople, faculty, and newspapers must also be informed, and Lucie is kept busy seeing that this is done.

A treasurer's responsibility is a heavy one in any organization, and "Fran" Chivers would be the first to agree with you. "These books are so complicated," she moans. "When I go to bed at night, all I can dream about are vouchers, vouchers, vouchers."

Carrying on a lengthy correspondence with secretaries, heads of agencies, and other well-known figures means work, but it is fun, too, as "Debby" Cantor, secretary of the Committee, can tell you. If the multitude of letters and telegrams which she sends and receives were laid end to end, she is sure they would reach from East Campus to West.

The newest member of the group, Betty Tucker, replaced Hazel Eggers who did not return to school. Betty's valuable suggestions are a welcome contribution to the Committee's work. Faculty adviser is Mrs. Z. B. Vance, an important contribution to its activities.

EAST CAMPUS MUSIC CLUB CONCENTRATES ON STUDY OF THE CLASSICS.

THE Music Study Club has been on the Woman's College Campus for nine years, and in that time, has become one of the major musical organizations.

It is composed of a group of girls who are interested or who show ability in music and who have a keen appreciation as well.

It is the aim of the members to encourage the Women of Duke University toward more understanding and enjoyment of good music. In doing this this year, the club has sponsored Vronsky and Babin, the famous Duo-Pianists who appeared on the Concert Series. They also give concerts with artists of our own faculty or campus as soloists.

Every two weeks the club holds its regular meeting where tea is served, guests are entertained, and programs are given concerning operas, symphonies, and lives of composers and artists.

These programs are one of the most important functions of the club because it is here that the members really learn about great music and also have the opportunity to hear it, either by records or by artists. Some programs are devoted to talent within the club, and this is usually voted one of the most popular meetings of the year. This year's programs have been exceedingly interesting and we were especially delighted with the lively talk given by "Bishop" Barnes on the subject, "Celebrities I Have Known." Mr. Barnes is always one of the most welcome guests.

This year the club sponsored a Song Writing Contest to encourage young composers on the campus. It was limited to the women of the college.

The club is ably guided by Miss Evelyn Barnes and her beautiful voice has added much to some of the programs. The club has entertained many distinguished guests at these regular program meetings, as well as held receptions for some guest artists and Glee Clubs.

In the last two years we have been led by "Prexy" Beth Shaw and our programs this year have been arranged by Jane Craig and her hard-working committee.

THIRTY-EIGHT DUKE SINGERS PRESENT WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS CONCERT.

AMONG the more active organizations on the Duke campus, the Men's Glee Club stands out as undoubtedly one of the most prolific from the standpoint of fine entertainment. This year as in all previous years, the varsity club of forty voices under the watchful eye and capable direction of J. Foster Barnes, has attained national recognition as a group of polished musicians.

The club appeared in concert for the first time this year at the Greenbrier Hotel, in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia on September 28, before a national convention of Wholesale Druggists. The Glee Club was selected above professional groups and other college glee clubs to appear on the same program with Miss Evalyn Case, soprano, of the Chicago Opera Company and Mr. Lansing Hatfield, baritone, winner of the Metropolitan Auditions. On this occasion, the Duke organization received high praise from all the critics in attendance for its liveliness and its musician ship.

From the one-hundred and thirty voices in the club, "Bishop" Barnes selected fifty to appear on the campus sing and to sing in concert before the Faculty Club at their Christmas party. Other performances include concerts for North Carolina Religious conventions and Sunday services in the chapel.

On February 18, the combined glee clubs presented Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" for a capacity crowd giving all the profits to the Red Cross Fund. On March 19, the Men's Glee Club joined in the Duke Chapel with the Women's Glee Club, the Farmville Girls Glee Club, and the Yale Men's Glee Club to present Brahms' "Requiem." This same combination, accompanied by Frank Black's N.B.C. Symphony, Presented the "Requiem" again in Carnegie Hall, New York City, on March 28. Besides its C.B.S. broadcast, the club sang in New York City, Washington, D. C., and at Sweetbrier College for Women.

Officers for this year were Shackelford, Somerville, Fuqua, and Fletcher.

COED SINGERS MEET TWICE WEEKLY TO PROMOTE MUSICAL INTEREST.

BEAUTIFUL music is a tradition at Duke, and among the many musical organizations on campus, which uphold the tradition, the Woman's Glee Club is one of the most active. Under the enthusiastic and inspired leadership of Mrs. Barnes, the Glee Club contributes frequently to campus programs. This year, on November 2, the Glee Club gave a concert on the regular Sunday Community Sing program. The numbers included "America," "Hindu Slumber Song," and "Let All My Life Be Music."

The annual Glee Club dance, to which the members of all the other musical organizations receive a blanket bid, was held on December 12. This dance, held in honor of the new Glee Club members, has become a tradition looked forward to with great anticipation each year by both West and East Campus.

In the early spring, besides giving an operetta, the Woman's Glee Club sang at a joint concert with the Men's Glee Club and the Yale Men's Glee Club.

The officers for 1941-42 are as follows: Nancy Carver, president; Betty Lou Stryker, vice-president; Helen Miner, secretary; Mary Jane Edwards, treasurer. Besides these main officers, there are eight hostesses, one for each dormitory and one for the Town Girls, whose duty it is to attend executive meetings and to inform the members in her group of special meetings or other affairs of particular interest to them. These hostesses also give a party each year for the girls in her dormitory. This helps the girls to become better acquainted with the fellow songsters.

The Glee Club, besides being an organization for those who love to sing for pure enjoyment, is a training ground for membership in the Chapel Choir.

The week before Christmas vacation, the Glee Club assisted in the annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" in the Duke Chapel.

For the first time in its history, the Glee Club has a student director, Sara Towe, to assist Mrs. Barnes.

BACKSTAGE CREWS PUT FINISHING TOUCHES ON SCENERY AND MAKE-UP.

NOT overlooking the fact that Duke Players does put on four major productions during the regular year, and these productions constitute a major part of the work of the organization, there is more than just the plays to Duke Players. A great amount of time is spent by the seasoned members in training freshmen and others who have never had a taste of dramatics. Each year regular classes are conducted in make-up, special assistance is offered in the construction department, and even a chance to try out acting is offered.

A large part of Duke Players activity centers in the work of the back stage committees who create the essentials of the production. These committees work long and hard in order to make the play as near perfection as possible and they deserve a real hand in praise of their often unsung efforts. Duke Players makes completely every set that is used in every production. The set must first be designed, then constructed. After construction, painting is necessary before the set is "swung" into position for its role in the play. After all the individual sets are finished they must be put into position on stage subject to rapid change between acts.

The properties committee must provide everything for the stage and the actors to use. The costume and make-up committees work hand in hand. Before the play a careful study is made of the characters and of the actors portraying those characters, for it is the make-up man's task to exactly reproduce the character. The skill of stage make-up can only be developed by patience and long experience, but it is a fascinating job.

After the sets are arranged the lights assume a major role. Interesting and complicated is the electrician's job in wiring the stage for sound and light. Foots, spots, baby spots, and borders must all be just right to produce the desired effect. Once the lights are set then comes the fun of operating the huge switchboard which controls all the lights. It's complicated but it's fun.

A. T. WEST HELPS SELECT THE CAST FOR THE FORTHCOMING PRODUCTION.

WHAT work could be more exciting than the actual back stage crew's job? They integrate sets, props, lights, and cast into a single unit, the performance. Whispers to the light man, a quick set change, the final touch up to the furniture, "last calls" for the cast, or any odd job falls the lot of those regular workers who are privileged to be in on the back stage during the performance. They receive little or no credit for their drudgery for they are behind scenes, but their job is by far the most enjoyable phase of production—just ask them.

Although this picture of "Pop" A. T. West and his group of actors seems to indicate that a good bull session is the essence of an actor's group, that is not the only activity concerned with those of the Duke Players who "tread the boards." That fond look of affection passing between "Pop" and Fred Walkey is more than a bit of fun over the last crack made, it shows the relation of the actor to the director. That relation involves a long period of careful training and rehearsal before curtain call on the night of production. In our case having "Pop" as the director makes the relationship a very cheerful one. Fun and hard work strike the keynote during the many nights of rehearsal preceding the play.

It's rather difficult to take an ordinary Duke student and overnight transform him into a finished Thespian, but past history of Duke Players has proved that it can be done if not overnight. Tryouts always find many young hopefuls eager to have a lead. Those leads are limited, however, so only the best survive. After tryouts come rehearsals—loads of them—for perfection is the goal. Voice, timing, gestures, and most important, living the part, are all stressed so that before "curtain up" there's no chance for a slip. It's admitted that being an actor is hard work, but to anyone who's ever graced the stage, it is also an unforgettable experience that cannot be duplicated in any other activity on the Duke Campus, for there is pride in achievement.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE DICTATES PRODUCTION POLICY OF ORGANIZATION.

OF course, the actual work of putting on a production is done by the director, actors and back stage committees. However, were it not for the business staff, the financial part of our business would go unattended. Our business staff, here at Duke, headed by the business manager, assumes responsibility for all transactions concerning the organization. The publicity committee is composed of students who get out all the news about Duke Players to campus and to the Durham community. Posters, news stories, handbills, previews and reviews all pass through the hands of the publicity man. To the box office staff goes the business of arranging seating and selling tickets. On the nights of production the house committee functions. The usherettes, house managers, and doorman all serve, doing their share.

So the night of production comes and after a few short hours, the play is but a pleasant memory. Some say it's a lot of hard work, but those who work on production say that there's nothing to compare to it.

The regular meetings of Duke Players are concerned mostly, it's true, with problems of production. Witness manager, Joe Leone, giving the committee heads a pep talk at one of the regular meetings under the watchful eye of Marion Davis, president. After the problems are thrashed out, programs of one act plays or monologues are given for the benefit of the public. These plays offer training that often leads to a part in one of the big productions.

The Duke Players are firm believers in the saying that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, so ever so often they entertain at an open house or a cabin party where a good time is had by all. So be it, and long live the Duke Players, the most versatile organization on campus. Their work and talent is appreciated by a gradually increasing number of students. Their entertainment has its valuable place in the recreation of the campus under the new recreational program which has been necessitated by the limitation of expenditures for the duration of the war effort.

INDICTED COED IS GRIMLY PROSECUTED BY PRE-LEGAL JUDGE AND JURY.

THE Bench and Bar Society was organized in the Spring of 1938. The movement has rapidly gained a place of influence and leadership on the campus, starting with twenty charter members, and having today a membership of over fifty pre-legal students from both campuses. It grew out of a desire for a cooperative organization in which pre-legal students might obtain the necessary knowledge and associations to enable them to appreciate, discuss, and solve intelligently many of the questions and problems arising in their minds. The choice of a good law school is the most important decision which a young man or woman intending to enter the profession of law has to make before actually beginning the training for a legal career. Therefore, this selection should be based on such information as can be secured concerning the various law schools, the requirements for admission to the bar in the various states, and the profession itself. The primary purpose of the Bench and Bar Society is to establish a closer relationship between the Undergraduate and Law Schools. In doing so, it has constantly endeavored to develop among pre-legal students an ever increasing sense of the high standards of character and responsibility embodied in the legal profession. The Society resolves to stimulate within the minds of the members a correlation of a general practical background with the more specific pre-legal training. Each year an annual Spring Banquet is held, at which time outstanding members of this society and of the Duke faculty, as well as some prominent figures in national politics speak. This year under the capable leadership of our Chancellor, Al Burlingame, and with the able guidance of Dr. John S. Bradway, the faculty adviser of our organization, our programs have consisted of a Mock Trial such as is portrayed above, and a group of addresses concerning the Varying Viewpoints of Law, and addresses by the faculty of the Duke Law School and prominent state and local officials. Through this continuous activity does the organization show its merit.

THE first extra-curricular activity recognized at Trinity College, in 1846, was debating. It preceded both journalism and intercollegiate athletics by about forty years, and for more than three quarters of a century was carried on largely under the auspices of the old Columbian and Hesperian literary societies. In 1915 these were supplemented by the national honor fraternity in forensics, Tau Kappa Alpha, which has gradually taken over the functions of the literary societies in sponsoring intercollegiate forensic contests.

Debate activities during the past year included three intramural debate tournaments, attendance at the three inter-collegiate tournaments, sponsorship of five intercollegiate home debates, and sponsorship of the National Ex-tempore-Discussion Contest for the state of North Carolina. Duke was represented by five debaters at both the Dixie Tournament and the Strawberry Leaf Festival sponsored by Winthrop College in the fall and spring respectively.

A team of five participated in the annual speech tournament and legislative assembly held in connection with the convention of the Southern Association of Teachers of Speech in Atlanta. Activities at these three tournaments not only included several forms of debating, but such other phases of public speaking as situation oratory, extemporaneous speaking, radio broadcasting, and parliamentary procedure.

Active participation in at least three inter-collegiate debates is the chief requirement for nomination for election to membership in Tau Kappa Alpha. The officers of this fraternity for the past year were Eleanor Powell, president; Ed Braswell, vice-president; Samuel Holton, secretary-treasurer; and Leroy Lewis, Faculty sponsor. The fraternity really serves as an honor society for the more than two hundred students enrolled each semester in the Speech classes of the University. The annual banquet of this organization featuring the initiation of new members brought the 1942 debate season to a close.

ENTERTAINING the idea of fostering among the fathers of Duke students a clearer insight into the life, purpose, and program of the University, Duke Dad's Club was organized in 1935. Membership is automatically achieved by attending a Dad's Day program.

Dads' Day, October 18, 1941, brought four hundred and sixteen dads, fifty-three more than last year, to make the event the largest and most successful yet. The weekend started with a spectacular pep-rally on Friday night. On Saturday afternoon, fathers and sons sat together to watch the tense Duke-Colgate game. An outdoor reception, held immediately after the game afforded the fathers an opportunity to meet their son's professors. Dean Alan K. Manchester, principal speaker at the eighth annual banquet, addressed a capacity crowd of 598 fathers and sons. The week-end celebration formally closed with the Sunday morning church service. Officers elected for the coming year were: Mr. Manuel J. Johnson of Staten Island,

N. Y., President; and Mr. Lawrence E. Blanchard of Raleigh, N. C., Vice-President. The responsibility for the active promotion and work of the Club was under the direction of Dave Gaillard, Secretary-Treasurer of the Duke Dads' Club and Chairman of the Dads' Day Committee of the Y.M.C.A.

The major accomplishment of this most successful Dads' Day week end was the establishment of a scholarship in the name of the Duke Dads' Club. At the business meeting following the banquet, it was passed unanimously to establish this scholarship with the following provisions: The fund, to be raised by purely voluntary contributions, will provide at least a full year's tuition at Duke for a boy who would otherwise be unable to attend college. The boy will be given a job in order to further reduce expenses. The recipient of this scholarship will be chosen by the regular scholarship board of the University and may not be the son of any member of the Club. This scholarship will go into effect next September.

HOW to define SPIRIT, that which so clearly identifies a college is difficult indeed. There are so many elements in Duke which go to make up this spirit; we think of football games, dances, class-work, and activities, but then, underlying all these runs an indefinable current which binds all of them together and adds something else of its own which we cannot explain. It is this insoluble combination of distinct parts that will forever mean Duke to us. No one person or organization can truly represent a college; its many diversifications make that impossible. But, as difficult as it is, we have caught that "dear old Duke" feeling of '41-42 in one way—through the Publications. For they have reflected throughout the year the life of the students not only objectively, what events they take part in and what they enjoy, but also subjectively, what they feel and think, their hopes and apprehensions. This year there has been a new and powerful influence in our lives. War has reached out its grim and relentless fingers to touch all people; we, in college, are no longer isolated in a pleasant world of our own for we have established a close and vital contact with the outside world in becoming a constructive part of it. Schoolmates are drafted, Red Cross training units are set up, students actively participate in CAA programs, and we all pay the higher prices and multiplying federal and state taxes. The Publications represent a group of students who endeavor to accurately depict Duke life. Twice a week the Chronicle has presented in an unbiased manner its many vicissitudes by giving a selective picture of the highlights of current happenings. The Duke 'n' Duchess presents its laughing side, the Archive is an outlet for the campus literatti, and the Yearbook, the CHANTICLEER, has taken parts from all its phases and blended them to form an ageless and never-to-be-forgotten panorama of memories. It is thus that each of these publications through the year has faithfully carried out its aim in portraying the life of Duke students. But the purpose of publications is not limited to this one aim; rather, they have a three-fold purpose. Publications give the students an opportunity to create imaginative works without the presence of the usual hardships which are found in the outside world of literature. Then too, this work is a medium through which students may express their abilities and ambitions and thus find a source of education not found in the classrooms themselves. But what effect this war will have on this extra-curricular activity cannot be foretold. Perhaps this and other sources of relaxation might be discontinued for the duration; but their value is inestimable.

CHANTICLEER EDITORIAL STAFF

JACK KAUFFMAN, Editor of the CHANTICLEER

THE CHANTICLEER editorial staff presents the completed yearbook in hopes that you may find as much pleasure in reading and keeping it as we have had in preparing and publishing it. The work of the editorial staff is to prepare and to assemble a book which will not only serve each student as a future reference to his college days, but which will also give a complete record of life at Duke.

Our work begins with the first day of Freshman Week and continues until the finished book is presented to the students. The CHANTICLEER is, then, the result of a whole year's planning and effort on the part of the editor and his staff. We must cover every phase of Duke life, its student body and organizations. We must assemble our work in a manner which will clearly picturize not only the student body during 1941-42, but also the many events which took place during the year.

This year, the talents and interests of students from both campuses were combined in the editorial office. Here we gathered information, wrote articles, and outlined the complete book. While we were securing information for the book, we learned facts about campus activities and organizations about which we had known very little, so working on the editorial staff helps one understand more completely the school and the student body.

Editor Kauffman was assisted by Wiley Obenshain, assistant editor, Co-ed editor Sarah Booe, and the junior assistants, Dick Leuthold, Francis Dale, Bill Lowry, Dick Miller and Bill Kelly. All of these were assigned certain material, and they were helped by the freshman members of the staff.

The photographing was supervised by Henry Warke, assisted by Bill Montgomery and Jim Weber. They covered and photographed major events of the year, including sports, dances, and other social and scholastic events. The pictures were developed and printed by them in our own dark room.

Here is our finished product, the complete record of the year 1941-42 at Duke. We hope it meets with your approval, for the satisfaction of the student body is ample reward for the time and effort which we of the editorial staff have spent in the preparation of the 1942 CHANTICLEER.

Those on the CHANTICLEER editorial staff who are pictured here are Booe, Lowry, Leuthold, Kelly, Miller, and Dale.

CHANTICLEER BUSINESS STAFF

OPPOSING the rumor that has bruited about, the CHANTICLEER Business staff really does work. All we have to produce in the way of evidence to prove this rather rash statement is to present our records of class sittings, amount of advertising sold, the number of collections successfully made, and the number of padded cover orders taken by the twenty-five odd members of the staff operating on both East and West Campuses—all of which put on the pressure when needed to surpass all previous records in a shorter length of time.

As to the actual work of the staff, we started the year off with a bang by cornering 2,438 students for their class portrait sittings. Kay Harpster, Co-ed Business Manager, deserves credit along with the rest of her staff in this very important phase of the year's work.

The advertising campaign was next; Durham merchants will vouch for the statement that this year's campaign was one of the most intensive on record. This year a new idea in yearbook advertising emphasizing the pictorial side of advertising was very successfully launched. Working on the theory that a picture is worth a thousand words, the local merchants took advantage of our new layout in spite of the fact that the war made advertising managers more conservative than in the past. Strouse Campbell, Art DeNio, Les Pinsky, and J. A. Baer, junior assistant managers, did the bulk of the work with sophomores Jim Greene, Warren Grob, and Warren Onken doing their assigned "beats" with much success. This year a new policy of allowing the freshmen members of the staff to participate in the advertising campaign brought results far above expectations. Bill Gulley, Fred Chockley, Bill Houck, Wes Davis, and Watson Stewart were very successful in signing their prospects.

The advertising campaign gave way to the padded cover sales and to collections. The staff once again did an admirable job in these departments. The staff members handling the clerical work and the less attractive phases of the office work deserve a word of praise also. Mary Bankhart, Doyne Maddox, Peggy Taylor, and Jean Howell handled most of the correspondence.

And so through the year, the whole staff co-operates in every phase of the work of putting out a top ranking college annual.

Business staff works on records which include accounts with students and contracts with the publishers and advertisers.

CHRONICLE EDITORIAL STAFF

LOU CASSELES, Editor of the Chronicle.

THE editorial staff of the 1941-42 Chronicle undertook the herculean task of publishing a newspaper different in every respect from its predecessors.

This emphasis on progressive ideas and daring changes has been the dynamic of the new Duke Chronicle.

The spirit of imaginative revision was most evident to the student reader in the form of a radical new front-page layout. Action photographs of important campus events have enlivened every issue, necessitating a tremendously enlarged engraving budget and the addition of a photographic editor. Routine announcements and tedious accounts interesting only to a few have been consistently "played down." The stereotyped, hyper-conservative make-up of past years has been junked in favor of larger, more attractive headlines. By diligent application, the editors have kept any two issues from looking the same.

New features designed to increase the Chronicle's readability for the average undergraduate have been added. The inquiring reporter column, "Quoting the Campus" was instantly popular. The "Calendar of Events" provided a convenient schedule of meetings, lectures, occasions, and happily enough, a repository for the routine announcements which formerly weighed down the front page. Short, terse and witty "featurelets" were sprinkled about the front page for comic relief. An important contribution to undergraduate knowledge of university lore was the feature series on "Duke Traditions."

Besides daring to print all the news just as it occurred, the Chronicle espoused an aggressive editorial policy. Fence-straddling and issue-dodging were avoided like the plague. Editorial writers remained constantly out on a limb on behalf of what they honestly believed to be the best interests of Duke University as a whole.

Major revisions in the technique of editing were less obvious to the reading public. Staff organization underwent radically progressive changes, with junior editors being delegated genuine authority and real responsibility for the first time in history. A return to the issue editor system abolished in 1937 was effected, and for the first time the term "managing editor" acquired real meaning on the Chronicle.

Staff writers Baldwin on the left and Heller, Treleven, and Dunn, from top to bottom, labor industriously on the Chronicle.

CHRONICLE BUSINESS STAFF

THE keynote of operation in this year's staff has been "organization," and final results clearly indicate the greater efficiency obtained. Staff meetings have been held regularly throughout the year, problems have been discussed, and specific campaigns have been worked out. Increased responsibility has been placed on the four junior members of the staff, operating under the title of Advertising Managers. An element of competition was obtained by assigning two sophomore members to each junior and measuring the final results in advertising sales and new account acquisition on a cumulative basis. Despite the competitive element, however, a fine spirit of cooperation prevailed throughout the entire year.

In addition to completing the remodeling of the campus office by installing new copy desks, swivel chairs, and a more accessible and compact "back-issue" file, we have improved working conditions in the downtown office by supplying a desk for the Associate Business Manager, and a file cabinet, additional chairs, and lighting fixtures for the benefit of the entire staff.

Heading the local advertising sales division was Bob Foreman, Associate Business Manager. And working under Foreman, in the position of Advertising Managers, have been four juniors, Dan Moseley, Don Perry, Dick Trumble, and Calder Womble. Without the untiring enthusiasm of these five, Chronicle publication would have been difficult indeed. Completing the advertising staff were eight sophomores: Bott, Haines, Lane, McAllister, McClees, Moore, Snodgrass, and Veal. These eight men were assigned in pairs to assist the four advertising managers.

Particular credit for a very successful year is due Tom Fletcher in his capacity of Office Manager. Jim Dalton and Jason Swartzbaugh handled the very difficult assignment of distribution in highly creditable fashion despite the many difficulties which this work involves.

Kay Dunkelberger, Co-ed Business Manager, contributed in no small measure to the work of the advertising staff and, in addition, headed the most unique and successful subscription campaign in Chronicle history.

Freshmen are shown in a typical scene on Tuesday or Friday counting Chroniques before delivery to the student dorms.

DUKE 'N' DUCHESS

JACK BRUCHNER, former Editor of the Duke 'n' Duchess and SHIRLEY JOHNSON, D 'n' D Business Manager.

AS the Duke 'n' Duchess rounds out its seventh year as an official publication of Duke University, we are able to look back on the past months with pride and pleasure. Pride because we have worked hard to do our job well, and pleasure because of the favorable nature of the comments. It is difficult to please all the minds that congregate in such a cosmopolitan institution but we do believe that we have brought a few laughs and some measure of enjoyment to the majority.

We have altered the editorial policy in some respect this year by making the publishing of the mag a more coöperative affair and by trying to incite new interest both on the East Campus and in the freshman class. We also feel that we have achieved success in that respect and the contributions bear us out. Our magazine has achieved respect throughout the country and we have doubled our exchange lists with other college humor magazines.

In regard to the material we have included in our pages, it is necessary to begin again with an apologetic tone. We can't please all of you, but we have tried to dedicate our issues to generalities about campus life in a humorous vein. We have maintained the necessary minimum of censorship and we have tried to make our brand of humor that provoked laughs in lieu of sneers and to make it acceptable in the home as well as in the campus bull session.

Your suggestions and requests have been honored from time to time and you, of the student body, have been the faction that has guided the editorial policies. We have similarly tried to keep a balance of interest in every issue by adhering as strictly as we could to the theme we set for the issue and to synchronize our editorial material. The planning for cuts and cartoon material is a tedious job and the cry of "deadline" is not a pleasant one to have ringing in your head when ideas are at a minimum but it is a great consolation when the issue finally appears and the comments are favorable. That is what we have been striving for this year in the publishing of the Duke 'n' Duchess.

The staff is divided into two major units, the editorial and the business. This year the editorial burden has been carried by Jack L. Bruckner, and he has been ably assisted by Ralph Starr, assistant editor.

Cit Raupagh and Ralph Starr, juniors on the D 'n' D editorial staff talk over the latest issue with editor Fracher.

ARCHIVE

FROM its wood-panelled cover to its Camel back, the Archive was read this year. Bill Thomas, Editor, with his staff got right down to the business of brightening things up. They changed the cover to represent panelled wood with iron hinges. Continuing the best short story award, they added a prize for the best art photography of each issue. The photography section was the climax of the realization that even Duke students would rather look than read. The stories managed to contain points and wholesome continuity. They all had beginnings, middles, and ends this year. Informal essays, satires, and short plays, of both wacky and dramatic varieties, considerably increased the scope of the coverage and accented the readability of the publication. Of the poetry a good deal over half could be understood by the average man about campus. The prominent BMOC's brought the percentage up to seventy-five. Of the remaining percentage twenty per cent was understood by the authors themselves and five per cent was intelligible only to our editor.

BILL THOMAS, Editor of the Archive and WILLIS SMITH, Archive Business Manager.

Willis Smith, Business Manager, and Virginia Deming, his co-worker Co-ed Business Manager, lead the commercial portion of the staff to bigger and better business. They went to town and told the townspeople that the place to advertise was definitely the Archive. To Hell with the other campus publications. The advertisements were informative and readable and were frequently enlivened by photographs of co-ed beauties and male socialites modeling the latest in college fashions. They fought for subscriptions. They circulated the magazine on the campuses. But most of all they held the purse strings, to use the idiom, of the editorial staff, squelching the sublime artistic, but expensive, inspirations of the literary minds.

All in all the two staffs cooperated in turning out a new super Archive. A more streamlined (except for its Old English lettering), democratic Archive than ever before, the magazine sacrificed none of its high literary standards. But this year the Archive was more widely read than any other Archive in the past. Student approval was unanimous as the literary magazine came "down to earth." And the credit for this transformation is due entirely to the ability of Wild Bill Thomas, Editor. For further biography concerning this scholar, see the Duke Players' page.

ALL-AMERICAN CHANTICLEER

FOREMOST, of course, in the minds of each CHANTICLEER staff is the desire to tell the story of student life on Duke campus in an intelligent and interesting manner—a desire which has led the Duke yearbook to an All-American rating for the fifth consecutive year. Student body acceptance and approval themselves are satisfaction enough for the work that is required to publish a yearbook, but the students are not the only critics, for the CHANTICLEER is a member of the National Scholastic Press Association which conducts an annual national yearbook critic service. Yearbooks from every big university in the country are compared and given ratings accordingly. Each yearbook under consideration is given a rating under one of the following classes: All-American—Superior; First Class—Excellent; Second Class—Good; Third Class—High Average; and Fourth Class—No Honors. Thus, there is also a strong desire in the minds of the staff to receive a favorable adjudication from this press association as well as from the student body.

The 1941 CHANTICLEER, under the capable editorship of Henry C. Brown, III, received the National Scholastic All-American Honors rating as did the four previous yearbooks. This honor continues the string of consecutive All-American ratings and gives the Duke yearbook the distinction of having the longest record of All-American ratings in the country. It is for this honor that we heartily congratulate Henry Brown and the 1941 CHANTICLEER staff.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

THE nineteen-year-old Publications Board is the supervisor of the All-Student Publications of Duke University. Composed of both students and University Staff members, the Publications Board, through counsel, discussion, and observation, selects the editors and business managers, according to their competence and past experience.

The president of the University appoints five members of the University Staff to serve on the Board, along with ten student-elected members from the Junior and Senior classes. All current editors and business managers of Duke Publications are honorary Board members, who do not, however, have a vote in the elections of new candidates. The publications elections are held each second week in May, when candidates present themselves for a personal interview before the Board.

This year the Board was composed of these official members from the University Staff: Mr. Charles E. Jordan, Chairman, Dr. Charles E. Ward, Dean W. H. Wannamaker, Mr. Henry Dwire, and Mr. C. B. Markham. Official student members are Donna Hughes, Joyce Powell, Louise Searight, Joanne Stephens, Al Dunn, George Heller, Dan Moseley, Ken Murphy, Ralph Starr, and Robert Wolff.

PAN-Hellenic life is one of the most satisfying phases of undergraduate days and the source of some of the most cherished memories following graduation. Greek organizations are of benefit to the school where they exist, to the student body who do or do not belong to them, and to the individual within the bond. The organized group is a useful device by which student-faculty relations are conducted since there are fraternity members in both of these classifications. Through these societies the school officials are able, on occasion, to make suggestions to the students and the students to the officials. The presence on the campus of nationally recognized Greek orders draws favorable attention to the institution and helps to spread information about it. These organizations frequently undertake projects for the betterment of the college. Greek life means loyalty and this, in part, applies to the attitude of the members toward the university which he is attending.

By working for the interests of the school the fraternity works for those not members of any group and for those members of other groups. These societies encourage scholarship with awards, take part in intra-mural sport events and debates, and are the activation of much of the social calendar. However, Greek life means the most to, and can do the most for, those who belong to Greek circles. They teach the individual the sacrifice of selfish motives to the interest of the group. Members are brought into intimate relationship with fellow human beings and they must learn to like it. Men and women in Pan-Hellenic groups are given a center for college life and a something beyond themselves for which to work. The fraternity aims to make good citizens of its members.

Pan-Hellenic is built up of all Greek groups and seeks to co-ordinate their activities. What part this section of college life will have to play in the nation at war and in the new world to come is unknown but it is certain that from these contacts men and women have gained an inspiration for peace and for brotherly love.

The petty differences to be found within a fraternity are numerous, but ephemeral; and find their solution in peacefully worked-out compromises. And just as there are differences within the fraternity itself; so are there differences among fraternities. But again we find a bond between the Greeks in the Pan-Hellenic council. Were this analogy to be carried from the University and spread universally, then the struggle which threatens to pit nationality against nationality would cease. And the World would look back on its struggles and wonder how humanity could have been so blind as to retain the causes of the plague.

THE MEN'S PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

THE Men's Pan-Hellenic Council was formed for the mutual benefits of the fraternities and to bring about coöperation and coördination between the fraternities and the University administration.

The Council leads the social life of the University. This year, however, its efforts have not been confined solely to sponsoring dances. In forming the regulations for this year's rush week, the suggestions of the past Council were studied and a plan for rushing was adjusted which made this year's rushing the most economical in the history of the school.

"Normal relations" existed for the first time between freshmen and fraternity men. The Council carefully studied the operation of the Normal Relations Plan and found it very satisfactory. Another big step was taken by the Council in allowing all freshmen to pledge a fraternity, whether or not they have made a C-average in their studies. This plan was worked out on a trial basis with the administration.

Realizing that many parts of its Constitution were obsolete, the Council set about to revise these parts. Many additions were made to the Constitution; one of the more important additions was the Gardner Plan for examining and prosecuting the charges for illegal rushing.

Rigorous pledge training was advocated by the Council, with emphasis on the break away from practices of "Hell-week." Dean Herring spoke, as the Council's guest, to all pledges on the true meaning of fraternities and phases of pledge training.

In an effort to improve student-faculty relations, the Council urged and recommended individual fraternities to hold open-houses for members of the faculty and the administration. The Council this year made it possible for fraternity sections to be open for dating on Sunday afternoons.

WOMEN'S PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

ANOTHER year has passed, and the Woman's Pan-Hellenic Council has continued the main policies of other groups in the past in attempting to eliminate the difficulties connected with rushing, in the maintenance of normal relations, and in the general governing of the Greek letter groups. It has also tried to widen its scope as a functional organization, and to further its working possibilities on the entire campus. This is the third year that deferred rushing has been in effect, and its working was facilitated by the application of new rushing rules formed by last year's council. These, together with the rules for the better maintenance of normal relations during the first semester, have made the system appear as one of definite advantage to the campus at large. In order to further these relations, and to extend to the freshman class their hospitality as a group, two informal open houses were held in the Pan-Hellenic house in the fall by the individual sororities. These functions replaced the reception that is usually held each fall by the council. The council has continued to work on the constitutional change inaugurated last year which relates to the election method employed in the selection of council officers. It is felt that this new method, which will go into effect the year after next, will prove far better than methods previously in use. Once the cycle has been completed the offices will, within certain limitations, become purely elective, rather than selective. The annual dance, held for the purpose of raising money for the scholarship offered each year by the Pan-Hellenic Council, took place in the gymnasium in the fall, and was successful in every way. This year the council has under consideration the idea of awarding the scholarship to a rising, rather than an outgoing senior, believing that in this way, it will more adequately fulfill its purpose.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

BUILT UPON A FOUNDATION RICH IN TRADITION, ABUNDING IN FELLOWSHIP, AND LIVENED WITH SPIRIT, ALPHA TAU OMEGA BLENDS ITS MEMBERS INTO AN INSEPARABLE AND UNEQUALED UNIT BY THE COMMON IDEAL OF FRIENDSHIP.

EDITORS of the Publications, football heroes, Red Friars, and just plain students form the gang that is Alpha Tau Omega. As yet uncalled by Uncle Sam, most of the boys were back at Duke this fall more determined than ever that this ideal would be everlasting.

Let's call the roll for an imaginary meeting on a Saturday night. First we'll have to ferret out the brothers from their favorite haunts. We find Bargeon still interested in the neighbors of the "Shack"; Bopp having forgotten fraternity finances for Doyne; "Deacon" Brown either with Bucie or—with Bucie; Caddy enjoying the freedom of a certain downtown ballroom with his newest "flame"; deciding what the campus needs most, with advice from West, are "Friars" Cassels and Sanderson; "Buzz" Chapman is canvassing Rinaldi's; "Maestro" Courtney, "Benny" Moorhouse, and Weidman are giving out with the latest swing at some dance; Dalton and "Poupakupolis" McLaughlin are getting lessons from "Doc" Smart on how to be smooth; Marshall is still on the telephone from last year.

We guess that: "Scoop" DeWitt is playing chauffeur to "Tillie" Troxell and "Bittersweet"; being very intellectual with his "Duchess" is the "Duke of Paducah" Fletcher; "Mouzon" German, McAllister, Rokos, Tucker, and Wagner are at the Tavern with one table reserved and seats at several other ones; "Punchy" Haines is in the Ark as usual; Stu Johnson and Nicholson are trying to concoct school spirit; Chuck Johnson is waiting for a call from Boston; "Slick" Kauffman is telling his date that he'll see she's beauty queen while Obenshain tells his that he's really doing the judging in place of John Powers; Dick Long and Patterson are steadfastly refusing to join the "Goats Club" whose members include Perry, Womble, Dixon, and Storer.

Probably: the Engineers' contingent, Lyon, Mapp, Beary, and Metz, is roaming over East; Mitchell is refusing to give the girls a break; "Private-to-be" Rouse is writing Ky. Local Draft Board No. 7254; "Buzz" Sheldon and date are trying to avoid the spotlights; "Red" Sheldon is missing as usual; in a certain league Smoot is playing second fiddle to the army; Spieth is practicing track so he won't be late for his date; being loyal to home gals are "Powderhorn" Stevenson and "Cheeser" Byrn.

We wonder if Hank Smith is giving a bridge lecture; if "Tiger" Trimmer is still worrying; if Veal and Willoughby are taking the long way home; about Ozment's and "Col" Byrn's wolfing; about Smitheal picking on "Possum" Gill; about Rute, Hood, Davis, and Leo Long with town girls; if "Natchel" Moore really goes home for weddings; and also where Chester and Carol are. We've called the roll and that's the gang. As diverse a group as will be found anywhere, but with the spirit of old Alpha as a chain linking them eternally. Friendship has cemented the members of Alpha Tau Omega into a common bond of understanding fellowship and close cooperation.

THE YEARS THAT ARE TO COME MAY TREAT EACH OF US WITH GREAT SUCCESSES AND ACHIEVEMENTS, BUT NONE COULD GIVE US ANY MORE HAPPINESS OR MEMORIES THAN OUR UNDER-GRADUATE YEARS AS BETA THETA PI BOYS OF HOUSE H.

NOT to lessen the greatness of one's fraternity, we say that fraternity life—despite the handbook—is not all cheering and good fun; it has its serious, trying, educational moments, even its sad ones. But the times the old grad likes to look back on are the good times, the happy times, the fun-making incidents that conjure up pictures of his former brothers. And it is to that end that we dedicate this writing, hoping it will help you remember the other guy as he was as undergrad. First, of course, there's our plaster-headed prexy, needling his slightly sawed-off roommate who returns with the confidence: "then I says to Wade, etc." And C. E. Blodgett brandishing his report; with mild-tempered John speaking reverently of his "Colley's Folly." Of course, there was Old Shep, all out for Eng. and against getting a new piano; Lucius Lu, excellent with his clapping imitations; and "wingfoot" Branscomb spiriting around with his ideas. R. J.—handkerchief and all—we could never forget, nor our many-named Doc Robinson, little Benny Coyle's big helper, who, in his turn, helped the big blue team by never letting another water boy beat him to the scene. Then there was Sandow—you fill in the rest. Remember Indian Joe, roommate Ben, and co-conspirator Eastman, the ease, comfort, and luxury they enjoyed with ever-dependable Miss Sue; and Ed. Bott, the strange case of a boy who took cuts to get a cut. How about our Jerk in the C.A.A., the Gunner, and roomy Fred Acropolis always willing for a "quarter on the corner." Next door Stevie Wevie eyeing his maps and cautioning the boys, with Louie "catching up," giving the campus a treat between times. To say nothing of Ballard—C. E.'s asst.—and still quite the lover. Col. P. T. Baker looking all alone and lonely without a certain party. Sarge waving a petition, and roomy Fos, one of our better looking wolves, open for suggestions. Cookie thanks you kindly for your attention and—clap, clap—we follow. Hairless Joe Jenkins greets us with his catch word, and it isn't "rosebud." And there's "shoulders" Morrison beating it out on "Shepard's Sorrow," while band-man Bob Hinshaw tunes up his trumpet in the background. Sterner, in the corner, battles with mystery man Robbins for the paper as Allman, off to the side, contemplates Campus operations. Holcomb holds out on bands and those bums the Dodgers while Morrey, our W. & J. boy, listens and comments on Duke life. Lauch, as usual, is being smooth on the phone. Everson goes up to study. Alex and Oppie pass through. And so in a brief sketch is a memory picture of our boys. Years that are to come may treat each of us with great successes and achievements, but none could give us any more happiness than our undergrad years when we were Beta Boys. Working together and sharing each other's successes and problems have formed our Fraternity into a strong and everlasting friendship. The ideals of the founders have made us tolerant and have given us an experience of common fellowship. Together we stand united, brothers in Beta Theta Pi.

WHILE THE RADIO BLARES AND THE TELEPHONE RINGS, ACTIVITY AND COMPANIONSHIP, TOGETHER WITH LOYALTY AND SPIRIT, KNIT A COSMOPOLITAN GROUP, WHICH IS CHI PHI, CLOSELY TOGETHER IN A BOND OF BROTHERHOOD.

1—2—3—When the phone rings, the pledges in a body, mass up the stairs before the count of four . . . Yes, President Roosevelt may be a progressive to some—and, even then, there may be doubt; but to one and all—Chi Phi is headed for the top. Every action being characteristic of this progressiveness. Why, one glimpse of Brother Joe Shockey's streamlined chassis means pulsating—oomph . . . To all the other brothers Brother Hobbs lends that theological influence to keep the boys in line—with, possibly, a brief sermon concerning the "evils of intemperance"; just prior to a Saturday evening of wine, women and song. Lead on, OH RUBYAIT . . . Anytime a Chi Phi is seen, that hearty "hello" will be merely part of our service. But if, by any chance, that hearty "Hi" is accompanied by a "Gotcher any dough, fellers?"—you'll know that that is none other than Brother Bluefield of Kappa Kappa Psi, Sigma Pi Sigma, and last but not least, of Delta Iota Sigma—the latter being a Chi Phi special creation . . . "Nurses" to Brother Lombardi who studies "comparative accounting" during a date; and who is practically a one-man dating bureau for the fellows who also happen to like nurses . . .

Perhaps, he may be cornered by Brother Holmes who will almost invariably be eulogizing his latest girl with a new song. Remember, Why oh Why? He also gives the females another break by his presence on the cheer leading squad . . . "Smooth Apple" Carter is a must at every dance; for it is a swell sight to see him ogling his way in and out the dance floor. (Quietly, of course) . . . "Red Head" Miller of Bassett House fame and "Microbe Hunter" Reisner—both pals, roommates and seniors. They quench their aqueous thirst by weekly sojourns to Papa Rogge's . . . Then, too, we musn't forget Brother Rankin—the latest initiate of D.I.S. since his pretty co-ed friend girl eloped last spring. P. S. He is now drowning his sorrows—in Mathematics . . . From Detroit comes our Alpha, Brother Chaput—the "slick dick," who, for certain reasons, fails to give the Duke co-eds a break. However, he guides the freshmen from the wayward path by helping the F.A.C. "Snyder Test" Phelps is the man who really knows how to enjoy life and live. Brother Phelps enjoys the three prerequisites to the "golden mean"; namely: wine, women and song. Finally, of the Brothers, there is Brother

Entrekin who is imbued with ultra nationalistic fervor, caustic criticism to all non-reformers; and above all things—his own collection of surrealistic poetry . . . Of the pledges who live in the house: There is Pledge Onkin, who works, invaluable (we hope) on the CHANTICLEER . . . Pledge Coad, who has a girl friend up Waterville, Maine way. This buxom and winsome lass receives a biweekly $2.50 phone call from Durham to Maine . . . Hats off to Pledge Welsh—assistant accompanist of the Glee Club. He is just as good on the "Dark Town Strutters Ball," however . . . So you may see us at the Union; (heaven forbid) you may see us at the tavern; and if you are lucky, you may see us studying—sometime.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

THERE SHALL BE NONE SO LISTING AS THE LOVE OF OUR FRATERNITY: THERE, WITH AN ACCUMULATED ENTHUSIASM AND A UNIFIED AMBITION, WE HAVE ACCOMPLISHED OUR HIGHEST AIMS.

AS another voyage on the seas of higher education draws to its conclusion, we of Delta Sigma Phi look back at "Great White Father" Rohrbach doling out fines hither, thither, and yon . . . Spencer's weekly dash to Spartansburg . . . "Squirrel" Ritter being secretive about his town dates . . . "Herbie Derby" Walker racing the army to a January graduation . . . Lone trying to keep his mind on his practice teaching, and make time with his pretty girl pupils . . . "Tex" Melton organizing the 2:30 A.M. club to aid the slumber of the third floor . . . Ed Stetler true to his girl back home . . . Bob Weaver reporting the sights as seen from Epworth . . . "Tom Tom" Thompson, our five year man, heating the house with his steam baths . . . Bill Wartman showing his heels to the opposition on the gridiron . . . "Gildersleeve" Mac Dade expecting to get lost on his way to his new home in Salt Lake City which he has never seen . . . Smedberg rallying our athletic forces around him for intramurals . . . "Punch" Watson's pink pills for "punchy" people finally awakening him after two years of slumbering . . . Widmark's endless search for a fourth at Bridge . . . "Arnie" Brown neglecting his Willys in pursuit of a Phi Bete key . . .

Smeltzer preparing for a famine with his food hoard . . . Burbank chattering gaily as usual . . . "Rev" Fuqua waking up us on Sunday mornings with his shower bath serenade . . . G. Gilmore Robinson, Jr. teaching us his "Joisey" accent . . . "Jock" Murray recounting his Florida experiences . . . "Woody" Carroll with his strong right arm, and ready smile . . . "Hut Sut" Raulerson taking in his weekly "follies" revue . . . Waldo Henson sleeping comfortably (?) under his bed . . . the myriads of streamers floating in the air at the Back and White . . . the numerous homecomings of those that we lost in the draft . . . that luscious turkey dinner at our Thanksgiving Turkey Feed . . . all the good cheer that abounded at our Christmas party . . . the wistful looks on the faces of the "mushers" at our "Mush and Milk" Banquet as they watched the brains of the fraternity eat their steaks . . . the "Sailors" Ball which was its usual tremendous success . . . Our post dance hangout on the Hillsboro Road . . . the kidding the "youngsters" gave those of us who were about to be "caught in the draft" . . . the night of the "great fire" and the "flood," when prexy got soaked . . . the plague of "Red Dog" which nearly wiped us out . . . the reception committee that waited up all night to razz "Wrong John" about his football prognostications upon his return from the Georgia Tech game . . . and the razzing "Gilder-sleeve" took about the same thing, at the same time, on the same prediction . . . the usual heavy artillery just before Christmas . . . those two o'clock meetings at which all the "warped" fellows on the second floor got together to try to find a cure that would straighten them out once more . . . and the numerous other happenings and characteristics which all go into the making of the fellowship and comradeship which is typical of us Delta Sigs. We have spent many happy days sewing gardens of memories for future remembrances and recollections.

DELTA TAU DELTA

OND MEMORIES OF LASTING FRIENDSHIPS AND CAREFREE HOURS MAKE DELTS PROUD THAT THEY HAVE ENJOYED THE PREROGATIVES OF ONE OF THE FEW REMAINING TRULY DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS . . . THEIR FRATERNITY.

A DISTINCTIVE personality when he's alone, a fine guy when he's with the group, a gentleman at all times; this best describes the Delt. There is more to that statement than just simple fact, however, and to know the Delts better, perhaps we should call the roll. Bertie . . . he's late, but finally arrives, coming from his post in the hospital where he finds it hard at times to distinguish himself from the patients. Jimmy Coman's been dragged away from his trees to be at the meeting. Those silver tones emanate from "Gravel-Voice" Dolson, the English Honors golfer. "Student" Farley has just lined himself up with a date, but he forgot her name. That beaming countenance is "Side Parlor" Haines, who is serving his apprenticeship under the Chapter's Romeos. Spence Henery is busy discussing the latest Freshman he dug up over East. "Mac" McKinney seems pretty occupied—probably thinking of Ellen or a "Thermo" problem. "Parson" Mills has just polished up the Packard. "Slide Rule" Miller, another of the Shack boys, is endeavoring to keep the scholarship average on its usual high plane by explaining an engineering feat to the brothers. "Smiley" Moore comes up with "Moore, does it again," And then goes back to spreading good cheer around the chapter room with "Sunshine" Pattridge. "Rebel" Morton is thinking of all the lovely, lonely girls over East. Someone must have come across with his back dues or "Mouseface" Pittenger wouldn't be smiling so contentedly. Or is it a sign of activity at the Nurse's Home? "Jo Jo, the Dog-Faced Boy" is thinking of dating in Dayton. The fellow jingling the keys is "Editor" Thomas, who is trying to get the brothers to read the Archive. "Wahoo" Stengline, after rendering a few songs, settles down to worry about his affairs of the heart. "Killer" Kough, the fellow with the station wagon, has just finished an oration, "How to Lead a Full Life" delivered to the Sophomores. The two late fellows are "Lover" Smith and "J. P. The Ace" Snyder. "Lover" reports on Fraternity conditions, and then gives an account of an investigation of the East Campus grounds, while "J. P." tells about the big deal he has just negotiated.

There you have the Delts: the dating Delts; the "man's men" Delts; the "students"—playboys—athletes, and the parlorboys. They're all good men, and we're proud to have them in the Delta Shelter. Delta Tau Delta again is completing a succussful and memorable year. Our Seniors are leaving a chapter they may be proud to call their own. To the undergraduates they leave a heritage that will grow through the years. They take with them fond memories of lasting friendships, carefree hours, and the knowledge that they have been an integral part of what is one of the few remaining truly democratic institutions—their Fraternity. There is no typical Delt, for each man is an individual man in our unit of characters. Yet each such unit is incomplete without the whole in which he figures, for each is a complement to the rest. Delta Tau Delta home of friendship, bond of brotherhood.

KAPPA ALPHA

IN THE IMPOSING EDIFICE SHADOWED BY THE CLOCK TOWER WALL, EVERY KNIGHT OF KAPPA ALPHA PARTICIPATES IN THE BANTER AND GAYETY SO CHARACTERISTIC OF THE TRUE BROTHERHOOD OF THE TRUE SOUTHERN GENTLEMAN.

THE swords have just been ripped off the wall, a lamp crashes, the radio plays "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," the telephone hoarsely tinkles—the gavel breaks, as Prexy Blanchard, the chapter worrier, attempts to restore order out of chaos. Hen-pecked Prod Davis, Lightning Culp, and Smooth Tom Suiter have just left for Greensboro . . . Rat-face White yells for Polecat Poole, the Rabbi, Angel Young, and Double Trouble Hubbell bicker about the blond blitzkrieg from Georgia, as Head Clay and Pinocchio Rand admire their caricatures drawn by Edgar Bergen's own—George East, whose secret marriage to Dame Rumor hath just been exposed.

Speed Angier admires his name in the Chronicle but flatly denies anything he might have said in an off moment. McKinnon tells the amount of gauze used in the last World War, while Sheep of the chins refutes his statement between gripes. Repulsive Russell allows himself five minutes to read "Little Orphan Annie" while Hour quiz Hickman discusses chances of making the Dean's List, the one for grades.

Daniel grins as Farley tries to talk Kurtz, the mad-cap genius, out of building a second floor garage for Shivers' puddle-jumper. Blackie Johnson worries about his next import while Baldie Baldwin combs his hair. Little Women Godwin and Cow's Hat Davenport grab their books and race to the library after refusing Hinnant's invitation to have a bit of butter-scotch candy. Triple threat Kale advises Vaughan concerning his newest flame as Doc Campbell breaks in a new pipe. Newcomb mumbles about some girl named Lil. Merry Mac Johnston proudly announces another Intramural victory and Little Rock Dennis climbs up into a chair to confirm the report. Al Hoover coaches Steve Ducker on the proper way to attempt a pass. Dimples Hanford and roommate General Withington majestically look things in the face and come to a conclusion. Mac McCormick, of Physical Culture fame, has just told Lovell that the hospital is on fire; Lovell doesn't really believe him. Click Shackelford, from beneath the sofa, takes a candid shot of Hose-Nose Bynam for a cover of Esquire.

Black and Gulledge with their respective slide rules, come over from Southgate to spend a weekend on West. Gang Green wakes up and asks what day it is. Gibson comes in to brush his teeth between dates and gives Wright a hot tip. Swartzbaugh laughs as Boogie-Woggie Glisson rolls down the hall beating feathers out of his pillow. Shyster Horn encourages handsome Dean Smith (who has just turned down a Hollywood offer) and Buddy Foreman in their piggy bank campaign for an approaching party. Pledge Wilson strolls out for a moment but soon returns with a change of clothes. Order is restored when suddenly Dave Willis comes down the hall shouting Paper (Newspaper)!

Thus it goes, a typical eve in the home of rare old Southern hospitality Kappa Alpha Lodge, where everyone realizes that brotherhood is the keynote. In the everyday vernacular "It's a grand old gang and together we'll hang."

KAPPA SIGMA

MANITING FROM ALL SECTIONS OF THE COUNTRY, MASSACHUSETTS, OREGON, OR FLORIDA, MEMBERS OF KAPPA SIGMA FORM A VERY DIVERSIFIED GROUP; YET THEY COMPOSE ONE OF THE MOST CLOSELY KNIT CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS.

LOOKING around the chapter room we're liable to find "Swish" Smith with an East Campus average of .000 while striking out in the Parker league; also staid and solid "G. M." Grant controlling the Ridgewood circuit for another year . . . "Cap'n" Wilson, the guiding light of the soccer team, chatting with "Legs" MacDonough who plans to go all out after three fine years of varsity ball. "Unspectacular" will leave Kappa Sig representation in the Iron Dukes to ole Jake Poole . . . "We hate Holts," but we're sorry to see E. P. go, cause "Deacon" can't scrap alone . . . Down at the other end of the chapter room are several of the others: "Chief" who is solid in Cincinnati, and his roommate, the original "Mole," still rootin' for Boston (pronounced Bosstun) College . . . Eddie "Heroes are my meat!" Moppert talking to "Pop" and John De Reamer about that little girl he met last night . . . "Spaghetti" Jones who with seven pounds more would be the draft board's delight . . . At the card table is "Bruno" (he's always there) trying to eke out a victory over cafe society, Doyle and Wells . . . kibitzing we have Jaime with a Puerto Rican slant on the game, and Waldo Powell, section six, probably the best usher on the campus!

In the center ring are "Main Liner" Hessler, Bud Barrett, and "I want a date" Newsham, listening attentively to "Congo" Meara's premature campaign for the Mayorship of Jersey City.

The only faces missing are "Jeep," who worried all but three hairs off his head getting that "B" average, George "Bo," who left at mid-semester to join Dick Stull at the Duke Hospital, "Joe Cadaver" Himadi, and "Happy Harry" Hutson, these last two keeping their records intact at Med.-school.

Walt Curtin and Jim Tompkins are fightin' over who was the real discoverer of their "find" . . . "Doc" Smith and Gil "mention my name" Hand are under oath to make their average . . . "Pappy" O'Donnell of Coffee Shop fame is trying to pacify "Pledge" Malcolm in his bone rollin' and card playing feud with those sentimental gentlemen, Felty, Johnson, and Lipscomb . . . Is it true that Glen Miller is playing for the Kappa Sig-Sigma Chi "Saddle-shoe Stomp"? . . . Oh yes, in the phone booth is Long

John Chapin getting Ginny's permission to use his (?) car, and just going out the door are Colyer and "Harpo" Anderson, Harpo with half the library under his arm, and Colyer on his way to Rinaldi's . . . Down the corridor come floating trumpet notes far sweeter than anything Gabriel had to offer, which could only issue from "Satchel-mouth" Westover's room.

And so it goes. We think they're a swell bunch. To the seniors who are leaving, we bid a regretful "Goodbye"; may you all drop back and see us as soon as possible—and the chapter room is yours for the night of the Carolina game. Wherever you go, whatever you do, we wish you all the luck in the world. You're real "Kappa Sigs," and we're proud of you.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

HERE ARE FEW THINGS MORE SACRED TO A FRATERNITY MAN THAN HIS MEMORIES. WHEN JUNE ARRIVES AND HE LEAVES SCHOOL, HE TAKES WITH HIM HIS MEMORIES, TO BE LIVED OVER AGAIN AND AGAIN THROUGHOUT THE YEARS.

THE fraternity man never forgets his brothers; in his mind, he forever recalls their antics, their trials, their disappointments, and their successes. When a man has hard luck, his brothers stand by him and help wherever they can; when he triumphs, they share in his victory.

This year, more than other years, perhaps, the men of Lambda Chi Alpha, the wearers of the jeweled crescent, have a large stock of memories to take with them to their homes all over the nation. They have the new chapter room and new section to look back on; they have the rising power of the fraternity throughout the year. They remember the able leadership of Brian, the deft handling of finances by Leuthold, the quiet efficiency of O'Neill as house chairman, Platt's struggles with the minutes and proceedings of the meetings. They will laugh at the wild stories of Baumgardner and Brooks, the solemnity and humor of George Kelly, Lutz's original telephone greetings, Herter's geniality, and Smoot's initiation into Tombs. They will take pride in Cameron's post as president of the Y.M.C.A., in Somerville's stellar singing, and Stedman's scholastic record. They will recall with a tinge of sadness and much pride, Hostetter's departure for the naval air service in February.

They will remember Cottle's pipes and Glee Club work, Snodgrass' labors for the Chronicle, the Tavern, Turnege's, and Rogge's parties of Johnson, Draper, and Stone; Hill's top-of-the voice bids and playing, the linguistic brilliance of Hopwood, Clymer's frantic search for a room and his nickname of "the stray cat." They will recall the rush party at Turnege's, where Fisk and Maynard joined the fold, and the pledging of Earl Moss. Sisek's riding accident, Snow's new policy on studying, and Turner's sudden inspirations will furnish laughs for the summer.

There will be Hench's quiet presense, the flying lessons of McCune, Gilchrist, and Wilbur, Rocap's trials and labors as intramural manager, the pin-ups of Schenkmeier and Ulman, Kandel's frequent excursions to East Campus, Bill Kelly's casino fanaticism, the naval ROTC work of Phillips and Dalton, Herky's "USO" deeds, Primel's athletic brilliance, Marshall's large (?) classes and his operation, Crane's new Chrysler, Gerber's labors with the Ducat, Scott's high-pressure salesmanship, Welton's breadth, and Bill Henderson's solemn appearance, all to be remembered and retained with interest. And so it's nearly June once again. Fourteen men are leaving the brotherhood of Lambda Chi Alpha by graduation. Several others are going to medical and law school and will no longer be an active part of the fraternity. But they will always be remembered, for each has left his mark and made his contribution to the progress of the group as a whole. Each member comprising the brotherhood of Lambda Chi Alpha offered a variety of interests and activities; all contributed to present a united front of mutual cooperation. As does every year, this year brought its changes, but the spirit of the Fraternity will be constant and lasting.

PHI DELTA THETA

ALWAYS PROUD OF THEIR NAME AND GATHERED TOGETHER IN A SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD LIVE ALL OF THE WEARERS OF THE SWORD AND SHIELD, THE MEMBERS OF PHI DELTA THETA, A SOCIETY OF BROTHERS ACTIVE IN ALL WALKS OF LIFE.

OUTSTANDING as a fraternity and as individuals are a group of men who call themselves "Phis." Whether on the campus, the athletic field, or over East, Phi Delta Theta is always ready to do its part. National defense has called a number of patriotic men from us, but our ranks still remain strong . . . Leaving the stronghold of good old House B will be "I'm the most colorful person on the campus" Brooks, and John "Daddy, I did it" Bruckner. Good luck to engineers Fleming, J. Galt, and Crofts. The sophomores and juniors are once more on their own with the leaving of "Apple" Kirsch. The football team and the fraternity will miss Wade "Prexy" Talton, Mike Karmazin, and Winston Siegfried. Tom "Baldy" Montgomery has a beauty salon in mind. The Tavern will have to get along without "Jiggs" Mugele, while East Campus tries to forget Jack "I'm on the ball" Ochsenreiter. "Turtle" Richmond leaves the finances in good shape after taking his cut, while Bob "Cap't. Duck" Wilson leaves for bigger and better clay courts. Adieu, also to the Shreveport twins, Bill Nesbitt and Ed Hickman. No more muscular feats from "roomies," "Gong" Senhauser and "Wendell"

Willets, and so we pass on to our proud and colorful underdogs, the juniors, seniors of next year. Representing the class of '43 on the football field are juniors Jim "Punch" Smith, Dave "Sunshine" Porterfield, and triple-threat midget, cheerleader Steve Rusk. These are followed by Esquire's contribution to the Lacrosse field, John "Irish" Dugan, where he, "Wings" Wells, and "I'm the meanest man in Durham" Dick Smith battle it out for varsity honors. Washington's local boy, Frank Bond, and Jack Patten do their bit for the baseball team. Not to be overlooked is "Howie" Galt, Duke swimming team's end man. Seen daily in publication row are Harry "The Blast" Treleaven—Phi Bete pledge, Ralph "Shooting" Starr—man about town, Strouse "Soupy" Campbell—of East Campus fame, and the Samoan Islands' only Phi Delt, E. E. "Death" McMorries. But the class would not be complete without "I've made arrangements" Ran Few, Rufas "Corn Fed" Dodd, New Jersey's bad boy, Bob Utzinger, "Screen Test" Oestman and Art "round on the edges and high in the middle" Meyer. May the sophomores continue their fine record and the new pledge class rise to new heights. And so reads the roll of Phi Delta Theta, as some of the brothers leave us and intrust to all remaining, the torch they bore so high and the position of respect they cherish so dearly. Some were students, others not, some were athletes, while others made activities their goal; but all were gentlemen . . . these men we call our brothers. Phi Delta Theta, we salute you! We're of Phi Delta Theta, the knights of the sword and shield.

Though faces have changed some, the banners of fellowship, leadership, and scholarship still fly from the tower of House B. All for one, and one for all; joys, honors, burdens, and successes share our campus and life's field.

BEARING IN MIND THE AD-VANTAGES OF A WELL KNIT GROUP OF SINCERE MEN, THE MEMBERS LIVE TOGETHER, WORK TOGETHER, AND PLAY TOGETHER WITH A LIVELY SPIRIT OF "III, HI, PHI PSI, LIVE EVER, DIE NEVER."

IN spite of our losses to the Army, Navy, and Air Forces the majority of the members of N. C. Alpha returned in September. This year will forever stand out in our memories with the threat of selective service competing with the dread of final examinations.

But let us look at the year in retrospect . . . the dances, picnics, open houses, and "p. j." parties. The Monday night midnight meetings, rush-week, hell-week with its minor and major task nights and Saturday evenings at the Tavern all share among our pleasant memories.

If we had entered the engineers' sanctum we would have seen Prexy Cochran intent upon problems of thermo-dynamics and room-mate Waldron dreaming of Connecticut. There was "the Shub" in his Buick trying to choose between a Tennessee import and a transfer cheer leader. While Gene and "Ors" were always available at the Goody Shop. The former resembling an ad from Esquire and the latter playing the man-about-town. Nor shall we forget "Stoney," just back from White Sulphur Springs, leading Henshaw's pin-up serenade, or Freeman with a far-away look in his eyes, and Dale dressing well for work and play.

Beeson was our living proof that mytheail Mercury did have his superiors, and Lee this year exchanged the governor's mansion in Puerto Rico for the Gothic walls of Duke. "Mickey" attended Pan-Hel. meetings and waited for Snow, Pries and "Milt Gros" Meixner shared the glory of our homecoming sign. Huntington squired Nancy and headed Religious Emphasis Week. Keister divided his time between a zoo major and the near East. Read adjusted our finances, gathered his "A's," and bought baby many a new pair of shoes. "Emily" was applauded by all in The Male Animal.

As we sat in the chapter room "Hum Drum" tore his hair as Clow put ashes on the carpet. Anderson, "the omnipotent," dashed in with, "If you had only seen Seattle." Wright and Mullen sat with riding boots propped up on chair backs telling horse stories. Ropp looked in for a moment on his way to a round of golf. And Whalen appeared from the phone booth, an able substitute for Sayre.

Sales had been called the orgy of the Southgate frosh. In spite of "Doc's" efforts the convertible remained in Findlay. Norris turned amateur insect collector. Messenkopf continued to beat 'em at eight to the bar. Finally "Dutch," the Indiana Don Juan, told us all why Loidle was the greatest guy in the world.

Since its founding at Jefferson College in 1852, Phi Kappa Psi has stood for brotherhood and good will. In 1934 Sigma Delta, a local fraternity on the Duke campus, adopted these ideals when they accepted a Phi Psi charter. This year, more than ever before, the local group has upheld these purposes of the founders. A more closely knit group has seldom been seen. We had a group representative of thirteen states, each with his own views of life. Yet we worked together, lived together, and played together. All for one; one for all.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

NEAR TO THE HEARTS OF THE MEMBERS OF PHI KAPPA SIGMA ARE ENSHRINED THE RINGING WORDS OF THE FRATERNITY SONG. HAIL TO THE, PHI KAPPA SIGMA, FAITHFUL FRIEND! THINE OUR LOVE AND DEEP DEVOTION, TILL OUR LIVES SHALL END!

THE Phi Kapps are again on the march! Along with a fine group of brothers who graduated or were inducted into the Army, Nu Chapter lost its beloved red-walled chapter room. The opening of the year found us situated amid new surroundings in House Z with a redecorated and refurnished chapter room. We began the year with anticipation—and perhaps with a bit of nonchalance that is typical of all Phi Kapps. The installation of the phone, that nerve-center of Phi Kappa Sigma, on the second floor has been of no little assistance to this would-be anthologist, for each time that familiar B-r-r-r-r-ring echoes through the halls six aspiring young Casanovas make a head-long dive, while the cry of “Timber” resounds in the background. The call is probably for “Smokum” Stover DeLong, the most recent victim of Dan Cupid, or for “Taid” Dunn, who cautiously peers from his always-open door and whispers softly, “If it’s for me, I’m not in.” By this time Don “Lover” Finch arrives breathlessly, inquiring, “Is that Eunice?” We still remember that serenade. Perhaps the call is for ex-milkman “Slick” Kirkwood, who is at the time diligently filling out Dr. Hart’s newest “Friend Finder,” seeking to discover whether he and one of the Aycock lassies have anything in common. It might be, however, the daily call for Mort “Scoop” Bloxom, whose interest in a cute East Campus brunette is surpassed only by his love for “Ole Virginny.”

During this excitement the sound of hob-nail boots announces the arrival of “Ranger” Bob McGough, who is now getting his car (?) in shape for the ’43 Homecoming Parade. The call was for “Muscles” Maxwell, the boy who takes rub-downs with hog-grease, and it’s the feminine voice of his “blond bombshell.” Amazing that it isn’t for George “I-can’t-put-out-the-fire-I’ve-started” Frass, senior intramural manager, from his flame in Aycock (she thinks), who is currently pursued by two Phi Kapp engineers, Bean and Morrison. Incidentally, rumor has it that she claims to have been dated by each and every Phi Kapp. (We wonder.) In the chapter room downstairs we find “Prexy” Hank Warke, Assistant editor of the CHANTICLEER, vainly trying to adjust the vic so as to play Tyre’s theme song, “Murder in Payton Hall." In a far corner of the room Tyre and Brennan are devising new schemes for perfect weekends with "Babe" and Norton, while "Texas" (the Good Doctor) Rowe broods silently over "Damit" Duncan. Others in the chapter room include Bill "Wahoo" Joy and Jack "She's-hot-for-me" Harvey. Jim Shea, competing for the best-dressed-man title, is also around, as well as Jim "Off the beam" Barrow, who just won't give that swell "Disputanta Devastator" a break. At this point Don Wall pops in. Rumor has it that Don will soon lose that pin to some lucky girl. Bill Heath and Bert Evans, two hard-working engineers, have done us the honor of one of those all-to-seldom visits to the chapter room.

WHEN THE GAFEL FALLS
AND THE MEETING BEGINS, THE BROTHERS OF PI KAPPA ALPHA GATHER INTO THE ESOTERIC COMRADESHIP WHICH HAS RETAINED FOR THEM A PLACE AMONG THE FOREMOST FRATERNITIES OF DUKE CAMPUS

TEN o'clock Monday night . . . It's meeting time, and Prexy Wilson, between symphonies and musical practice, wonders where all the boys are . . . In between his wisecracks, Ackerman adds a page to his cleverly composed fraternity scrapbook . . . Booream still continues to bluster to faithful "Y"-man Walenta, who is winding up his last membership drive . . . Robertson dons his boots for meeting, says "Aw, shucks, this sure will be deep" . . . Caudill digs out from under his baseball and bowling figures and grabs for a tie, while Drumm continues to worry some more about his love life . . . Vogel, in high spirits, boasts of his resolution to stay "on the wagon."

Ross suddenly decides to brush up on his Rush Week line, and all but drives Earnhardt wild in the midst of his evening hair massage . . . Al Wilson goes right on telling the latest speed records between Durham and Winston . . . Cozart opens his eyes long enough to check the security of his Confederate flags, and figures he still has a minute more to sleep . . . Jones, already seated near the door in hopes of a phone call, keeps up a constant chatter about being backed by 2,000,000 young Methodists . . . Tuke bends over double to complete his evening's laundry by ten . . . Smith gurgles with glee as roomo Kefauver is "shocked" when he lands in the electric chair.

Radford arrives; he divides his time between Morrison and CHANTICLEER duties . . . McGimsey agrees that there still may be time for a hand, as Vann Secrest calls for a fourth for bridge . . . Hutchings censures "Four A" Campbell for dragging down the scholastic average with that "B" . . . Brower tries to sneak in with his weekly supply of "girlie" magazines . . . Bauer still supports "dem bums" to that last strike.

Chips in hand, Dempsey and Groome plan strategy for the coming session of "Monte Carlo" . . . In a far corner, Sheridan patiently attempts to teach "Cracker" Parks the words of "Marching Thru Georgia" . . . Paige raves on about Miami and Texas, plans a motion for a real beach party . . . Barnett, between phone calls from Betty, makes winning football sound as simple as Braswell's diagnosis of the latest world events . . . "Touchdown" Redding comes in looking happy; "his" newsreel has reached Quadrangle Pictures . . . Birkelo and Ruark work on their latest song until the last minute . . . just for spite.

Gould calmly cruises in on his bicycle, threatening to fine Pettibone for juggling some records . . . Link is beginning to feel right at home with his psychopathies nowadays . . . Miller, stiff from hanging pictures of horses and Kentucky on the wall, leads the gang asking to be excused . . . Browning and Tuscany go right on planning their next "Y" retreat . . . Montgomery enters, gaping at his most recent photographic masterpiece, and is greeted by cries for "Laundry" . . . Evans and McGovern emerge from their huddle on Intramurals . . . Taylor arrives last with our weekly revised budget, . . . The gavel falls.

OVER THE HEARTS OF ITS MEMBERS RESTS THE DIAMOND OF PI KAPPA PHI, A SYMBOL OF GAYETY AS WELL AS SOBRIETY, COMRADESHIP AS WELL AS COMPANIONSHIP; A SYMBOL TO FOREVER ENRICH THE MEMORIES OF ITS PROUD WEARERS.

THE brothers were gathered in union fraternal, with adviser Borland giving a lecture paternal . . . When on the door was heard a rap, that woke the Archon from his nap . . . Stayed the Chaplain from his prayers, and took the Secretary unawares.

Brother Warden opened the door, and, soon was standing on the chapter room floor . . . A long haired poet with lyre of gold, who sang this thing of Pi Kapps bold. BMOC Gardner, SGA voice, relaxed from the CHANTICLEER with his pride and Joyce.—Satterfield, our auctioneer, dealt in tobacco, abstained from beer.—In Frostick's room to Frostick's woe, his roommate installed the USO.—Jersey's Edsall, "t. p. heir," lured coeds with a blasé stare.—Liquor, scotch, rye, and gin, Maines has found the way to win.—Of football fame was Artie Vann, W. C.'s slogan, "Vann's the man."—Girls his passions tried to check, but who can cope with Koperek.—Big Ed Jones, that engineer, became a "dear brother" the first of the year.—Owen Johnson, Attleboro, Mass., enjoys dating any Southern lass.—MacAdams is indubitably, pride of Belmont (comma) N. C.—Boger's faithful to Marie, at least as far as she can see.—Greenfield still went out with Ginny, e pluribus unum.—Kenny Starr hardly ever goes out, he stays at home like a good boy scout.—Jimmy Greene, the let's go boy, was never one to not enjoy, in proper places being seen, dallying with a campus queen.—D-U-K-E, D-U-K-E, Ray, Word Clark, Cupids arrow, finally, hit the mark.—"Photo" Groome clicked his shutter, campus queens went flutter, flutter.—Flutist Small had a wild night, he spoke to a waitress without being tight.—Pinky's stock with girls kept mounting, as lab instructor for accounting.—Elder carried his pin around in hopes that Bessie might give in.—Johnny Cline, our future deacon, out with twins is prone to weaken.—Blueblood Adams, Durhamite, insisted all pledges must be white.—Marty Johnson, Yankee boy, with town girl hearts was apt to toy.—Brown of his car was always talking, but at this writing, he still was walking.—Dewitt Nunn of Winston-Salem, "Badminton champion" critics hailed him.—Lover Powell owes his start, to that marriage course under "Horny" Hart.—The elder Dodson, ukelele, filled the halls with music daily, while little Dodson, gambolled far, running around in his brother's car. -Moylan now for nearly a year has drunk his health in bottled beer.- Nelson Stephens, BOS, ran Phi Eta Sigma with success.- Wilson's photos of his Betty, resemble something done by Petty.-Baltimore pin up by Donald Herder left Duke Coeds yelling bloody murder. -

Purcell's Novella not so tonic when Phi Mus agreed to go platonic.—Morganthau (recordings, Kate) thinks an organ recital a good hot date. Barringer of the FAC, achieved his "V" for victory, by hardly ever being seen, except in company of a dean.—What is it they say? that "rhyme does not pay,"- Well anyway—Burma Shave.

PIGA ALPHA EPITOL

FROM EVERY SECTION OF THESE UNITED STATES COME BOYS WITH DIFFERENT BACKGROUNDS, BOYS WITH DIFFERENT IDEALS, ALL DWELLING ONE WITH ANOTHER IN UNITY, LOYALTY, AND FRIENDSHIP—ALWAYS BROTHERS IN THE BOND.

“DING DONG” Bell, lovable lad with the laugh and the legs . . . Prothro, the Hulk, captain of our card team. “Hunch” McClure our M. T. in love again . . . Scott—if I only had a filing system to keep my dates straight . . . “Wings” Moffett soaring around trying to keep the Pan-Hel. functioning. Grimes, The Human Sweater, and Kiely-Party Inc. hoping the score will not be to big. Green sharpening up his dating knife for Knight, our intramural coach . . . Murphy, we hated to see the air corps get you as much as the East Campus did . . . Moseley and Richardson, Brooks Brothers; Boys—What will they wear next . . . Burrows, so easily en “Hance”ed . . . Gunner Walsh, so I did slip once . . . “The Geech” trying to figure out where Moseley went last. Hedley, the boy with the Sexy Car . . . “Knuckle Knose” Varney, back in the swing of things . . . Gloomy Gus still sleeping in the chapter room . . . Larson—maybe if I bought a restaurant. “Whaletale” Snyder still telling his corny jokes . . . Steel—whose girl shall I date next . . . “Athletic” Strobe—suppose I haven’t got a uniform . . . Moore, the monogram boy from Miami . . . Webster, miscellaneous liabilities outstanding . . . Someday we will know him, Hill . . . Bishop—I think that it is a good political move . . . Horton and Hart wandering around trying to find someone to serenade. Hardesty parting both of his hairs and looking around for a date . . . Harrel and Baumgartner sitting one out . . . Fletcher, our drummer boy . . . Lane, the ’43 edition of T. V. . . . “Little Geech”—where are the keys, Frank . . . Gorgeous George Massenberg, the boy with the probing proboscis, or the prominent profile. Sneaking Deacon Allen the boy with the horn horn . . . Billy Witcher—I have just memorized the last two thousand pages . . . Reamer, our pearl diving boy from California . . . “Dog Face” Canine, our blushing beauty . . . Ingham, I’ll make it thirty-eight tonight . . . Gould and Lamb—Old Ohio . . . Jungle Jim Bowman, our lover, if you don’t believe it ask him . . . Doug Baxter our star pitcher . . . and he plays baseball also . . . Bill Stewart with another package from home. How lovely of him to ask us all in. . . . Bob Morris, Wing’s roommate and keeper of the hanger . . . Rick Miller a swell gent and a good athlete . . . Don Larson trying to decide whether it would be cheaper to buy a taxi or start dating on the campus . . . Little Wedge trying to get up a short game of chance. . . Johnny Overman—it Lukens like he's in love at last.

"Leo the Lion" still guards the entrance to the S A E house, filled with fun, good fellowship, mutual understanding, and fraternity spirit. A fine bunch of friendly gentlemen—known to East, to West, and to freshmen; a group where tolerance and common interests run unbridled. Living together, working together, planning together—all have made S A E proud and co-operative.

There we have it. May our years outside House E prove as enjoyable and profitable as these within, and may Sigma Alpha Epsilon continue to ride the crest.

Sigma Chi took great strides this year in straightening the chapter room kinks out . . . The new radio which replaced the lemon we have had for many years proved to be a good investment . . . There is still talk around the section of opening a card room . . . The same spirit of Sigm Chi prevailed all year in spite of the fact that the draft sword had threatened to cut a number of the brothers' college careers short . . . The dance was postponed because of many conflicts, but when it was finally held it proved to be quite an affair . . . Pin-ups and cigars punctuated and burned chapter room confabs . . . Most of the Seniors left with great weeping and promises to return for every homecoming in the years to come. There we have it—Sigma Chi—intramurals, the little A, a columnist, House EE, and pin-ups. Each a brother in a bond of friendship and mutual understanding, a knitted group of loyalty.

EARNEST IN FRATERNITY OBJECTIVE, SINCERE IN UNTIRING LOYALTY, AND CONGENIAL IN LIVELY SPIRIT, THE SIGMA NU'S PASS ON CHERISHING THE TRUE BROTHERHOOD AND INFORMALITY OF THEIR BELOVED SECTION AND MEMBERS.

ANOTHER bright year for the boys of the five armed star rolls around and finds the same congenial spirit as in the past. Of course, our "Big Operator" Don Simester is busy counting prospective votes for the coming elections and "Bub" Wolfe is thinking of some means to plug his campaign over the radio. "The Fent" Harrison is happy now that he has succeeded in getting pinned up and shares sentiments with Guy Schlaseman and Eben Cowan who are also of this merry group. "Moneybags" Hillier is still making money having a hand in more rackets than a tennis player and "Spider" Schuler is cleaning up the chapter room looking for stray pennies. We find Commander Bob Anthoine and Ernie Crane playing a rousing ping-pong match on the patio with Dave Ambrose and Dick Baker chirping moral support. "Gazelle" Lineberry is looking for new fields to conquer in the chug-a-lug game now that all of Papa Rogie's customers have been defeated. Bill Horton, Warren Irwin, and Bill Osborne, between their love-lives, manage to get their daily exercise with the cards. "The Bird," Tokie Mettam is still in top place with his flowing coiffure although the opposition of late has been pressing hard with Art McIervey, George Peters, and Eric Schoonmaker Dougherty ready to tie theirs in ribbons any day now. Bill Schuchardt, "The Pool," Bill Vanderpool, and Bob Tope still patronize "Tomaine Pierce's" swank eating establishment and are having a hard time finding customers. Art Mason is having maid service again this year, but this time it is to wake him up for class. In a jam session in the card room we find Claire Wallace doing some hot licks on the trumpet while Roger Sticht is keeping a steady beat with the drums. Meanwhile, Bruno Zirato looks a little dejected as he recalls the sweetness and finesse of Heifitz. Little Willie Alspach and "Honest John" Stuart trot up to their rooms to listen to the latest swing records. At this point Bill O'Connor, Howie Walker, and Bill Mills, probably three of our biggest operators, are planning an orgy at the Eno River and Hal Soule is the first to sign up since he can't make Dotty see the light. "Coke" Winter refuses an invitation and swears that it will be Dean's List this semester. A little later on in the evening as the boys gather around in a bull session we hear of Hooper's exploits on the high seas. Dave Strater, not to be outdone by a mariner's story, gives us a real one on the wilds of Maine. Bob Keller decides it's about time to get back on the books and saunters off to his room. "Rapid Robert" Mac Innes dreams of his loved one back home in Pennsylvania and Jack Hawkins is taking "The Bird's" cuff measurement to make sure that he is in style. Our journalist Matt Rae reminds Eddie Kiesch that it's bed time and our boys find their way to bed. As has always been the case, true brotherhood and informality reign in our beloved section.

Rich in fellowship and cooperative spirit, Sigma Nu progressed this year with a feeling of brotherly interest, characterized by versatile activities and abounding achievements.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

THE FINE-COVERED SECTION THAT IS SIGMA PHI EPSILON HARBORS BEHIND ITS GOTHIC ARCHWAY AN ATMOSPHERE DISSIMILAR FROM THE OUTWARD APPEARANCES AS LAUGHTER AND FROLIC WELD TIGHTLY THIS FRIENDLY BROTHERHOOD.

"HELLO, Sig-Ep, three floors of fun and frolic. You say that it's the CHANTICLEER calling and that you want to talk to Lew Jarrett . . . Never heard of him . . . The prexy . . . well why didn't you say so, you mean the 'eye.' Sorry, but he isn't in now, He and Athletic Al are down at the Little A. Office hours down there are perpetual . . . You would like to whistle the patter with anyone . . . Well, it's like this chum, Beard Read has defied Horace Greely and has gone East as usual, yea, the Goose was with him. Nipper and Spider have moved bag and baggage down to the Y.W.; and Art Miller is out trying to raise enough money for the last payment on that ring. Moe Minor, Metz, Allen and Prytherch got in a bridge game on the train coming back from spring vacation and haven't been heard from since . . . Anybody at all . . . Tough luck, chum, can't do a thing for you, since Ford joined the circus as the only two legged wolf in captivity, and Bud Max got his season pass to Pop Rogge's the place is very quiet. Cliff is still in the hospital after that conscientious objector to the B.O.S. refused to go to rat court. Captain Byam and Kohler left for the big leagues yesterday; and Fletcher and Fox are running an art school over in Giles House. Who, Giddes? No, he's a mechanic for Fearless Lassiter's Hell Drivers. You might find Zane, Clancy or Harmless Harmes down at the gym getting healthy. Bennett and Mother Joe are doing missionary work over in Epworth as Cummings went Bohemian all of a sudden. Jesse Clamp stepped in a puddle last week and never came up, guess all those keys were too much weight—Phi Bete being the last straw. Harpo and Greesy Creesy are down at the Center taking in their two hundredth consecutive show of the season . . . By the way, what was it you wanted, anyway? . . . A little dope on the members . . . Can't do a thing for you chum except maybe tell you that Sandy Johnson and Jack Heath are still arguing over who is the best dressed man in the school, nobody's going to win by a nose in that league . . . Not much doing around here, very quiet . . . Who am I, me, I am from the typing bureau, and I have been here fifteen weeks trying to catch Heller and Bates of the famous Sig-Ep Special . . . Haven't the heart to foreclose though, they are such a swell bunch of fellows . . .

Highlights of the year find the brothers throwing a Sadie Hawkins day party out in the Duke Forest with a capacity attendance. Then there were those good dances, with Sig-Ep setting the pace by having the first fraternity dance of the season the night before the Colgate game. J. C. day went off in fine style with a full flourish of bow ties and stripped socks. Plenty of side picnics and two excellent kiting parties filled out an active year. A goodly number of alumni returned for football games and dances. After a counting of heads it was discovered by the army authorities that Sig-Ep had a virtual majority in our nation's air corps. So goes the government, so goes Sigma Phi Epsilon to help our country "Keep 'Em Flying," for the great cause of universal freedom.

ZETA BETA TAU

ALWAYS THE CAMPUS WILL RECOGNIZE THE ZETA BETA TAU BOYS FOR THEIR ACTIVITIES, OUTSTANDING AND VERSATILE. WITH MEN KNITTED CLOSE TOGETHER BY THREADS OF MUTUAL INTEREST AND COOPERATION, Z B T STANDS UNITED.

It is Sunday morning in the section. It is still early, and no one has been in the chapter room as yet. Suddenly, the door is thrown open and two forms hurl themselves at a spot in the center of the floor. There is a mild tussle, and then a hand holds up what was once a neat newspaper. "I got it! I got it!" shouts Terry Brenner, the playful sophomore who along with his recent adversary, Al Bernikow, provides more mischief than two alley cats.

About five minutes later, another bathrobed figure enters, his head is neatly wrapped in a towel. It is Al Tenenbaum, who has dragged himself out of bed at such an early hour to work on a future set for Duke Players . . . or maybe to dash off one of his daily letters to Syracuse. The next pair to enter are Cubby Baer and Les Pinsky, junior business executives on the CHANTICLEER. For a change Cubby is up before his weekly special delivery letter from Connie has arrived. He mentions this to Les, and "Smiling Lester" smiles as only he can. Next enters the second floor clique, Red Backer, Murray "The-man-who-owns-one" Gartner, and their all-important sidekick, Hub Kanter, claimer of a most brief, but agitating term as prexy. The group that has been everywhere, seen everything, done all there is to do. For full particulars on how to spend your leisure time in college, send a stamped, self-addressed, etc.

Next we have the members from Siberia: Joe Katz, who acts on the Tenenbaum-built sets, Jay Maxwell, and Felix Kurzrok, two of the East Campus wolves in the Z B T lair, and Bob Puder, who is the "sine qua non" when it comes to arguments—all kinds of disagreements happily provided. Then there's Marshall Raush, Murray Brandt, Don Littman, and Jack Katzenstein . . . all good sophomores, tried and true. If you have any problems about women, these boys will etc.

Into the crowded room now enter the broad shoulders of the Z B T athletes, Mort Heller and Ray Nasher . . . two men who are prominent possessors of numerous keys, trophies, campus offices, and aching muscles. Then comes the scholastic honor men . . . Ben Harawitz, who is more proud of his tennis, Bill Levy, who would rather play golf, and Joe Gutstadt, who spends most of his time with the Duke Players.

Among those now missing from the overflowing chapter room are Art Jaffey, Chuck Hoff-berger, Martin Parker, and Leon Feldman. The first three are busy getting the next issue of the Chronicle's sports page in shape, and the latter is thinking about that girl in Columbia, while he's waiting to go to lunch. Incidentally, if there is anything you would like to know about trips to Baltimore and Pittsburgh and the women to be found there, the sports boys can tell you everything. Others who have not put in an appearance are Seymour "Beau" Green and Edgar Marks. Beau's activities are best described by his nickname and East Campus. Edgar, on the other hand, confines his activities to the pre-med. society and photographing the "photogenic" Z B T's.

UT THOUGH THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH AND CHI ALPHA BECAME A NEW ALPHA CHI OMEGA, THE SPIRIT OF LOYALTY AND TRUE FRIENDSHIP THAT BROUGHT THE FIRST GROUP OF GIRLS TOGETHER STILL LIVES ON IN THE HEARTS OF THE WEARERS OF THE GOLDEN LYRE.

OUR leader and inspiration is president Bette who wears that sparkling diamond as gracefully as she does the Alpha Chi lyre. Upon her right hand is always smiling Dot, vice president, who runs from East Duke where she has been signing up for our room to that study-date in the library. On her other hand are our two petite brunettes—Secretary Jean, always in perpetual motion, with hiking, dancing, and W.A.A. board meetings, only stopping to write a letter to “Bob,” and our other fly-by-night, treasurer Carol, will either be balancing the books or balancing on her toes in Modern Dance. Pan-Hel. representative Marge, rattling away at her typewriter. Lady of many lives, Ida Mary can be a college president’s wife for a Duke Player’s production and still converse convincingly with her Latin romeo. Alpha Chi of the raven tresses, Grace is seen running to classes or riding like the wind. Peggy had her hands full being rush chairman this year and being rushed around at dances by the engineers. True lady of the lyre, music lover Betty flits from Glee Club to Choir to Music Study Club and back again. We missed Phil this first semester, but she came back to join us and Alpha Chi Omega in January. Our Alpha Chi with the Boston accent, “Johnny,” is our alto whose life is accompanied by the ringing of the telephone and constant calls from the Lambda Chis. Then there is musical Margaret who botanizes here and there and everywhere. Following the lure of her lovely Hawaii, Alice shows us just how a hula should be done! Dancing to stardust, our absent-minded Ruth comes out of the clouds to tap a dance routine or bestow her beaming smile on the meeting. Our only senior, Vera Jean, will leave an empty place this year, when we lose her to that lucky high school Spanish class. Sara, one of our sweetest, is our Alpha Chi from Cuba. Attending summer school just for fun, Evelyn keeps the light of learning burning for Alpha Chi Omega.

Rushing from installation the last week in January into Rush Week in February, we found ourselves with the first and best pledge class of Alpha Chi Omega, twelve wonderful girls. We are proud of tall pledge captain Jo Mae, and her crew: Jackie, Tacy, Ginny, Faith, Harriet, Arlyn, Helen, Rosemary, Bobby, and the two Peggy’s, Hostetter and Rake. Winning the sorority basketball cup was our first feat of the year. March kept us busy furnishing our new room in the Mordecai house until it was just like home, fireplace and all. It was the end of a successful “first year” when we initiated our first pledges in April! Our new initiates were banqueted at the Hope Valley Country Club, the scene of our installation banquet in January, and the year’s cycle was completed.

EVER ENDING ARE THE SOURCES OF GENUINE PLEASURE AND TRUE FELLOWSHIP THAT ABOUND IN ALPHA DELTA PI. THE HAND-CLASPED SYMBOL OF THEIR DIAMOND PIN IS ONLY AN OUTWARD SIGN OF THEIR ENDURING FRIENDSHIP.

IT'S an Alpha Delta Pi photo album! Bearing the sorority crest and packed to the brim with snapshots of the girls who wear the diamond-shaped pin . . . It lies on the small table just beside the chair in which we shall sit to glance through its pages.

Page one . . . and Sally appropriately occupying the place of honor . . . no wonder we have grown to love her as sorority president . . . she has been ideal . . . Smitty next . . . how happy we were to welcome her back in September . . . she is snapped here with her beloved treasurer's book . . . then Chessy and Fiquet comparing their last A T Ω dates . . . Betty Fowler stepping out of Alspaugh . . . Bucie meeting Werner on the chapel steps.

Another page . . . Joyce and Booe, Sr., forgetting their pinups to participate in countless activities . . . Woolley, lovely as ever, giving orders in the clinic . . . Fran and Alice discussing the highlights of a recent weekend at Chapel Hill . . . Laura ambitiously writing for the Archive . . . Marty Bullock, still cherishing her Beta pin, faithfully attending Duke Players' meetings.

Page three . . . Rabbit, splendid in cap and gown, exercising judicial powers . . . Polly, just back from Social Standards meeting, surrounded by her admiring freshman class . . . Tommy keeping Bob and the K A's busy . . . Barry dashing about the countryside in Johnny's car . . . Smitty gaily holding open house in 235 Bassett . . . while across the page, Beauty queen Fountain entertains West Campus.

More snaps . . . Luane at a Sandals meeting . . . Nancy graciously presiding over Brown House . . . Hixie deep in literary work . . . Nannie Lou beaming at the control of Howard's airplane . . . Ginny smiling her winning smile.

The last page . . . Mary Lou and Marty chatting in the East Campus Dope Shop . . . Izzy looking beautiful over a psychology book in the library with Tom . . . the inseparable "Giles House Sara's," the misses Bunting and Lambert, on their way to Sophomore Class meeting . . . Phyllis entertaining us all with interesting tales of her summer trip to Mexico.

One last click of the camera . . . our lovely room in the Pan-Hel. House . . . tan walls and ceilings, our popular records and our vic . . . girls on sofas, chairs, couches . . . words and music from the hearts of thirty loyal sorority members . . . "I love the pin you let me wear, I love the Greek that's written there, I love the diamond and clasped hands, I love the best pin in the land, I love to wear you close to my heart, For I love you, Alpha Delta Pi."

These are not merely the words to a song, but the feeling which rings in the heart of each Alpha Delta Pi, the wearers of the diamond.

Third row: Bloom, Hockfield, Algranti, Blume, Dworsky.

WHEN EACH YEAR COMES TO A CLOSE THE GIRLS OF ALPHA EPSILON
 PHI LOOK BACK ON HAPPY MEMORIES; THE SENIORS WITH REGRET KNOWING THEY SHALL NEVER ACTIVELY RETURN TO THE CAMPUS; THE UNDERCLASSMEN WITH ANTICIPATION FOR THE YEAR THAT IS TO COME.

"WE'RE a Happy People" might be our theme song any Monday night, or maybe "What's the Good of Moonlight?" Tonight, the gang is out full force, and it seems a good idea to precede the meeting with an hour of songs. By way of beginning, "Ma, I Miss Your Apple Pie" just about expresses the sentiments of all present.

Dean Pessar is willing to tell the world that "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" . . . while Debby, our "Scatterbrain," rushes through a rendition of "Busy as a Bee," and dashes off for another meeting . . . Harriett G., to whom we sing "You Ought to be in Pictures," prefers to hear "It's June(y) in January" . . . Frannie, "Sweet and Lovely," finds "Sand(y) in my Shoes" is more to her liking . . . Sara Lee lives "Cross town," and, with a twinkle in those big brown eyes, she tells about "The Men Who Come to Our House" . . . Oh, doctor, Shirley Bloom is Mark-ing time till she sees that "Moon Over Miami" again . . . Micki says "I'm Thrilled" about her initiation and rise to new scholastic heights . . . Marjorie, friendly little blonde bombshell, gives us her usual "Hi, Neighbor" . . . Zelda is still "Sweeter than the Sweetest" . . . and ever-cheerful Rosalie is "Happy as a Lark" tonight, as always . . . and when things get tough, it's "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" for Frost . . . Blume looks dreamy over her "Summer Souvenirs," though the winter ones weren't so bad themselves . . . Phyllis, off on another diet, croons "I'm Sorry for Myself" . . . and Gwennie's just had a letter from Lee saying, "Good-bye, Dear, I'll be Back in a Year" . . . then the group sings "You are from Another World" to Lilly of the charming accent.

Now we sing of all the "Memories" we have shared together, and they have been many . . . after-dinner coffees for the faculty, followed by inevitable accusations of "You Talk too Much" to some of our members . . . rushing, where we said as a group, "Love Me as I Am" . . . re-decorating the room and making it "Lovely to Look At" . . . the antics of the pledges, each one of whom complains, "Everything Happens to Me" . . . open houses or, in other words, "I See a Million People" . . . suppers in the section . . . and "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?" for this assessment or that . . . doing our part for national defense . . . these are the bonds between the girls of Green and White, who have seen another year fly happily by . . . we'll be "Faithful Forever" to their memories, even while anticipating many more years of fun and friendship as A E Φ girls . . . indeed, "These are the Things We Love." These college memories, these sorority associations, and these treasured experiences add color to the drab and life to the lifeless, for college shines from their light.

ALPHA PHI

NLY FOREVER, "FORGET ME NOT MEANS TO ME, THAT THROUGH THE YEARS . . ." ALPHA PHI HAS SUPPLIED COVETED PLEASURES AND LASTING MEMORIES. PRICELESS ARE THESE GEMS OF REMEMBRANCES; OUR DAYS OF COMPANIONSHIP IN THE SISTERHOOD OF ALPHA PHI.

WE of Alpha Phi will remember this year for the friendly company and unforgettable hours spent together.

Looking to the future is always thrilling, yet memories shared seem to bring back the past in vivid reality. It seems just yesterday that we chatted cosily with professors in our Standards meetings, just yesterday that we made merry at Cobel's Cabin. Twelve more months have fattened the Alpha Phi Scrapbook with our doings, rich with good times. Here is Mickey, our prexy, with gavel and perplexed expression. And here's Vice Pres. Quinnie . . . personality and a song bubbling forth. On the next page like stands Rich, our honor woman. Orchids to our White Duchy and Pan-Hel. President! Our sweet and lovely Vee sits pensively chewing a pen, beaming the fate of Med students. There is lawyer Wills, Alpha Phi's proud gift to the Bar. We pause a minute to gaze in admiration at Dr. Beatrice Nahigian, resplendent in her starched white.

This page, labeled Juniors, seems stuck together . . . it's Connie bringing back news from Pan-Hel. meeting, and Henri proudly showing her bee-u-ti-ful Lambda Chi pin. Leddy is seen trying to untangle herself from those keys, so that she can tear off to another meeting! Caroyl, our charming social chairman, looks on convulsed with her own inimitable laugh.

There is a demure pose of Ludt, who efficiently plans wonderful things for the chapter. We congratulated Ruth on her fine freshman dinner and picnics this year. Norma poses beside a train (as if we don't remember those trips to N. Y.!) Here is fair Annabelle wearing that medal we mentally pinned on for duty well-performed as Rush Chairman.

Sophomores! First is southern belle, Kay, of the sweet smile and lovely voice; Stackhouse, in the middle of a happy, hurried sentence, pausing long enough to let us paste her and that Sigma Nu pin in! What's this? Three clay feet and Fran good-humoredly dabbing away, while the photogenic Miss Gault dreams of getting her wings. Our black-haired beauties from Brown, Annale "Jitterbug" and Alice "Mademoiselle" handsomely decorate the next page. Over here the paper is crumbling—just Watty's dry humor! Joyner posed delightfully, ready to swing into one of her crack bowling shots; Libby smiles happily at us. Here's Sylvia with her winning smile, and our "Spark-plug" Erwin . . . peppy duet if we ever saw one!

"Let's pledge a toast before we part,
One that shall bind us heart to heart
Until we meet again."

Seniors long to return to the sorority life which the undergraduates now keep bright.

 E'ER TURN TO THEE . . . ARE COI'ETED STRAINS RECALLING THE FELLOWSHIP MEMORIES AT DUKE TO THE WEARERS OF THE TRI-STARRED CRESCENT OF TRI DELT, THOSE WHO WILL FONDLY REMEMBER DUKE.

THOUGHTS of section life in Alspaugh, roughing it at cabin parties, bull sessions, mid-night feasts, swaying to the Tri-Delt waltz at our pledge dance, cramming for exams in smoke filled rooms, Florida house parties . . . these are the thoughts that will come to us as we turn the pages of our scrapbook, and live again happy days at Duke with . . . Prexy Leonard pulling the heart strings but not the pin of a certain Chapel Hill Sigma Chi, while Ballard isn't "Dunn" being the sweetheart of the same frat over here . . . Tucker singing "He's Just My Bill" . . . Angela, with her Shavian appetite for vegetables, sitting quietly in the corner, Read(ing) all about love and beauty . . . the Chapter's surprise at Maxdie acquiring a new interest in tennis her senior year . . . Watch-that-budget-Mitchell looking for a fourth or a fool . . . King, a practical queen . . . Cooper asking questions, giving the answers, and quoting Robert's Rules of Order . . . Bracken keeping Jarvis on the straight and narrow path, while her path, by the way, has some very irregular curves in Florida . . . Lucke, our truly representative sophomore, except when she does her "Monkey Act" . . . Distler hiding that literary brain behind clouds of laughter . . . Conor being absolutely "shocked" with it all, but very happy . . . Jeff walks like a goddess and talks like a queen, but plugs until she gets those Duke 'n'

Duchess ads . . . Dottie Watkins keeping them all worried except herself, but complications do set in during the weekends . . . Russell, the "chocolate bar kid," still trying to get in her room . . . Calvert knitting all sorts of things for that little white house and the local yokel . . . Firestone, reserved for greater things . . . Hodge, our Indian maid, cutting out hearts for her scrapbook . . . Mary Neel, the lively worm in the Georgia peach . . . Honey Bowne(d) to Tom . . . Miller, the Worry Bird, solving everyone's problems but her own . . . Bentley leaving us with "I'll be S.A.E.(ing) you" . . . Judy still Drumm(ing) with Corman . . . Winn helping the stocking and hat industry, and, incidentally, giving connoisseurs of beauty a real treat . . . Toby tearing her "hairs" out over rushing . . . Ella Mae, our North Carolina belle . . . Dale, that's me and I'm tired; Dykes, last entry.

Tri-Delt pledges this year were: Margaret Allard, Steubenville, Ohio; Barbara Axton, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Lavonne Budge, West Palm Beach, Florida; Patricia Cone, East Hampton, Connecticut; Dorothy Evans, Washington, Pennsylvania; Janet Horton, Geneseo, New York; Jean Horsley, Miami Beach, Florida; Lillian Lamborn, Schrewsbury, New Jersey; Margaret Lukens, Atlanta, Georgia; Mary Belle Overstreet, Jonesboro, Arkansas. And so the Tri-Delts have the best pledge class ever.

TRAVELED FAR, AND I TRAVELED WIDE, O'ER FOAMING WAVE AND RUNNING TIDE, AND CAME UPON AN ISLAND STRAND THAT LEGEND CALLS "THE WISHING LAND." DELTA GAMMA—VISION OF FRIENDSHIP AND LOYALTY APPEARED BENEATH AN ESOTERIC, MISTY CLOUD.

AND as I found myself enchanted by the spell of the magic isle, out of a misty cloud a vision of Delta Gamma appeared before me. Cloaked in the soft haze that gradually grew bright and clear, I saw Bobbie, our gracious president, tall, blonde, poised, steering our course with calm efficiency and inimitable grace . . . Mary, Dot, Laurie and Jody, those freshman advisers with senior troubles, turning the frosh into lovely Duchesses . . . Whimsical Patty with stardust in her eyes, constantly running to the dope shop. We knew the reason why . . . Rudisall, smiling mysteriously, and hiding her sparkler again . . . Waters, S.G.A. president, brilliantly managing a Lambda Chi pin along with all her other duties, and holding down a Phi Bet key to boot . . . Ginny, pouring frantically over the chapter budget, realizing why financiers climb fourteen stories . . . Anne and Ruth, so pleasantly surprised at winning Ivy honors . . . Lovely Nancy, the perfect lady, paradoxically driving her roomie wild with that newest boogie-woogie record . . . Deanie and Mildred, sprightly roommates always good for a laugh and always managing to get one . . . Lack-a-daisical Donna with her breezy flair for journalism—a five star columnist one of these days . . . Bess, our North Carolina rush chairman, always charming and cordial . . . Smiling Morgie, unpredictable, always looking for something new and different

. . . Spangler, our raven-haired Pegram beauty, gay as the proverbial lark . . . Mary Anne, inspiring the cheering squad and being inspired in turn . . . Terry-D, torn between Duke Players, Hoof and Horn and you know who . . . Libby, delightful Pegram prexy, an asset to any group at any time . . . Shirley, smooth and chic, ever looking as though she just stepped out of the bandbox . . . Jo, friendly, intelligent, indispensable, president of the "Y" and definitely among the best . . . Kay and Cay, modestly walking off with Sandals and doing it very well . . . Highsmith, such a musical personality, sharing that honor with our piano artist, Dora . . . Gilliam, carrying on the red-head tradition in the D G room for 1942 . . . Gloria, ever cordial and genial, always ready to flash a smile. Slowly the vision turned again to a hazy mist.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

VERY THETA KNOWS THE COMMON JOY OF COMPANIONSHIP WHICH CHARACTERIZES THE ATMOSPHERE OF NUMBER 310 P.I.N.-HEL. HOUSE, AND THE MANY HAPPY HOURS TOGETHER HAVE RIPENED INTO SINCERE LOYALTIES AND FELLOWSHIP FOR THOSE WITH THE THETA PIN.

TEA-TIME in the lovely, candlelit Theta room . . . warm sincerity drawing you in . . . small eddies of gay talk . . . Zipper, sparkling-eyed Parisian fashionette, knowing where to put the accent in French as well as in dress . . . she's talking to divine LaVine, who can't forget an interesting Boorman, no matter how much phone wires jangle her name . . . sudden burst of enthusiasm near-by . . . debutante Sister and super-secretary Peach, full of plans, pep, and follow through, are selling their latest ideas to the two Pats: number one, Prexy Pat; number two, Pat, the White Duchy twin of Peach . . . dark beauty in the corner with Marilyn (Glamour magazine wasn't mistaken!) and Sally, Michigan queen . . . more of the same with reddish-golden haired Adrienne, whom the law school is still trying to sway from the narrow path of the pin-up; and with blonde Helen, whose friendliness is famous . . . on the large sofa under the glowing mirror, Sherry, with her quick smile and understanding for winsome Marshall's "troubles with Tommy" . . . Libby, who keeps steady company with the "hat" off and on, and Carol, who spends her time writing and Chuck-ling . . . Ann B., with her beautiful hands and soft voice . . . dark-eyed, vivacious Carmen Georgia, talking about Ravel's "Bolero" with Margie, who is known for her many B Θ Π friends and her sense of humor . . .

Shirley, whose soprano voice expresses her clairvoyance and loveliness, chatting with Jeschke, brimming over with fun, spirits and good sense . . . poised Jean, who never fails to uphold her reputation for good taste, laughing with Ann H., the kind, helpful friend . . . and Hutch, always straightforward, genuine . . . well-groomed, smiling Fran, officiating at the tea table, with piquant journalist Jo handing out the filled cups . . . blonde Margy (that quiet, far-away look in her eye, is it for one Harpo?) and over-the-top-with-pep Mickey have just drifted across the room to tell Prexy something, leaving the phonograph to Banky, the all-fraternity-favorite, and McCauley and McKisson, the Scotch Swingsters of Bassett . . . Ruth and Ebie sitting nearby, calm and pleasing to the eye, while back in Alspaugh, men are lined up six deep . . . Betty B., explaining why she likes picnics by streams and her latest device for keeping weekenders for two weeks . . . Julie, telling how she does the same in Nevada . . . Betty L., "chairman-ing" the tea very efficiently . . . quiet . . . candlelit reflections in the mirror . . . voices blending, " . . . in our memory, dwells always." And so as the year ends the seniors look back with regret, knowing that they will not return to the campus; but are confident that those left behind are true and worthy Thetas.

TRADITIONALLY KNOWN AS A FUN-LOVING BUNCH, THE KAPPA DELTAS HAVE COMBINED THEIR SMILES AND PRINKS INTO COVETED MEMORIES OF CLOSE COMRADESHIP AND BONDS OF LOYAL FRIENDSHIP—NEVER TO BE FORGOTTEN THOUGH MANY YEARS MAY SEPARATE US.

IF you drop into our chapter room, you will find that something, any old thing, is always happening; however, there are a few things that have lasted straight through '41-'42. These are the bits which make the K D fellowship. To show you what we mean we will give you some inside dope on all the crew.

Per usual, we find Bettie Alexander knitting endlessly on that bright green sweater . . . Vandy reminiscing about convertible snooping around Swampscott, picking up Harvard men . . . Lucie O'Brien in a fog, commuting between Washington and classes . . . Little Eleanor hiding in a coat of armor, consisting of a Pi Kappa pin and a K D badge . . . Stroupe free-lancing after a two year "Penning" . . . Anne Morrison, wistful for Swampscott and that heavenly sea food . . . Mary Alice Warren taking "Corporal" punishment from Ft. Bragg . . . Lura with a "Hello, Joe, What do you know?" . . . Spangler sitting on the budget to hold it down . . . Gordy batting 1.000 in the Chapel Hill league . . . Becky Barnhill conveniently forgetting the Study Topics quizzes and then looking insignificant about it . . . Stoutie and Etzel discussing the vices and virtues of the new man they have found, while Price maintains he's nothing but a drip . . . Smoothie Scholes even getting a horse to cooperate on glamour . . . Weezie Davis moaning, "I've just gotta study, you all" . . .

Ann O'Rourke proving that dynamite comes in small packages . . . Connie Campbell feeling more and more like the library lizard . . . Whitson setting us off with that infectious grin . . . Plyler, capable Prexy, and Jan Cook conspiring over most anything . . . Peg Hendrickson bringing confusion with her hoof and horn . . . Jane Nobles and Ellen Rankin comparing home pin-ups to campus pin-ups . . . Jean Williams: "I guess you know what happened to me" . . . Little Wrenn explaining to Joyce, "It's your wit, not width that counts with me, Width" . . . Barny still damp after the latest swimming expedition . . . Bip cultivating her delicate voice to the strains of "The Good Ship Titanic" while soloist Betty Ann Hall looks on with dread and horror . . . Margie Barber looking like Alice In Wonderland in the midst of the milling throng . . . Glad who has "altared" things, hurrying home to fix supper for Scotty . . . Connie Sherill setting an example of what the well-dressed woman should wear . . . Trudy looking cool, calm, and collected in the midst of all the uproar.

Such are the elements that make us what some have called a "homey little group" . . . homey, but happy, for in Kappa Delta we have found true fellowship. And in Kappa Delta we will continue to remember the love and friendship which has been so prevalent.

ALL THROUGH THE YEAR, ONE OF MANY PARTIES, AFTER DINNER COFFEES, BULL SESSIONS, HONORS, PROM-TROTTING AND LOADS MORE, EACH GIRL OF THE FLEUR DE LIS HAS ADDED HER BIT TO THE FUN, FRIVOLITY AND SERIOUSNESS OF SORORITY LIFE THAT IS KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA.

"WE unlocked a door with a golden key, stepped inside to a room blue and blue; found waiting there the Kappas fair, whom we now present to you." . . .

Here's charming Cosler, our pres, whose versatility is surpassed only by her efficiency and popularity . . . beside her, "Dick" Clarke, who adds smart sophistication to her wit . . . and Datin' Dabny who has led the class of '42 to its grand finale in such stupendous style . . . Barbara Dow who left us first semester to make her debut way down South, Birmingham way . . . Kay Harpster who still has time for weekends in spite of the local social whirl . . . "Mike" Seafeld, queen of the air, keeping her feet on the ground just the same . . . Bobbie Williams whose cool and limpid brown eyes win their victims both here and at home . . . Gracious Goddard who carries Kappa honors WAA way . . . Christie and Chappie, Ouiji experts until it comes to close discrimination between their Florida men.

You may have heard of: "Jill" showing the "play girls" how its really done . . . "Boots" picking winners in the Marines as well as the Derby . . . Sheena liking her "Dutch" treat . . . Reyecraft wanting no apple a day to keep the Med School away . . . Varnes keeping up with her summer school traditions . . . Barb Flentye, our dark and sultry brand of femininity . . . or the Bassett trio, Ketchum, Holcombe, and Medlicott, strong rivals to Pegram's famous house of beautiful women . . . Mary Nelson Freels, our selection for the ideal All-American Girl . . . Betty Allen who likes her Captain in football uniform.

Lest we forget: Dot Wearley's patrician poise . . . lovely Peg McCormick "Mooning over Miami" and the Air Corps . . . Helen Miner making the most of her time in every way . . . Maddox dividing her time between Bragg and WSGA . . . Mary Gus Chronieling her dates . . . Koukel's shining example of the perfect pin-up . . . Nancy Squired by one and all the BMOC's . . . Audrey enHancing the entire campus . . . Stribling keeping us all on key.

And now as wel close the door guarded by the traditional Old Owl, we hope that we have given you a complete sketch of this congenial group of girls.

Kappas new pledges are; Margaret Bacon, Nancy Baumgartner, Thalia Bell, Frances Anne Brimberry, Vivian Driver, Geneva Eldredge, Mary Geyer, Polly Green, Dottie Groome, Carolyn King, Doris Lavington, Barbara Luesonhoph, Anne McClenaghan, Mary Anne Morrison, Frances Randolph, Virginia Sellers, Barbara Tearse. With this, the best pledge class ever, the Kappas are secure in the foremost place among the sororities of the East Campus.

LENDING INDIVIDUAL PERSONALITIES INTO A CONGENIAL GROUP OF GIRLS, PHI MU PROVIDES A SOURCE OF UNFORGETTABLE MEMORIES AND LASTING FRIENDSHIP FOR ITS MEMBERS. EACH YEAR BRINGS NEW AIMS AND GOALS FOR UNISON AND ETTER-LASTING COMRADESHIP.

SHOW your passes to the guard as you enter the gates of Camp Gamma Epsilon of Phi Mu here at Sleepy Hollow. Step lively to headquarters where General Barrett and Lieutenant Colonel Eder are plotting rush maneuvers. On the outpost perches Colonel Merritt squinting for espionage—she gives a cry of dismay as she sees only something dark approaching on the horizon. Populating the pup tents, we find . . . Major Griffin corresponding with a camp in Alabama to try to get a man in this woman's army. Captain Gordon reminding Upchurch that an army travels on its stomach and not its heart. Lieutenant Fischer working for closer coordination between the Army and the Navy. Lieutenant Turner wants to retreat—sees men advancing. Corporal Martin taking the barbs out of wire to make it more artistic so that the scene will be more pleasing when the men come back from maneuvers. Sergeants Cox and Helmich marching buck privates Allison, Harper, and Dugger to the guardhouse for rank insubordination—they refuse to let their academic life interfere with their education. O. D. (Officer of the Dogs) Powers out with the "mutts" tracking down stray men. Hostesses Murray and McCreary getting ready for the Satidaynite Jamboree, featuring the Can-Can-Conga by Smith and Aeugle—the attraction is too much for the neighboring camps to miss.

Neaves soliciting funds for cross country camp visits; her heart is at Duke now, but we don't know what her next move will be. Bendall gives the first donation with the understanding that Bragg is the first stop. Thomson has recently appointed herself head of troop transportation in order to maintain closer contact with the Louisiana front. Curry designing men's new uniforms—shoulders are softer this year. Burchett is being court-martialed for being A.W.O.L. at Duke; we are hoping a naval base will be established near Camp Gamma Epsilon so that she will be inspired to stay out of the guardhouse. Alden and Bunker are doing K. P. duty for confiscation of men. Mess Sergeant Franz is supervising Chef Demming to balance the diet instead of the budget. Zerfass is building an air raid shelter to protect the fraternity pins. Barrett, Fischer, Edwards, Towe, Thomson, Upchurch, and McCreary are exchanging their commissions in the army for ones in the "marital wars." But now hurry outside the gates before Edwards and Towe begin harmonizing on "Taps." G'bye now . . . see you in two and a half years.

EVER TO BE FORGOTTEN, THE GOLDEN ARROW OF PI BETA PHI IS THE SYMBOL OF THE CLOSE FRIENDSHIP AND UNDERSTANDINGS OF THE AIMS AND GOALS OF THE SORORITY. DIVERSIFIED PERSONALITIES OF EVERY TYPE BLEND TO UNIFY THE PI PHIS IN COMRADESHIP AND LOYALTY.

ABOVE our door in the Pan-Hel. House rests the golden Arrow of Pi Beta Phi, a symbol of the close friendships and understandings of the Sorority, cherished by every member.

Once again we come to the stronghold of Pi Beta Phi, and the gang's together after another week of varied activities. Fran, our smooth and efficient prexy, has called the meeting to order. And there's Davy taking time out from training all her little fishes, while Kathleen expertly handles our finances along with those of the W.S.G.A., and still keeping up with Roess, one of those potential Phi Betes. Connor, our hard-working rush captain, tearing her hair over rushing, but managing to sandwich in a bridge game now and then. Seawright and Cit, wracking their brains over the latest bit of dirt to pep up the Chronicle and Duke 'n' Duchess. And Bandy, with her thoughts in the far-off Phillippines, much to Angier's disgust. Mixson, wishing the shortest distance between Duke and Maryland weren't so long, and Abbie, ever faithful to her Phi Delt, Johnny. There's Tarp, Annette, and Mary in a huddle over plans for a coming horse show. Babby, putting the chapter in an uproar over her latest remarks. Our beauties, Bassett, Noel and Dee still looking lovely thru it all. Roommates Craig and Gloria still pondering their numerous male troubles? Who's in the lead now, kids? Fulton blissfully thinking of Chuck, and Janet with her heart still in Richmond. Nina, Bev, and Sara really hitting the high spots around campus this year. Those two beauteous redheads, Helene and Lucy Jane, getting together over a new joke. Our smooth Brown house contingent, Doyme, Brooks, and June. Fay and Marie Louise putting their piece in with that good old Southern drawl. Blondie Upshaw in a corner talking things over the latest in chairs and pictures to re-decorate the chapter room a little. Not to forget Kitty, our new and peppy transfer from Macon. So here we are, a group of individuals, each with different activities, aims and ambitions—each with her own distinguishing personality, yet at the same time, a group unified in comradeship and loyalty, all held together by the common bond of our sorority, its aims and goals. We know each other by the golden Arrow and the chain worn by every Pi Beta Phi as a symbol of this unity and love for one another.

WEARERS OF THE TRIANGLE MAY COME AND GO, BUT THE SPIRIT OF SIGMA KAPPA ENDURES AT DUKE. LIVING WITHOUT DULL MOMENTS, THE GIRLS OF 309 P.I.N.-HEL. HOUSE BIND THEMSELVES WITH MEMORIES OF LASTING FRIENDSHIP AND HAPPINESS OF GAY SORORITY LIFE.

THE recollections of Sigma Kappa's Alpha Psi Chapter of 1941-42 are like a gallery of pictures. Some are a little on the surrealistic side, perhaps, but all are colorful. Page and her embroidery (looks mighty like hope-chest stuff to us!), makes a nice domestic scene, while Prexy Jodie enjoys Duke between week-ends at Princeton . . . High pressure Forsburg, our prize rusher tries to start a sing practice . . . a rapid action piece . . . Eddie on her way to a late date . . . a conversation piece . . . Passmore, "and then I said to him," chattering away to Whitney and Brinson and Minner, who are comparing fraternity pins . . . a picture of reflection, Ellie, whose thoughts are far, far away . . . dark-eyed Hilda, Florida's gift to our chapter is really a picture. Doesn't anybody want to live in Pegram? Wooster, no bigger than a minute makes her presence known by that giggle, the only one like it in captivity . . . Rush Chairman Hodgson being very smooth about the whole thing . . . Dean's list Lelia, our quiet member (and with that red hair too). Pictures of despair . . . Betty Herrman, "I wish Duke's Mixture would leave me alone . . . we're just friends" . . . and Mary Lib . . . "Now I'm going to have to start collecting fines, and say, about those group pictures" . . . Blanna, at last a full-fledged member and her inside information . . . Lovely Jackie, our clothes horse, helps Knight worry about Jaw-urge and the Archive and anything else that needs worrying about between week-ends . . . "Yes, Indeed" Shan, our rhythm girl getting hep on "Your Duke Parade" . . . Pipper, to no one in particular, "Well I don't think that smoothies are really much fun . . ." Hall advising her Freshmen to stay off the Senior walk . . . The Sophomores on the south wall of our picture gallery; Thacker, Jr. following the family Kappa Sig tradition . . . Elmore looking for a fourth . . . Price, our red-haired song bird, in white with her Sandals streamer . . . The other Lawrence, Anna, our Baptist missionary . . . Biz, busy being their Duke Duke correspondent . . . Walters peers coyly from beneath those cute bangs . . . Aveyard, wishing that she could fly down to Texas with those wings . . . Adams, why Carolina men leave Carolina . . . Gery, our Southern belle still breaking hearts as only she can . . . Yvonne, wearing red polish to cover up Duke Players paint under her finger nails. The last wall of our gallery displays our little sisters, the pledges. The whole rare collection will always be housed in the memory of every Sigma Kappa. As departing seniors leave behind the friendships made and memories created, they be ever conscious of college hours and S. K. traditions. Those pledged are: Hazel Durner, Margaret Pierce, Frances Rockafellow, Cora Snyder, Evelyn Tipton.

ETA PHI ALPHA

CCUPYING OUR COLLEGE YEARS, ZETA TAU ALPHA HAS DOMINATED THE LIVES OF ITS GAY MEMBERS WITH A FIRM HAND OF DEVOTION AND FAITH. REGRETFULLY THE SENIORS ARE "STEPPING OUT WITH A MEMORY," AS THEY LEAVE BEHIND FOUR HAPPY YEARS OF FRIENDSHIP.

ATTENTION please! We must have absolute silence during the following broadcast. We take great pleasure in presenting to you the Zeta Tau Alpha "Hit Parade" of the year. "The Music Makers" of the campus give you musical entertainment of hit songs in their individual ways—a sorority-bound album reflecting the joys and sorrows, past-times and whims, memories and friendships which go to make up Zeta Tau Alpha. We open with Prexy Stivers' "Lonesome For You" 'cause "This Time It's Real." ("I Under 'Stan that") . . . Jean Woodhull's number one specialty is "Do I Worry, You Can Bet Your Life I Don't" . . . "Rosalie" hopes she will be "Lucky In Love" . . . Bonnabeau, we know that "Sweeter Than the Sweetest, you will ever be" . . . Carver may be "Blue Because of You" since "You're Caught In the Draft" . . . Sarah, why do "You Leave Me Breathless" when "I Look at You"? . . . "This Love of Mine" is a happy finale to Mary Ross' college career. "Pennsylvania 6-5000," says Flo, "That's For Me" . . . Janet insists that "Romance Runs In the Family" but her "Heart Belongs to Daddy" . . . "They Say" that Sybil is "Faithful Forever" . . . "Time Was" but where was Kay? . . . Working on the Chronicle? . . . "It's A Hundred to One," Fisher, that he is "Kinda Lonesome" . . . the guy back home . . . And quoting Babe, "I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire, I Just" . . . oh well, you know the rest . . . Tommy, we think is "Lovely to Look At, Delightful to Know" . . . Is Peggy "Stepping Out With A Memory" . . . Well, "Maybe" . . . "Blue Orchids" to "White Duchy" Mariam . . . Sturdy, "You Are Our Sunshine" . . . Although Ginny Seymour's theme song is "You Gotta Be A Football Hero," she has current favorites of "I Think You're Wonderful" and "Let's Call The Whole Thing off" . . . Beth says "I'm Flying High" for "Jim" . . . Mary Moore is "Caught In a Riptide" of "Romance," too . . . Kathleen can't help but "Hark the Sound of Tar Heel Voices" . . . Elsie advises that we "Be Careful" and "A Little Bit Independent" . . . You can find our Leo "Down Argentine Way" of "Smiles" . . . Emmie, "Remember" that "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" so "Don't Be That Way" . . . "There's a Far-Away Look In Your Eyes," Kindlund, "I Wonder Why?" . . . To "Please Say the Word" and "Stop Pretending," Dot replies, I haven't "Made Up My Mind" . . . Margie, "I Wouldn't Take a Million" for "You, You Darling" . . . Sutton hails from "South of the Border Down Mexico Way" to see "If It's True What They Say About Dixie" . . . And so we "Say Goodbye Now" to the tune of "Dear Old Duke." "Our Zeta Tau Girls" will be "Thinking of You" and "Wishing" the best to you all. It's "Goodbye Dear, I'll Be Back in a Year."

FEATURES

*PAN-HELLENIC DANCES, THE CO-ED BALL, S.G.A. DANCES, THE BEAUTY QUEENS,
THE MAY QUEEN, MAY DAY, FAVOR-

FEATURES section—smelting pot of student life from which will be brewed the memories to be carried down through the years long after the memory of that “A” in physics is dead. Perhaps by typical photographs, the vapours may be preserved and not allowed to vanish as does the steam spewing from the coffee pot on the kitchen stove.

Although every event cannot be depicted, we can hope to recapture the entire exciting weekend of the Carolina football game with one shot of the gamboling freshmen in their annual pajama parade. Association will bring back the thrill of the Rose Bowl invitation and the ensuing celebration at all the down-town soda fountains. One telling caption of that super-Spivak series will serve to recall all of those precious formals which will be all the more dear for their scarcity.

A major portion of our vapour will be of life after the closing hour, when the duchesses discuss their evening escorts around the bridge table while the dukes stop by for a short one before retiring for their much-needed rest. Of course, every night was not so mild, and many were the times when hall proctors had to slow the chattering about a box of food from home, or the chief had to duck the firecrackers while trying to nip a riot in the bud.

The deliriously lazy spring brings back cabin parties, picnics along the Eno, the May Queen and her court of sheerly clad beauties, along with the lingering twilight when it was so delightful to cat-nap on the warm green earth. Of course, there was always a book along so that the excuse was studying, but that was almost impossible when real spring fever set in. The fact that we can look at a picture taken in the Union is proof that we did live through the year, even though at times we were doubtful. We also survived the dilemma of exams and the long months of suspense before the much-honored court of beauty was selected and announced. There were a good many laughs that kept us in stitches down in “Publications Row,” and although it seemed that we would never be able to meet the printer’s deadline, we did. Campus gossip, the dope shop, and answering the telephone provided opportunities to take time for relaxation.

Last of all, behind every picture will be a reminder of the cataclysmic disaster each felt when the grim spectre of war was tossed into our laps on December 7, 1941. However, we shall try to boil off only happy memories to be forever preserved, and leave the sad ones as dregs in the cup. For Duke University adds beauty to the memories which we shall retain.

Dancers at the Pan-Hellenic Winter Series form a conga line and dance to Charlie Spivak's Orchestra. Onlookers are part of usual large group of stags and the less confident conga dancers. Entire series was a terrific success, both socially and financially.

PAN-HELLENIC DANCES

ONLY THE GREEKS CAN PUT ON THE SHOW, AND IT IS THE PAN-HELLENIC DANCES WHICH ANNUALLY PROVIDE THE STUDENT BODY WITH SPECIAL RELAXATION AND FREEDOM FROM WORRIES OF TEXTBOOKS AND QUIZZES. AT DUKE THE PAN-HEL WEEK-END IS THE THING—JOVIAL SPIRIT, BIG-NAME BANDS, IMPORTS, FRATERNITY OPEN HOUSES, NEW EVENING GOWNS, WHITE TIE AND TAILS.

Between dances there is a constant hum of voices. Nicholson is seemingly meeting success with his line of impromptu chatter.

THE Pan-Hellenic Council presented its first dance of the year early in the fall with the purpose of building up a reserve for future larger scale dances. In keeping with the resolution introduced to the campus by the Council for the curtailment of decorations, only the lighted seals of the eighteen fraternities on campus were used. Informality and the atmosphere that is strictly Duke prevailed while the Duke Ambassadors played.

The fall social season climaxed in December when the Council presented Charlie Spivak and his orchestra for a week-end series. Few former week-ends can compare with the social success of this program of a formal dance, a tea dance, and an informal dance. Only pine boughs were used for the minimum decorations, but the efficient planning transformed Memorial Gym into a veritable pine forest. Each of the three dances drew capacity crowds, for student co-operation and interest was at its height.

In April the Council presented its new and original "Flu-Cured" Frolic. Tobacco leaves, hogsheads, and farmer costumes provided that special tobacco warehouse atmosphere. Tobacco auctioneers and square dancing were only a part of the unique entertainment. The Duke Ambassadors swung out for the frolickers, and everyone buried the memory of the Cotton Pickers' Ball, for Duke has a new and bigger informal, the "Flu-Cured" Frolic.

The Council presented the campus band, the Ambassadors, at a formal dance in May. During the evening the May Queen and her Court were presented; and the traditional ceremonies were performed, despite the defense curtailment of the regular, more lavish, outdoor afternoon celebration.

The Pan-Hellenic Council coöperated wholeheartedly with the Wartime Social Activities Board this year, and it has kept all dance decorations at an absolute minimum. The policy of requiring the purchase of defense stamps as a part of the admission price was encouraged, and the stamp sales and their general campus acceptance was very satisfactory.

During the intermission, the orchestra played a waltz as the members of the organization formed the traditional figure around their president. After the figure was completed, cellophane streamers were dropped for traditional Pan-Hellenic Council "no break."

All Social Standards members actively help with decorations for each dance.

John Hanford and Wynn Jones lead the traditional figure of the Co-ed Ball.

The CHANTICLEER crown alone holds the secret of the new beauty queen.

CO-ED BALLS

FEW STUDENTS EVER MISS THE CHANCE TO ATTEND THE CO-ED BALL, FOR IT IS THE CLIMAX OF THE SOCIAL SEASON, THE EVENT OF THE SEMESTER CHARACTERIZED BY CHARM AND BEAUTY AND ELEGANCE. TRADITIONALLY UNIQUE IN ITS DECORATION, A CO-ED BALL IS ARRANGED WEEKS IN ADVANCE, AND EACH SOCIAL STANDARDS MEMBER PLAYS HER OWN ACTIVE PART.

Booe and Brown, Thersher and Gardner are caught by the camera-man as they chat and dance in Pi Kap corner at early fall dance.

LAST fall the Social Standards Committee brought a mythical Circus onto the Campus, and the Coeds presented their biannual ball amid all the colorful and sweeping ballyhoo of a circus atmosphere. Thousands of multi-colored balloons were strung over the ceiling of Memorial Gym, and wrapping paper animals stalked by and peered at the dancers from their barred cages along the walls. Boots Moore directed the dance preparations, and each member of Social Standards played her traditionally active part in executing the decorations.

The climax of the evening came with the presentation of the 1942 CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen by the Editor of the Yearbook. With the spotlights shining and Vince Courtney's Duke Ambassadors playing, a huge crown of colored balloons was lifted, and from it stepped Noel Johnson to be acclaimed the University's new Beauty Queen.

Immediately following intermission, Winn Jones, Chairman of the Social Standards Committee, led the traditional figure which terminated in a circle of members who held cellophane streamers from a huge red hoop in the center of the dance floor.

In March the Coeds were hostesses at their Spring dance. Despite the ruling of the Wartime Social Activities Board, Social Standards kept up its unique dance reputation by executing a novel masquerade ball. Minimum decorations were used, but novelty and the Duke Ambassadors compensated for any decoration curtailment. Everyone was provided a mask when he entered, and the masks were kept on until intermission. The masquerade ball was directed by Pauline Beaver, and the traditional figure was led by Winn Jones.

Suspense and mystery was accented in the dance atmosphere by the secrecy of the 1942 May Queen election. Immediately preceding intermission, Jack Kauffman, CHANTICLEER Editor, announced the Student Government's choice, and Dorothy Stivers became another in Duke University's parade of beautiful and gracious May Queens.

Social Standards Members prepare for their traditional figure in the vestibule after intermission. In keeping with circus dance theme, girls carried balloons. White dresses and long white gloves are always worn by Social Standards members for this dance.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT DANCES

THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT PROVIDES DANCES FOR STUDENTS AS A PART OF THEIR SOCIAL PROGRAM. INFORMAL DANCES ARE THEIR MORE POPULAR TYPE. ALL DANCES ARE CHEAP AND ARRANGED TO APPEAL TO EVERY STUDENTS' INTEREST. NOVEL INTRODUCTIONS THIS YEAR WERE THE SATURDAY EVENING INFORMALS AND THE DEFENSE STAMP ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS.

Kindler and Weber are caught unawares at an S.G.A. dance. Enjoyable informal dances are encouraged and sponsored by W.S.A.B.

IN an effort to serve the campus in every situation possible, the Student Government Association has this year become an organ of leadership that has bent its efforts in every direction. With the cloud of World War II dampening social life on the campus, the Student Government immediately grasped the opportunity to come through with a plan to keep our college life on an even keel as much as possible. It is because of the timeliness of their thoughtfulness that the Student Government's Social activities have received so much praise.

The Victory Ball, held annually in early December in honor of the football team, took on a special significance this year since the team brought such nation-wide prominence to itself and the university.

During the intermission, gold keys were presented to the seniors of the team by S.G.A. President Larry Blanchard. As in previous years, huge pictures of the captain, Bob Barnett, and of the coach, Wallace Wade, served as the theme of decorations. Vince Courtney and his Duke Ambassadors called the dance signal for the gridiron men and their dates and admirers.

One of the additions to Duke social life this year was the S.G.A. Informal Dances. These affairs, held on Saturday nights in the Woman's College gym, were inexpensive substitutes for the many formal affairs which have been eliminated in the light of the national emergency. The popularity and enthusiasm over the innovation was spontaneous and campus-wide. Phil Messenkoff and his Blue Satans alternated with the Duke Ambassadors in providing the dance music.

At the suggestion of faculty leaders and campus opinion, the S.G.A. sponsored the organization of a Wartime Social Activities Board. The W.S.A.B. is composed of campus leaders and representatives of the faculty and administration. The Board functions to coordinate the social activities of the campus into a rounded and extensive program. Excessive spending and elaborate decorations are discouraged.

In keeping with tradition, the president of the Student Government Association presented senior football men with gold keys at the Victory Ball. The dance is always informal and is given right after football season. The entire squad are guests and are honored.

THE SELECTING OF THE

BEAUTY QUEEN

ENTIED AND ADMIRER, THE BEAUTY QUEENS ARE THE LIVING SYMBOLS OF THE BEAUTIFUL GIRLS AT DUKE. THESE GIRLS OCCUPY POSITIONS RICH IN TRADITION AND EXEMPLIFY THE QUALITIES OF POISE, PULCHRITUDE, AND PERSONALITY. THE QUEEN IS CROWNED AT THE CO-ED BALL, BUT THE OTHERS ARE KEPT SECRET UNTIL PUBLICATION OF THE CHANTICLEER.

TRADITION is rich at Duke; and there is a no more genuine tradition into which more magnificent splendor and enthusiastic excitement is packed than into the ceremonies at the crowning of the CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen.

This year the Co-ed Ball moved a mythical Circus onto the Campus, to which along, with the hundreds of dancers, came one unsuspecting Co-ed, who danced and, before the evening was over, was crowned Beauty Queen of the University.

Weeks before the fall Co-ed Ball, the CHANTICLEER Staff photographed twenty-one Duke

Co-eds, who represented the students' choice as those to be considered by the Beauty Judge. The pictures, identified only by numbers, were rushed off to Bandleader Fred Waring for his selection of the most beautiful.

Jack Kauffman, Editor of the CHANTICLEER, presided over the Beauty Queen ceremonies from a velvet covered platform on which there had been placed a huge, balloon-covered crown, whence the new Queen would be presented. When the lights were dimmed and the spotlights flashed, the crown was lifted, and to the University was revealed its Queen, Miss Noel Johnson.

MAY DAY

TO the Queen, all glory, honor, and praise on May Day at Duke. Traditionally lovely and charmingly beautiful, the spring frolic of May Day is looked forward to and witnessed by thousands of spectators.

Because of the Nation's wartime program, Duke chose to forego the customary celebration this year.

Queen Dorothy Stivers was selected by the Student Body.

The pictures on this page represent last year's theme which centered around the nation's "good neighbor" policy. The maids wore billowing Spanish dresses of shaded silk and lace, and when the Queen had been crowned, the Mexican peons danced for her and presented her with gifts.

FRESHMEN WEEK INITIATES FALL SEMESTER

Freshmen arrive for Freshmen Week bewildered and friendless; gladly accept "Y" man, Sandals, and Upperclassman advice.

At the West Duke building, freshmen women meet Sandals members who help them register, locate their rooms, meet new friends.

WITH the traditional long line of freshmen, a new, uninitiated Duke class began its freshman week on September 11, 1941. Hotels and tourist homes had been crowded the night before as a result of long train rides, bus trips, and automobile jaunts. Y.M.C.A. sophomores were on hand to welcome, advise, and direct men and coeds to their rooms and then to the respective auditoriums where first meetings took place. On the West campus, this first meeting occurred at 8:00 the opening day. Dean Alan K. Manchester warmly received the Trinity Freshmen, intimating with his usual comment that only half the class would reach the day of graduation. Placement exams followed the next morning. New "crew hats," which replaced the former freshman "dink" were placed on sale. Physical examinations included those for Duke's newly established Naval ROTC unit. Saturday was high-lighted with traditional East Campus open-houses. Although intended to provide a welcomed change after three days of freshman troubles, they failed to provide much more than confusion as men fought over-whelming odds to meet all the coeds. Further opportunity was offered a second time, however, at the Duke University Church-sponsored fellowship dinner in the Men's Union the following noon. Mon-

Wednesday were preliminary class meetings and freshmen once again solicited the help of Y men to find various classrooms. Wednesday night brought an end to freshman week. By that time, house masters had taken over their proteges, B O S had explained its ever-guiding principles, and the rest of the undergraduates had returned. The Class of 1945 was ready to go to work. (?)

Having once made their start in the curriculum, activities, and social life of the University, these freshmen have long since added their contributions to the college life of Duke. They have participated in freshman sports, joined fraternities and sororities, and entered numerous campus organizations. But even those who do pass on to the day of graduation will always remember the orientation of Freshman Week.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO ACTIVITY

ON the West Campus the center of all campus activity is the Men's Union with a multitude of services to Duke men and women. Unlike the majority of colleges and universities, meals are not eaten in the dormitories. While many of the well-to-do students travel to the favorite downtown eating places, the majority of the undergraduate student body eats in one of the dining places provided on the campus. Six dining halls and several private banquet rooms provide adequate meal-service for Duke students, but only in the graduate hall is table service provided. In the three large undergraduate halls, students must wait in line while meals are brought from the kitchen on trays. Undergraduate halls are plague-marked with fraternity insignia, freshmen search frantically

Trays are filled by negroes standing in the food assembly line and boys carry them to one of the three big student dining halls.

for a non-fraternity table, and ticket-takers listen complacently to thousands of complaints. Meals are wholesome and well balanced but lose much of their appeal through constant repetition. The waiters who work in the Union are all students who earn their meals in this way. After meals are concluded, row after row of students visit row after row of post-office boxes. The near-by barber shop gives everything from shampoos to shoe shines in addition to speedy haircuts. Ready cash is gotten from the branch bank, clothes are obtained from the haberdashery, and dopes are obtained from the campus drug store.

The Union also includes a complete University book store and exchange, a mailing department, a Union library, where one of the campus dance

In the girl's union, colored bus-boys work during breakfast and lunch hours, but co-ed waitresses serve during the dinner hour.

Breakfast and lunch are served cafeteria style on East campus; dinner, sometimes formal, is always served in the family style.

Co-eds, compelled to spend thirty minutes at the dinner table, often rush meals to start gossip sessions. On Sunday evenings, girls may invite dates to eat with them, although men rarely accept. Sororities are served in a separate dining hall at their own tables.

bands plays after dinner each night, and an information desk, which acts as a receiving station for visitors, telegrams, and phone calls.

On the East campus, the Union does not play quite as an important part. In the three undergraduate dining rooms there is ample space to serve the women of the campus. As on West, there is a drug store, complete with books, stationery, dopes, and sandwiches. Adjacent to this is the Post Office, College Station, corresponding to Duke Station on the West Campus. In the lobby, tickets for campus productions, lectures, and dances are sold, as well as the monthly meal tickets. In the same building there is a beauty shop where girls may get last minute hair-dos. All in all, the East and West Campus Unions are indispensable to general student life, for it is here that the majority of Duke students converge on the more important functions that make up Duke college life.

The Barber Shop is a popular center of activity in the basement of the Union. Six scalp-valets accommodate 1,500 students. Characteristic of shop are colored shine boys constantly yelling, "Your shoes look awful." Price rises and haircuts are synonymous.

STUDENTS CELEBRATE HOME COMING

Annual bonfire and pep rally attract excited freshmen and confident upperclassmen before Homecoming game with Tennessee. Eager anticipation of one of the year's best games is clearly reflected in the faces of the Duke students who celebrated through week-end.

Tennessee's ultimate defeat is reflected in flames of the traditional bonfire as they leap high into the air. Freshmen built the fire.

FRIDAY night a great yellow flame shot skyward into the darkness above the athletic practice field, suddenly making visible thousands of cheering students and onlooking visitors. The bonfire was a combination of wood donated by the American Tobacco Company, and the labor of freshmen ensnared for the purpose of stacking the boards into a huge heap. As the bonfire passed the peak of its brilliance, the band, blaring Duke victory marches, led the way off the field with hundreds of snake dancing students following. The pajama-clad freshmen marchers who preferred mechanization of the blitzkrieg. On their return, the freshmen treated the East Campus to an impromptu and discordant serenade.

Various house decorations require long hours of hard work. Original ideas greeted Homecoming crowds the day of the game.

The following morning the huge Homecoming Parade got under way behind the blue-uniformed Duke band. The parade consisted of visiting high school bands, attractive floats adorned liberally with colored paper and pretty girls, and many varied fraternity floats illustrating what the Greeks hoped would happen to the powerful Tennessee team. From Roxboro Street to the entrance of East Campus the sidewalks were packed with a sweltering but enthusiastic crowd come to pay homage to two great teams about to make gridiron history.

Homecoming witnessed a brilliant spectacle this year as 400 high school musicians assembled to add to the day's activities. After the morning parade through the Durham streets, they joined the Duke University band in a huge American flag formation at half-time.

Mike Karmazin, Duke's great offensive and defensive tackle, attempts a field goal against Tennessee. Although his try was bad, Duke went on to a decisive 19-0 win over the Vols. The game was marked by hard fighting and brilliant plays before the huge crowd.

Old grads scoured the campus in search for their old classmate cronies. Some raced frantically about the campus to procure tickets which by then were as rare as Duke spirit was high. Others took their time enjoying the victory exhibits of the various dormitory and fraternity sections. Registering and talking with friends, the grads overfilled the entire Union building.

Long before game time the stadium began to fill up, but all previous excitement was dwarfed with the beginning of the game. By the end of the first half Duke had scored three times on sensational plays that decided the outcome of the game.

Freshmen, who bear the brunt of Duke's cheering, raise a mighty yell as the Blue Devils make their first score of exciting day.

After the game the fraternities held open houses for the Greeks and their dates in their sections, and the freshmen had an open house sponsored by the Freshman Advisory Council.

Homecoming Week-end is always anticipated by students and old grads alike. A high-light of every football season, plans are made by everyone—students, faculty, and administration—to make homecoming a perennial success.

Taking the spotlight, Jones and leader Courtney blend a duet as the band fills in the background harmony for a soft chorus.

THE CAMPUS ESCUES LAST OF GOON DAYS

PECULIAR of Duke's East Campus traditions is the one day set aside each year to impress upon the newly-installed freshman their inferiority to the wise and all-important sophomores. Designated as Goon Day by earlier believers of freshman unimportance, the day emphasizes de-glamorization. This year, freshman dress requirements included a skirt worn six inches from the ground and a clashing sweater to match it. In addition, each freshman was required to cover her hair with a black stocking. No make-up what-so-ever was permitted.

Traditional Goon Day gives sarcastic men-students an ideal chance to heckle and torture the unfortunate first year victims.

Goon Day is long remembered by freshmen coeds who in future years will get their revenge as blood-thirsty upperclassmen.

Freshmen once a year must use no make-up, wear unpressed skirts, tie up their hair in pig-tails, and wear signs reading, "I am a Goon." This year Goon Day resulted in an unfortunate accident which has brought an end to all Goon Days through a class vote.

Throughout the day goons were ordered about by a multitude of sophomores, who sent them on errands, and made them perform ridiculous antics. The climax of Goon Day comes at night, when a "rat court" punishes all freshmen who weren't good little goons. Equilibrium is restored when freshmen are allowed an hour to repay their tormentors for their fun of Goon Day. During this time the tables are turned and hecklers receive the same punishment they had ministered. After the event was over, Goon Day traditions were killed by class vote.

Goons entertain the critical upperclassmen who watch their hilarious antics. Most goons are embarrassed, afraid.

Freshman coeds struggle through rat court smiling. After the assembly the tables turn, and upperclassmen entertain freshmen.

Traditionally ugly with black-stockings head dresses and no make-up, goons sing songs, give pep cheers, and tell animated jokes. Most goons are too tired at the end of the day to take "revenge"; all scurry back to the dorms, tomorrow's homework, and bed.

THE DUKE PLAYERS' ENTERTAINMENT ON CAMPUS STAGE

THE Duke Players, one of the largest organizations on the campus, has enjoyed for years a wide margin of popularity throughout the university community. Each season, the players present four performances usually selected from the dazzling array of recently released Broadway hits. The story of a Duke Player's Production is one of weeks of work and study, a fact which seldom occurs to the audience on the nights of the performances.

As soon as the play to be given is selected by the executive board, the stage technicians plan and build the complete miniature stage set or sets which the script demands. While tryouts are held and play rehearsals begin, the con-

The flats, built in the "labs," are covered, sized, and painted by a crew of about thirty "players." These workers, usually inactive members working for the points required for acceptance into Duke Players, are the forces, although unseen at curtain time, that spell success for the production.

Three weeks before the production date, a corps of advertising agents visits the business houses of Durham soliciting "ads" for the programs. The publicity staff arranges for posters and photographic announcements of the production, and the ticket salesmen begin in-

WITH the nation's gigantic defense program reaching into every corner of every state and city, it was with little surprise that a unit of the Naval ROTC was established at Duke University. Something altogether new at Duke, the NROTC was the direct result of choosing eight such locations for the extension of the Naval Program throughout the country. Without interfering with the usual college requirements for an A.B., B.S. or Engineering degree, the four year training is designed to provide three recitations and two drills each

Dormitory life takes on an ever-increasing importance from early in the morning until late at night. The discord of hundreds of alarm clocks, slightly suggestive of a seven-alarm fire, only more irritating, inevitably begins the daily routine as early as 6:30 A.M. and continues well

After-dinner hours of relaxation are often spent in the fraternity chapter rooms, laughing, joking, or wrestling with manly strength.

Fraternities and dorm sections all have free inter-campus phones. Week-end dates must usually be made five days in advance.

On the East Campus, the process of getting up is much the same, except for the half an hour which the weaker sex must set aside for "putting on their faces." This is a lengthy ritual and often necessitates the elimination of breakfast and the first few minutes of class time.

More than just a place to relax and study and engage in lengthy bull sessions, the campus dormitories are also converted into social centers. STUDENT LIFE ON SUNDAY

TO the majority of Duke men and women, Sunday is an appreciated day. With its freedom from classes and its chance to sleep, it becomes a highlight of student life. The West Campus dweller arises in time to catch a bus for the East Campus. Dating on Sunday morning usually begins with a Coffee Shop breakfast; meanwhile, numerous busses bring coeds who often meet their dates in the Union lobby or on the chapel steps. East Campus "quiet hour" from 2:00 until 3:30 necessitates early dating. Some use the afternoon for golf games, bridge tournaments, and shows. Traditionally popular, the Campus Sing attracts the majority of Sunday evening daters in the climax to Sunday at Duke.

After church, special busses carry students to East Campus dormitories or to early afternoon shows in the town theaters.

Early-comers await friends and dates on Chapel steps. Boys in ambulatory give out bulletins of near-future church activity.

The usual after-church gatherings discuss the sermon, the weather, and most recently, the war. Visiting ministers and Dean of the Chapel advise it is students' duty to defend by the necessary evil of war their rights of citizenship and privileges of Democracy.

CABIN picnics at Duke, organized by fraternities, sororities, and other organizations for otherwise quiet afternoons, are held at one of the sites owned by the University and serve as ideal relaxation from school routine. The Duke University property includes more than a dozen entrances to these camping grounds, fully equipped for wholesome outings. All affairs are chaperoned and supervised to some extent either by faculty or by administration members.

This year with the elimination of fraternity dances, there was an ever greater movement towards increasing the number and size of cabin parties, and, hampered by the lack of available busses, there was a corresponding increase in the amount of bicycling and hiking. However, if the party takes the form of a hike or a bicycle party, the bruises are absorbed by that section of the anatomy covered by leather, rather than by pants. Portable sandwich kits also add to the burden conducive to tired muscles at the end of the day. The food is usually prepared by the University Unions in return for the students' meal books. In this way, student expense is alleviated and wholesome food is obtained at a minimum cost by this agency.

During the pledging period, fraternity members compel pledges to carry wood, build fires, and entertain the laughing group.

Cabins usually have one large room for dancing, music for which is provided by portable radios or record players. The dancers at these parties often gain the reputation of being the best jitterbugs on the University campus, as practice leads to unusual perfection.

Student Health hours, 12:30 to 2:00 and 5:30 to 7:00 are conveniently arranged to avoid conflict with classes. However, emergency cases, appendectomies, accidents, or sudden illnesses receive immediate care of hospital staff and the best of medical attention.

The majority of cases treated by the Student Health involve care of minor ailments such as sore throats, headaches, and head colds.

ONE of the most important phases of student life accepted as a matter of course by students is the Student Health Department. In addition to maintaining one of the largest hospitals in the South, complete with full hospitalization service, Nursing School, and Medical School, Duke Hospital maintains facilities to care for all students of Duke University who have troubles ranging from a mild form of a common cold to major operations. ATHLETICS

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS.*

OMING into the lives of this generation of Duke Students this nation finds itself in the throes of total war; a war in which an absolute of strength and energy must be attained before a victory can be realized. It is equally essential that this strength and energy find a dual manifestation: In the character, and in the literal physical aspect of the American people. We must, like the ancient Greeks, strengthen not only the mind but the body as well.

Behind its Gothic facades and Georgian columns lies the university from which students have received the spiritual, educational, and social guidance that is an integral part of their American heritage; while on the playing field and in the grandstands is maintained that spirit which once gave birth to the ideals for which we now stand guard.

Behind the glories of the varsity teams of Duke University lies an organization that has neglected no student in its program of physical education: the Athletic Department. Required physical education for all first and second year men and optional courses for upperclassmen and graduates have impregnated the entire student body with the spirit of physical development. It is the possession of this fighting spirit and the knowledge of its precisional application that our athletic victories ultimately stand; and it is upon the universal utilization of this principle that a much more important victory might well rest.

In front of all this are the trained athletes, the varsity players who wear the Blue and White. We accept their contribution to Duke greatness just as it is: a vital and important institution within the institutions of university and nation. We salute them and every man and woman who coöperates with the athletic department of this and every university and college of the nation in developing that strength so vital for the greatest of all victories.

In our modern industrial age, many of us do not find the time for proper physical exercise, and so it is important that the development of our bodies be stressed before we reach full maturity. Every student in the University may participate in an athletic activity from which he derives the most personal satisfaction and benefit. If the spirit of true sportsmanship is properly instilled in him at this time, he will retain it throughout his life. In all athletics at Duke University, the spirit of courage and loyalty to the highest ideals of the University is exemplified in the attainments of Duke athletes.

FOOTBALL

AMONG THE GREATEST TEAMS EVER PRODUCED BY COACH WADE AND HIDE, THE DUKE UNIVERSITY BLUE DEVILS OF 1941 SWEEPED THEIR REGULAR SEASON SCHEDULE WITHOUT DEFEAT AND WERE SELECTED AS THE EASTERN REPRESENTATIVE IN THE ROSE BOWL GAME ON NEW YEAR'S; DUKE WAS FINALLY DEFEATED BY A STRONG, DETERMINED OREGON STATE ELEVEN IN THIS FAMOUS GAME TRANSPLANTED TO DURHAM.

S August, 1941, drew to a close, collegiate sports circles turned their attention to football, the opening of which was but a month away. Simultaneous with similar action throughout the nation, Wallace Wade, for over a decade head football coach at Duke, gathered about him the nucleus of his 1941 gridiron outfit. With only a short four weeks in which to condition and coordinate a fast-moving, smoothly-running eleven, quiet, gaunt Coach Wade was faced with many problems.

Immediately setting about the bolstering of his line, Wade shifted Mike Karmazin from guard to tackle, where he was teamed with Bob McDonough. Both men were veterans of two gridiron campaigns. Out on the ends, Wade kept tall, husky Alex Piasecky and gambled with junior Jim Smith. Greatest Wade gamble was, however, his attempt to solve the guard problem. Into these posts he moved pint-sized Pete Goddard, a watch-fob guard, and Tom Burns, a former end. Upon these two men depended much of the success that Duke hoped for in the coming campaign. The wisdom of these moves were demonstrated through the season. Returning to his center spot was Captain Bob Barnett, a tried and tested performer.

DUKE 43; WAKE FOREST 7

Opening the season on a hot September afternoon before a crowd of close to 15,000 in Duke stadium, the Blue Devils of Wallace Wade gave considerable promise of what was to be expected during the rest of the season. The Dukes marched to a touchdown before the game was two minutes old; scored another after two more minutes; then waited six minutes before chalking up the third tally. Two additional six-pointers were tossed in for good measure before Wake Forest was able to break into the scoring column. The Blue Devil touchdowns were made by Moffat Storer (two), Leo Long, Steve Lach, Bob Gantt, George Bokinsky, and Tommy Davis.

Before a jam-packed stadium of 48,000 homecoming fans, the Wade warriors reaped revenge for last year's defeat by the Volunteers as they scored three touchdowns in the first half and then coasted through the last session of a game played in sweltering weather. Leo Long drove over for the first score before the game was six minutes old. Of exceptional merit in a contest which saw Tennessee suffer its first defeat in a regular season game since 1937, was the passing of the Blue Devils. Tommy Davis and Moffat Storer combined in

Wallace Wade took his undefeated eleven to Baltimore where they ran roughshod over a hapless Maryland outfit. Definitely outclassed, the Old Liners could do nothing but stand helplessly by and watch the high-scoring, fast-moving Duke juggernaut roll up 25 points in the first quarter, six in the second, and 19 more in the fourth. The Duke touchdowns were scored by Tommy Davis (three), Winston Siegfried (three), and Steve Lach (two).

DUKE 27; COLGATE 14

Back in Durham, the Blue Devils gaily trotted their wares before a crowd of 25,000 and an unusually powerful Colgate eleven. Early in the first quarter, Leo Long gave Duke a 7-0 lead when he plunged over for a touchdown. Colgate then tied it up with Geyer setting the stage for a score with a 70-yard run. This was the first Red Raider tally since the series began in 1936. Winston Siegfried then scored the first of three touchdowns he made during the afternoon, putting the Devils ahead, 13-7. On the runback of the kick-off that followed, Geyer dashed 98 yards for a score, putting the Devils behind in a game for the first time in the season. Two more tallies by Siegfried late in the second half changed the story.

DUKE 27; PITTSBURGH 7

Travelling to the smoky city of Pittsburgh, the Blue Devils had little difficulty with the Panthers once they got started. Leading by a slim 6-0 count at the half, the Dukes came back in the second session to stage a remarkable exhibition of diversified plays. Star of the contest was Steve Lach, who put in his bid for staged four drives that almost, but not quite, resulted in touchdowns that would have meant the ball game. On each occasion, the sturdy Duke forward wall refused to budge. The two Duke scores came on excellently executed passes, Davis heaving to Lach, then to Gantt.

THE 50: DAVIDSON

Continuing their travelling ways, the Blue Devils took a jaunt over to Davidson for an afternoon of football that resembled a track meet. Scoring 14 points in each quarter, the Midway in the first half, Steve Lach, after keeping the Heels deep in their own territory by dint of his exceptional kicking, dashed 13 yards on an end-around (one of Duke's best-used plays throughout the season) to score. The Devils added two more touchdowns in the third quarter, and then thwarted several late drives by the visitors.

DUKE 55: N. C. STATE 0

With Winston Siegfried leading the way, the Duke Blue Devils added their ninth and final victory of the 1941 campaign by trouncing State in the latter's backyard in Raleigh. Big Steve Lach added another niche in his bid for all-American fame as he played almost the entire sixty minutes of the contest and led his team's

DUKE 20: C. R. 10

Before an overflow crowd of 50,000 in Duke stadium, the Devils revenged last year's upset actions all the way. Siegfried, who with Lach, was completing his playing days for Duke, tallied four touchdowns during the afternoon. Other seniors on the starting five were Mike Karmazin, Bob Barnett, Bob McDonough, Alex Piasecky, Pete Goddard, voted winner of the Noble Arnold Trophy for the Most Valuable Duke Player of the season, and Tommy Prothro.

19-2 ROSE BOWL GAME - DUKE STADIUM

BOLSTERED with compact student support and an unbeaten team for the second time during the collegiate careers of one-quarter of its students, Duke University accepted an invitation to the Rose Bowl. Four campaigns ago, the undefeated, untied, unscored upon 1938 eleven had been the first Duke outfit to be so honored. Once again at the completion of an undefeated, though scored-upon campaign, the Blue Devils closed their regular season with every expectation of receiving the coveted Bowl bid.

Dramatically, on November 30, a well-remembered Sunday afternoon on the Methodist Flats, Pacific Coast representative Oregon State invited Duke to be its opponent in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena on January 1, 1942. Hardly had the resulting excitement died down to murmurs of "Sure I'll make the trip to see the game," than the serenity of the picture was upset a short seven days later by the entrance of the U. S. into a war with Japan on the Pacific. There followed a week of wondering if the game would be played, until, finally, on the next Sunday it was called off.

At that point, coming graciously to the rescue of the traditional gridiron scrap, Duke University and the city of Durham invited the Rose Bowl committee to hold their contest in Duke stadium. The offer was accepted, and, as a result, the Rose Bowl came to Duke.

January 1 in Durham began as a cloudy, threatening day. Three hours before game time a heavy, driving rain which was to keep up relentlessly throughout the afternoon came pouring down. Despite this gloomy picture, 56,000 fans crowded into specially enlarged Duke stadium for the contest.

This was the second Rose Bowl celebration for the senior class. Many claimed it milder than the famous 1938 festivities.

Midway in the first quarter, Oregon State, led by lefthanded, triple-threat Don Durdan, drove deep into Duke territory. A few plays later the visiting Beavers had scored and were leading the Devils, 7-0. The lead was short lived, however, as Wade's warriors retaliated and kicked the extra point to knot the score.

Goody Shop, like every other campus eating place, was filled to overflowing. Students sang songs, drank toasts, and carried celebration far into the night. U.S.'s entry into the war a week later greatly dimmed the Rose Bowl's glamour, subdued enthusiasm.

Late in the first half, Duke marched to mid-field, then could go no farther. With time rapidly passing away, the Blue Devils gambled on long passes to score before the half ended. Three times sophomore Bobby Rute tossed the ball—and three times Duke fans had their hopes raised, only to see them fall again as the players had difficulty holding on to the slippery ball. Finally, with less than five seconds left to play, Bobby Gantt made a brilliant catch on the Oregon five-yard line and was driven out of bounds. But a possible Duke score was thwarted as the gun went off before another play could be run.

Early in the last half, Oregon State scored its second touchdown. Then Duke, placed in scoring position by the lengthy runs of Steve Lach, tied the game up at 14-14. Once again the Beavers went into the lead as Bob Dethman collaborated with Durdan to pass them to a score. The final tally of the contest was made shortly after this as Duke scored a safety to make the count 20-16.

But the thrills were not over. Before the contest was to end, the rain-drenched crowd was yet to be brought time and again to its feet as the Blue Devils vainly tried to cash in on a long pass. With time rapidly running out, Rute tossed pass after pass for more than forty yards, but the Oregon State defense was not to be brushed aside, and the Duke attempts were methodically turned back.

Thus, in a pouring rain did Duke see its hopes for its first Rose Bowl victory fade away. For the second time it found itself on the short end of a score that showed only a four-point margin. On January 2, 1939, Southern California had scored a last-minute touchdown to beat the Blue Devils, 7-3. Three years later the score was 20-16. Although Duke's second attempt to gain the coveted Rose Bowl crown narrowly failed in its effort, the glamor surrounding the 1942 spectacle made it a long to-be-remembered occasion. Those who witnessed it saw football at its best and saw an outstanding mile-stone in the sport history of organized college football.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

THERE was a squad of forty-five players on the roster when the Duke 1941 freshman football team played its five-game schedule. After having shown numerous weaknesses in its first game, the Blue Imps showed remarkable improvements in its next four tilts and reached the peak of perfection in the final contest of the season. The Imps' record showed victories over Tennessee, and Clemson, losses to Wake Forest and the University of North Carolina, and a tie with North Carolina State.

The Blue Imps opened their season at home against Wake Forest, but second and fourth quarter scores gave the visiting Baby Deacons a 14-0 victory over the Imps. Duke threatened in the final minutes of the final period, but time ran out with the Imps holding the ball on the Deacon 12.

The yearlings came from behind to cop a thrilling game with Tennessee, 13-7. The Imps scored twice in the final quarter to take the game. Gordon Carver, whose brilliant punting and all-around defensive play sparkled, was the shining light for the Imps all afternoon.

In the third game of the campaign the Duke yearlings traveled to Raleigh, but the State touchdown in the fourth period gave State College's Techlets a 6-6 tie with the Imps. The Duke score came on a pass from Phil Brewer to Charlie Brown.

High scoring featured the Imps' fourth game against Carolina at Chapel Hill. The Duke yearlings lost to the Tar Babies, 33-13, in a game that saw Jim Borberly and Charlie Brown score touchdowns for Duke.

Paced by the running and passing of Buddy Luper and Jim Borberly, the Duke freshmen downed the Clemson yearlings, 27-0, in Duke Stadium in the final game of the season. Bethune, Sink, Speacht, and Day did outstanding work in the Duke line.

Numerals were awarded to: Bethune, Borberly, Brewer, Brown, Callahan, Carlton, Carver, Cittadino, Day, DeButts, Dixon, Graham, E. Jones, M. Jones, Kern, Luckes, Luper, Price, Rittenhouse, Sink, Speacht, Speas, Stough, Vinning, Young, and Manager Nunn. It is from these men that a future Duke Varsity will be developed; a varsity as victorious as former teams, but victorious or not, a varsity as full of love and fight for the University as any previous team. It is pride in Duke which has made Duke athletes unexcelled.

TRACK

NEW RECORDS WERE BROKEN AND NEW HONORS WERE WON BY DUKE'S TEAM AT PENN RELAYS LAST SPRING AND AT SOUTHERN INDOOR GAMES AND CATHOLIC INVITATIONAL MEET THIS YEAR. KEEN INTERCOLLEGIATE COMPETITION AND THE WIDE TRACK EXPERIENCE OF COACH LEWIS, PLUS THE OUTSTANDING LEADERSHIP OF STIR AND CAPTAIN WERNER BROWN, PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN DUKE'S SUCCESS.

NO one who saw the Duke indoor track team lose in the annual Southern conference meet to a fair Carolina team that had a two-and-a-half-point lead ever expected that this same outfit, running outdoors, would be able to trounce the Tar Heels not only once, but twice. But under the tutelage of Bob Chambers and his assistant, Red Lewis, the cindermen of the 1941 spring season turned in one of the best Duke track records in several years.

Midway in March, the team began drilling for the Florida Relays, to be held the first week-end in April. In that meet, the Devils met Carolina for the first of their two meetings and topped the Tar Heels by six points. Although Ernie Vail, conference champion in two events, the 60-yard dash and broad jump, and one of Duke's ablest performers, was unable to compete, the Dukes managed to cop fifteen medals for their outstanding performances.

Werner Brown and Ed Sargent started the points rolling for Duke when they finished one-two in the 100-yd. dash in a time of 10.1 seconds. Brown was the star of the meet, as he went on to run an excellent 49.4 final quarter in the mile relay.

quarter mile relay which was set in 1939 at 43 seconds. Ed Sargeant, Werner Brown, Jim Spence, and Moff Storer sped across the cinders in 42.5 seconds. Captain Dippy Nania's heave of 142 feet copped a first for the Devils in the discus. Another Duke star, who was to be heard from more later on in the season, was Steve Lach who took third with a distance of 135 feet.

Continuing to pile up points, the Dukes then won a first and third in the javelin throw. Dick Lewis took first honors with his toss of 189 feet, while sophomore Fred Cleaver was bringing home the third place ribbon. When the final event was entered, the records, and the team totals gathered, the Blue Devils were found to have been victorious over not only the rival Tar Heels, but that the charges of Coach Chambers had walked off with first place honors in the meet with a total of 34 points. Carolina was close behind with a total of 28, while Alabama and Mississippi trailed by 20 points for third and fourth.

As soon as the victorious Duke cindermen returned from Jacksonville Beach, Coach Chambers began to put them through light workouts in preparation for the Princeton meet in the stadium on the following Saturday. Princeton boasted one of the strongest outfits in the East and brought several outstanding performers to clash with the Blue Devils. The Dukes went into the final event of the Tiger meet needing only to take a third in it to win the competition, but Ed Sargeant and Moff Storer took first and tied for second respectively to give the Blue and White thinly clad a well-earned 69-57 margin of victory.

Windy Lockwood, the sensational sophomore distance man, turned in a brilliant performance for the Blue Devils, taking individual high scoring honors with 10 points. Windy won the mile and two mile events while his roommate, Hank Profenius, was close behind in the one mile contest. Behind Lockwood in total points scored were Werner Brown and Bud Wilmot who turned in eight points each toward the winning score. Not to be outdone, gridder Steve Lach and Ed Sargeant chalked up the same number of tallies.

Lach grabbed a first in the shot put and finished second in the discus for his eight tallies, while Wilmot took top honors in the high jump and a second in the high hurdles for his share of the winning margin. Competing against the sensational Ed Burroughs who topped Ivy league circles last season, Werner Brown set a terrific pace to take the 440 and just missed a first in the 220. Captain Nania again came through with his first in the discus. At the same time that the Blue Devils were downing the Tiger cindermen, the Duke invitational inter-scholastic meet was run off. The high school events started in the morning and were alternated with the collegiate events in the afternoon. Coach Red Lewis had charge of this meet which attracted schools from New Jersey to Florida.

The Blue Devils went into their dual meet with the Carolina Tar Heels on the following Saturday even favorites to win for the first time since 1937, and the wearers of the Blue and White justified the confidence that their followers had placed in them by turning in a smashing 72-53 win over the Tar Heels at the Hill. Grid star Moffat Storer copped two events, the 100 and 220, to lead the Blue Devils in their individual scoring. "Little Abner" set a sensational pace in the 100 to establish a new dual and Southern conference record for that distance of 9.6 seconds, missing the world's record by only two tenths of a second.

Powerful Steve Lach, began his long string of shot put records that day when he flung the sixteen pounder for a new conference record of 49 feet, 4½ inches. Captain Dippy Nania finished up the day's record smashing when he tossed the discus 151 feet, 10 inches to set a new dual meet record. The Dukes grabbed firsts in nine of the fourteen events, making a clean sweep of the places in the 100, and finishing one-two in the shot-put, high jump, javelin, and 220.

The following week-end the Duke cindermen split up into two squads to participate in meets in widely separated spots. One team of nine men took part in the annual Penn relays at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, while the remainder of the Blue Devils' large troupe took part in the North and South Carolina A.A.U. championships at Chapel Hill. The nine men selected to make the Penn trip piled up 57 of the 72 points scored by Blue Devil cindermen in the Carolina triumph. And Coach Bob Chambers' decision to send the thinly clad to the Philly meet was a wise one for the 440 yard relay quartet scored one of the major track surprises of the season that afternoon. The Devils were supposed to trail such fine teams as Pittsburgh and North Texas State Teachers around the oval, but someone had forgotten to tell the experts about Moff Storer and his three friends.

Taking the baton for the last 110 yards, Storer had been placed a few yards behind the leaders by the excellent running of Werner Brown, Ed Sargeant, and Ernie Vail. Moffat drew even with Olivia Hicks of North Texas Teachers and Carlos Belizaire of Xavier almost on top of the finish line and practically hurled himself the last yard to nip the tape first. The time was 42 seconds. With so many of the key men competing at Philadelphia, the remainder of the Blue Devil cinder squad took third place in the Carolinas A.A.U. meet at Chapel Hill the same afternoon.

After one of the most successful Saturdays of the season on a Northern invasion registered the week before, the Blue Devils again ventured northward—this time to Annapolis, Maryland, to meet Navy—but the results of this meet were not as sweet sounding to the ears of Blue Devil followers. This week the Blue and White lost their first dual meet of the season as the Midshipmen took eleven first places to roll up a total of 79 points against the 47 of the Dukes. The Devils were even favorites to cop honors before rival hostilities were started.

BASKETBALL

THE BASKETBALL TEAM ENJOYED THE MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON IN THE HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL BY WINNING 22 OUT OF 24 CONTESTS, AND THUS THEY CAPTURED THE BIG FIVE, SOUTHERN CONFERENCE, AND MYTHICAL SOUTHERN CHAMPIONSHIPS; A COMBINATION OF SMOOTH WORKING SENIORS AND FAST BREAKING SOPHOMORES COMBINED TO PRODUCE ONE OF THE NATION'S BEST OFFENSIVE AND DEFENSIVE TEAMS.

WITH a nucleus of only three returning lettermen about which to build his 1942 basketball team, Coach Eddie Cameron proved himself a versatile mentor when, in the early days of fall practice, he decided to change the long-accustomed Duke style of play from a slow-break to a fast one. For the first time in many seasons, the Blue Devils of the hardwood had a sophomore group that could break fast and pass with lightning ability. Up from a championship freshman outfit were Bob Gantt, Cedric Loftis, Garland Loftis, and Bubber Seward. These men were destined to be used as secondary troups by Cameron—the group that would enter ball games midway in each period and pile up a large score on a tiring opposition. In his starting line-up Cameron had Captain Hap Spuhler, Sam Rothbaum at forwards, Clyde Allen at center, and Bill McCahan and Bill Stark at guards. The last named was an untried junior, and Allen had not seen any competition since the 1940 campaign. The other three had been members of the 1941 Southern conference championship outfit.

The season got underway for the Dukes as they scored a 37-31 victory over Georgetown College of Kentucky. Allen led the Duke attack with 13 points, scoring most of them in the second half as Duke overcame a one-point intermission deficit. In their second contest, the Blue Devils experienced little difficulty in routing a visiting Rider College quintet, 55-29. Allen once again scored 13 points, being joined at that number by Rothbaum.

Returning to the hardwood wars after vacation, the Dukes lost to Temple in Philadelphia, 57-41, despite a 15-point scoring spree by Cedric Loftis. Back in Durham two days later, they edged out a 37-35 win over a Tennessee team that had just defeated Long Island University in a New Year's Eve battle. Next the Dukes trounced Davidson, 75-40, in their first conference game. Cedric Loftis again led the scoring with 15 points.

The conference race was continued by the Devils as they met Maryland in Durham for their fourth game in seven days. The Cameron eagers won this one, 37-33, with Bobby Gantt appearing in the line-up for the first time. He had been out for the first part of the season due to playing with the Rose Bowl football team.

The Blue Devils chalked up two more Southern conference wins as they upset George Washington 38-37, and staged a second-half comeback to down V.M.I. Next came a 41-31 triumph over Navy scored at Annapolis. At this point the Dukes had a record of nine wins and one loss.

Entering upon a lengthy string of Southern conference games that led up to the annual tournament in Raleigh, the Devils trounced

Wake Forest, 60-39, with McCahan and Rothbaum each scoring 12 points. A week later, in a slow battle with N. C. State, the Dukes came out on top, 40-28. In this game, it was Bubber Seward who led the Devil attack as he scored 13 points. In a return match with Davidson, the Cameronmen walked to an easy conquest, 73-37. The win put them at the top of the Big Five heap, which crown they subsequently won.

The first of two contests with Carolina came on February 7 at Chapel Hill. Leading 24-18 at the half, the Dukes maintained the same pace during the second session, ending on top by a 52-40 count. Then came a tilt with Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va., which the invading Dukes easily took, 63-34. In this contest, Bob Gantt scored 14 points, Cedric Loftis, 13.

Back in Durham five days later, the Devils met Washington and Lee again. This time they won by a 68-38 margin with five Duke men scoring eight or more points. It might be noted at this point that one of the deciding factors in the Blue Devils' favor throughout the season was the ability of all the players to score handily. Rarely did any of them have an "off" night, and the scoring was rather evenly divided.

In their next battle, the Blue Devils came from behind to beat N. C. State, 53-48. The Blue and White forces trailed, 23-19, at half-time, and they were as much as eleven points behind during parts of the second session. The deadly long shot of Garland Loftis, which accounted for ten points, turned the tide in the Blue Devils' favor.

Bringing the season to a close, Duke defeated Wake Forest in a game similar to the State affair, 58-51; lost to George Washington for the only conference defeat of the season, 55-53; routed Maryland, 64-46; outdistanced V.P.I. in the last few minutes to win, 67-50; and edged out a thrilling overtime victory over Carolina, 41-40, it being the first time either school had won both games since 1938.

In the annual conference tourney in Raleigh, Duke swept to wins over Washington and Lee, 59-41, Wake Forest, 54-45, and N. C. State, 45-34. The only hard struggle in these three was in the Wake Forest game, for, with seven minutes left to play, the score was deadlocked at 33-33.

So the Blue Devil Team upheld the reputation of the usual Duke Team by trouncing all opposition in a true sportsmanlike manner. As in all phases of athletics Duke usually produces a team of which the whole school and the state may justifiably be proud. Perhaps these endless lines of victories are due to the type of student who enrolls at Duke; perhaps they are due to the excellent coaching by the members of the coaching staffs; but whatever the cause the name "Duke" has come to mean the best in everything, the highest peak of attainment.

Allen hits a basket for 2 of the 13 points which he scored against Rider College as Duke won, 55-29 in an easily-won game.

VARSAITY CLUB

IN its second year of existence at Duke, the Varsity Club is growing into a powerful and cohesive body. The doors of the Varsity Club were first opened in the late fall of 1940; and in its spacious and beautiful room in the New Gym, every new athlete of this University who has gained recognition and distinction by earning his varsity letter is welcome. For it should be known by all that the Varsity Club is a democratic organization in the very essence of the word; every man who is capable and diligent enough to earn his varsity "D" by representing Duke on a field of sports competition automatically becomes a member of the Varsity Club. Thus today the Varsity Club boasts a sizable organization of over 100 outstanding athletes. The diversity of athletic activities in the club may be clearly typified by the newly elected officers: President Bob McDonough was seen on the gridiron; Vice-President Mac Johnson defended Duke's goal in lacrosse; and Secretary-Treasurer Ray Nasher was a tennis "racketeer."

The Varsity Club, thus, has become a home for all undergraduate lettermen; a home within which there ensues fellowship and truer harmony among all of our "Blue Devil" standard bearers: Moreover, the club believes that it is tending to create more student interest in athletic activities and to establish a finer spirit of good sportsmanship on the Duke Campus. Besides the club members have, we believe, made their pledge good to athletes of Duke and our friendly institutions whom we meet weekly on the field of athletics.

The most enjoyable activity undertaken by the Varsity Club this past fall was its "open houses" in the clubroom for alumni lettermen of the University. Hundreds of old Duke Athletes came back to their Alma Mater and were more than willing to extol their athletic prowess to the present "D" men. Varsity Club men of Duke have always received character molding in the classrooms, clubrooms, and lockerrooms of the University. When they become alumni, may they remember this, and remember their feats on the athletic fields of the University. For it is here that they learned the true sense of sportsmanship.

CHEER LEADERS

EVERYONE yelled and cheered this year with Word Clark and his seasoned squad of men and coeds. The co-operation they received from the student body at football and basketball games was inspiring to the Blue Devils' successful seasons. The enthusiasm displayed at pep meetings and games far surpassed the spirit of previous years. The students of Duke University arose to the occasion magnificently.

The innovation of pep rallies under the guidance of the Trident Club, the revised pep organization composed of representatives from the Woman's, Engineering, and Trinity Colleges, composed the three schools into one large unit with the purpose of inspiring the team to victory.

The pep rally preceding the Wake Forest game was a riot. The long-awaited introduction of coed cheer leaders was finally realized. They were the first representatives of the Women's College on the cheer leading squad in over six years. Coach Wade and the entire football team were introduced amid a colorful background of banners and posters were displayed by the student body. The homecoming pep meeting preceding the Duke vs. Tennessee game was climaxed by the gigantic bonfire and parade into Durham. The Friday night rally before the Colgate game was planned in coordination with the Y.M.C.A.-sponsored "Dad's Day" program. With seven victories and no defeats behind them, the students brought to a close a week of "Beat Carolina" spirit by attending "en mass" the gigantic rally broadcast from Page Auditorium. The State game rally brought to a close a highly successful year of spirit and enthusiasm.

Word Clark with his winning smile and cheerful personality must be congratulated on his direction of the cheering squad and his ability to call for the right cheer at the right time. Word is a senior from Concord, N. C. and a future accountant. Clay Rohrbach from Corning, N. Y. took time from his duties as Senior Class President to be on hand when the squad was in action. Ted Holmes, our musical member from Richfield, N. J. and Steve Rusk, star cut-up from St. Petersburg, Florida, were Junior megaphone wielders. The coeds were Toni Salley, president of Sandals, and Vivian Driver, a CHANTICLEER beauty queen. Sophomores Bus Miller and Moppert rounded out the squad.

The University has long realized the importance of having every student participate in some form of athletic activity.

With a huge program such as the Minor Sports offers, every student has the opportunity to participate in athletics the year around. The vast selection of games offers the average student a chance to develop his body without endangering his scholastic standing.

Athletic contests stimulate the spirit of keen competition and true sportsmanship while at the same time moulding firm muscles and stout hearts. In this day and age when the nation is calling for its youth to develop all of its potentialities, the student body has realized more than at any other time the importance of keeping physically perfect.

The students at Duke take an active interest in every one of these sports. Competition with other colleges, not only from the South, but from all over the country, has produced annual contests that match the most intense rivalries engendered by major contests.

It is the hope of Minor Sports participants and the long dreamed of goal of the University Department of Athletics that this group of athletics will someday become as important in the eyes of the student body as the more self-sustaining sports. The glory is not there, nor the enthusiastic praise. Newspaper space is limited in the telling of the hard-fought contests of the Minor Sports athletic field. But the individual satisfaction reflects the ability of these men, for Duke produces good golf teams and good soccer, swimming, and tennis teams. She also produces outstanding leaders of collegiate lacrosse, cross country, and wrestling teams. All of this composes Duke's Minor Sports—little publicized and only little praised, but nevertheless integral in Duke's athletics.

DUKE GOLFERS STAR EACH YEAR IN SPRING LINK TOURNAMENTS.

ONE of the best-balanced golf teams in quite a few years at Duke enjoyed a very successful season in 1941. The linksters came through with only one defeat in eleven dual matches and captured the Southern Conference title for the seventh year in a row. In the National Intercollegiate Tournament the Dukes copped third place, and in the Southern Intercollegiate Tournament they also took third place.

Traveling to Jacksonville, Florida, for its first dual meet, the linksters trounced the Timuquana Club, 18-9, and then continued the Florida tour by beating Florida in Gainesville and Rollins in Orlando. In their last dual meet of the Florida tour the Duke golfers tasted defeat for the first time at the hands of the Ponte Vedra Club, 16-11.

After returning to their home links, the Dukes won seven straight dual meets. V.P.I. lost to Duke 25-2, and the Louisiana State squad became the next victim for the Duke team, and the University of Pennsylvania met the same fate. In the Duke's most triumphant meet of the season the Fordham squad, on a Southern tour, was decisively trounced by the score of 27-0. The Duke linksters finished out their dual season by consecutive victories over Wake Forest, North Carolina, and Washington and Lee.

With a score of 625 the Duke linksters took third place in the Southern Intercollegiate Tournament at Athens, Georgia. Grover Poole, Bob Brownell, Chuck Alexander, and Jack DeWitt qualified for individual play. Poole withdrew because of measles. Brownell won the title. Duke walked off with the Southern Conference title at Hot Springs, Virginia. The team consisting of Poole, DeWitt, Brownell, and Alexander won for the Dukes. Poole won the individual title with 151, and DeWitt and Brownell were next in line.

Duke took third place in the National Intercollegiate Tourney held at Columbus, Ohio, with a team made up of Brownell, DeWitt, Poole, and Alexander, and all qualified for individual play. Brownell lost in the quarter-finals to the titlist, but the other Duke players were disqualified earlier in the tourney.

TENNIS STARS STRIVE FOR COURT WINS AS COACH FOGLEMAN DIRECTS.

THE 1941 edition of the Duke Tennis Team proved to be one of the finest aggregations of tennis players in the history of tennis at Duke. The team won 15 matches and lost 3. Led this year by Captain Bob Cantine, the team was composed of ace Don Buffington, a top-ranking southern star; the junior smasher, Ray Nasher; the great doubles tandem of Bob Wilson and George Himadi; steady Freddie Bynum and Cantine. With this dependable crew and Coach Harry Fogleman's tutelage, the long arduous schedule of 18 matches commenced.

The team opened its campaign by bowling over a Northern visitor, Amherst. Then came a trampling over of our rivals at Raleigh, the Red Terrors of North Carolina State. Then Michigan's strong team invaded Durham. The Wolverines, big ten champions, fought the Blue Devils every inch of the way, but after the last ball was fired from the racquet string, Duke had emerged victorious 5-4. Then came the first set-back at the hands of Georgia Tech, 5-4, in a hard fought match. Bouncing back from defeat, the team stomped over Loyola of Washington, 9-0. Then Duke whipped the Wake Forest Baptists at Wake Forest 9-0.

Duke traveled over to Chapel Hill to meet the U.N.C. Tar Heels, the nation's outstanding team. Since the rainsoaked courts were unplayable, both teams returned to Duke for the rain had not been so severe. The outcome of the matches netted U.N.C. 5 and Duke 0.

In New York City, the Blue Devils, continuing their record of never having been defeated in the metropolis, defeated three strong rivals, N.Y.U., St. Johns, and Fordham. Moving over to Philadelphia, Duke again proved that it was a poor team in the wet mud by losing to Penn 5-1. Then in College Park, Maryland was scalped 7-2. In Washington for the last match of the trip, the team took over George Washington 7½-1½.

Returning again to the home courts, Duke slaughtered, for the second time in each case, Wake Forest and N. C. State.

TANKERS PRACTICE FOR A.A.U. RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP UNDER COACH PEARSONS.

BOWING to no opponent, Duke's 1942 swimming team won its first seven meets. Coach Jack Person's men, paced by sophomore Gene Schuman and junior Bill Marshall, rolled impressively over Virginia, V.P.I., Rider, N. C. State, Washington and Lee, V.M.I., and William and Mary. One of the highlights of the season came when a relay team composed of Schuman, Marshall, Brooks, and Venable won the National Junior A.A.U. 400 yard relay by inches from Carolina's strong contenders. The Blue Dolphins got off to a fast start as they defeated Virginia 45 to 30 carrying off first place honors in six of the nine events. Bill Marshall, southern conference champion at 100 yards flashed to new pool records in the 50 and 100 yard free style tests. His times were 24.8 and 56 flat. Sharing the limelight with Marshall was Gene Schuman, star of last year's freshman team, who took first places in both the 220 and 440. Duke defeated V.P.I. 52-23 as Schuman and Marshall again starred with ten points each and three new pool records, two for Schuman and one for Marshall. Duke won over Rider, 49-26 sweeping 7 out of 9 firsts and for the third straight meet, Marshall and Schuman tied for individual scoring honors with 10 points each. Facing their strongest early season rivals, the Blue Dolphins barely won over N. C. State 44-31 as the deciding relay was won by the narrow margin of one foot. With State sweeping the sprints, it was Schuman in the 440 and co-captain Bill Brooks in the 220 who carried the burden. Visiting Washington and Lee on the first leg of its annual trip, Duke continued its winning ways as Schuman, Read, Brooks, and Marshall set a new Washington and Lee pool record in the 400 yard free style relay. V.M.I. fell 49-26 in the next meet as the relay team again starred. At home again, Duke defeated William and Mary, 53-22. The crack relay team of Read, Marshall, Brooks, and Schuman set a Southern conference record of 3:50.3 in leading the team to victory. The freshmen showed signs of brilliance.

DUKE UNIVERSITY BOOTERS CAPABLY COACHED IN FOOTBALL SEASON SPORT.

NEW teams provided much of the keen competition for the soccer team this year, and although it is hardly possible to say that a season in which an athletic squad turns in a record of one win and two ties against six losses is a highly successful campaign, the Blue Devil soccer team turned in just such a record for the 1941 season. The caliber of the opposition faced by the charges of Coach Jerry Gerard was the best. Among the outstanding booters met by Duke were the Navy Middies, the Maryland Old Liners, and the West Chester State Teachers.

The Duke Booters opened the season with three contests on foreign turf before returning to the campus to down Davidson, 6-0, for their only victory of the season. In their first three starts the Blue Devils lost to Maryland, High Point, and Navy all by shutout scores.

After turning in their win over the Davidson Wildcats, the Blue Devils played host to the touring West Chester State Teachers, who managed to turn in a thrilling 2-0 victory over Duke's team, and to the High Point Y.M.C.A. before they again hit the road. The High Point contest was one of the best seen all season on the local turf with the final result being a 3-3 deadlock.

In their next game, the Blue Devils continued their fine play and again turned in a 3-3 tie, this time at Davidson. The final two contests of the season for Coach Gerard's men were return matches with the two High Point outfits met earlier in the season.

In the first of the two games played at High Point with the Y.M.C.A., the Blue Devils were not quite as successful as in their earlier meeting and were set back, 5-3. In the seasons' finale played in Durham with High Point College, the Dukes lost by 3-2 margin.

Men who won varsity letters for their work on the 1941 soccer team were: Wilson, D., Captain, Boehm, Eastman, Oschenriter, Fox, Johnston, Ing, Walter, Bond, Richmond, Loftis, C., Wilson, R., Bell, Haviland, Himmelright, McGrane, McMahon, and Manager Heller.

GRAPPLERS IMPROVE TECHNIQUE UNDER NEW DIRECTIONS OF COACH POTTER.

WITH a newcomer, Coach Harvey Potter, at the helm the 1942 wrestling squad went through a six-match schedule with only one victory, but the matmen showed a vast improvement over the 1941 season.

In the first match of the season Coach Potter's boys lost to Davidson, 21-11. The Dukes copped the first three matches of the meet, but then they met disaster by losing five straight. Mac White, Roy Smart, and Wick Richardson won their matches. On January 9 the wrestlers traveled to Blacksburg, Virginia, only to lose to V.P.I., 20-6. Richardson and Weddie Huffman won the only matches for Duke. The matmen returned home but were defeated again by a strong North Carolina outfit, 22-8, in a match that saw Roy Smart and Huffman score for the Dukes.

The most disastrous defeat of the entire campaign for the Duke wrestlers came as a result of the North Carolina State match at Raleigh. State scored a decisive 28-0 victory. The matmen returned home to score their first victory of the season at the expense of the Maryland wrestlers by a close score of 14-12. Smart, Haynes, Huffman, and Grohl chalked up wins for the Duke matmen. Huffman was awarded the victory and five points when his opponent was disqualified for stalling. In the last dual match of the season the matmen traveled to Lexington, Virginia, only to be defeated by the V.M.I. wrestlers, 31-3. Richardson won his match by a decision.

The freshman squad lost four straight matches. North Carolina took Duke, 33-5, and then the yearlings lost consecutive matches to North Carolina State, Petersburg High, and Woodberry Forest.

In the Southern Conference Tournament, held at Greensboro, the Duke matmen finished in fifth place in an eight-team field. The team came through with eleven points. Roy Smart was thrown in the finals, Weddie Huffman was decisioned in the finals, as was Richardson.

DUKE HARRIERS CAPTURE HONORS IN FIRST MINOR SPORT OF CURRENT YEAR.

OPENING its season by running roughshod over an invading North Carolina State aggregation, 15-49, Coach "Red" Lewis' 1941 edition of the Blue Devil harriers ran in a dual meet which sparked the half-time entertainment of the Duke-Tennessee freshman football game. Six of Duke's seven performers crossed the finish line before the Engineers were able to score, with Captain Hank Profenius leading the pack in a time of 18:58 over the three-and-a-half mile course.

The next week-end the Blue Devil hill and dalers traveled to College Park to run in a dual meet with the Old Liners from the University of Maryland only to lose by a narrow margin. Again it was Captain Profenius who paced the Devils.

A week later the Varsity harriers were again to taste defeat, this time at the hands of the University of North Carolina's Southern conference champions. The varsity meet was a nip-and-tuck affair the entire distance of the flat, four-mile Chapel Hill course with the champion Tar Heels emerging the victor, 17-43. At the same time that their varsity big brothers were being set down, the Blue Imps turned in a thrilling 28-30 victory over the Carolina yearlings.

The dual meet season was completed for the Blue Devils with a 21-34 win over the Demon Deacons from Wake Forest. Again it was Captain Profenius who took first honors for the overlanders with junior Windy Lockwood grabbing second place. The freshman made it a perfect day for the Blue and White forces by turning in an 18-34 win over the Baby Deacs. Bud Solfisburg was again first under the tape for the Blue Imps.

In the grand finale of the season, the Southern conference championship tournament held at College Park, Maryland, in the middle of November, Duke broke into cross-country prominence when the junior Harrier sensation, Windy Lockwood, set a course record and walked off with first place honors in the conference. By virtue of Lockwood's brilliant performance, the Blue Devils were able to register an upset to clinch second place in the conference. The defending champions, North Carolina, again captured first place.

DUKE STICK-MEN PREPARE FOR SIXTH CONSECUTIVE SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

FOR the second straight season, Duke's lacrosse team had its ups and downs in the spring of 1941. Thirty-two men responded to Coach Jack Persons' call for candidates last spring, headed by All-American center Ray Brown, who competed in the North-South All Star game the year before.

Profiting from a week's scrimmaging with a visiting Williams team, the stickmen started the season out with three straight victories over Virginia, Westchester, and Washington and Lee. It was the scrimmage sessions that prepared the team for the stick bruises and powerful body-blocks which they withstood during the schedule. Opening with a convincing 10-1 trouncing of Virginia on April 4, the Blue Devils then went on to shut out Westchester 9-0 in a second home stand. Brown tallied three goals against the Pennsylvania team to keep up a fast pace. Tom Kiely came close behind with two for Duke, while Mac Johnson, goalie, did a stand-out job in keeping the visitors scoreless throughout the game.

Playing in their last home game before the Carolina game, and the northern trip, the stickmen found the going tougher against W. and L., coming from behind to win, 7-4. Brown tallied five goals. On April 16, the Tar Heels of North Carolina gave the Blue Devils their first defeat, 10-3. The team then headed north, meeting a powerful Swarthmore team on April 24 and dropping a 9-5 decision. Two days later the Devils again defeated Westchester, this time 11-4 away. Heading back South, the Dukes took their second northern loss from Maryland, conference champs, to 12-5 tune. Winding up the season here, the Blue Devils lost again to Carolina. Among the stand-out lettermen were Ray Brown, Bob McGough, Mack Johnson, Charlie Steel, Lucky McGrane, Tom Kiely, Roy McClure, James Lipscomb, Ray Hillier, and Bill Keller, manager.

Coach Persons was forced to relinquish his coaching of the lacrosse team to Coach Potter this spring due to added responsibilities in other athletics on the Duke University campus; however, his training was invaluable.

Outstanding intramural football nine of Sigma Chi is scored on once as stellar performances bring sixth consecutive championship. Hoeland, Stark, Spuhler, and McCahn comprise the backfield; Gross, DeLong, Maddox, Coyte, Isdell, and McGrane the forward line.

INTRAMURALS

INDICATING A LOVE FOR KEEN COMPETITION AND A FIRM BELIEF IN THE THEORY THAT A CLEAN BODY MAKES FOR A CLEAR MIND, THE STUDENT PARTICIPATION IN INTRAMURALS SPORTS HAS BECOME AN EXTRA-CURRICULAR FAVORITE FOR ALL. AN EXTENSIVE PROGRAM OF TOURNAMENTS AND EXHIBITIONS PROVIDED INTEREST FOR SPORTS MINDED STUDENTS IN ALL FIELDS OF ATHLETIC PARTICIPATION.

IN an effort to encourage total student participation in some form of athletics to round out the college man's life, the intramural office has this year carried on a quite extensive program of sports.

Under the direction of Irv Edelman, intramural chief, facilities and tournaments were set up for touch football, track events, swimming, wrestling, basketball, handball, tennis, and softball. Handsome trophies were presented to the winners and the runners up in each division. That fraternity or independent group that compiles the most intramural points throughout the year receives a huge trophy which may be kept if won in three successive years. A trophy is also given to the individual getting the most points.

Increased activity featured this year's intramural competition as independents participated more freely. Basketball entries reached new highs, increasing 75 per cent over other years. Heller, Z. B. T., dominated tennis again, taking the singles from Friel, 6-2, 6-2, and the doubles with Kanter. Boehm, Sigma Chi, was a double winner in handball.

Sigma Chi again took the football title. The Cyclones won the basketball championship from the Holy Terrors, 38-27, and an All-Intramural team, coached by Irv Edleman beat the Junior Varsity. Beta Theta Pi took two wrestling crowns. At the time of writing, Alpha Tau Omega seems to have an excellent chance of winning the Diamond-Ball championship.

Intramural football star Bill McCahn, scores a touchdown for Sigma Chi as sixth consecutive championship is won by them.

Zeta Beta Tau's Mort Heller continues to uphold the former court records by cinching the Intramural tennis crown.

Sigma Chi's Ken Boehm piles up intramural points as he captures both singles and doubles handball championships during the fall.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

ATHLETICS PLAY AN IMPORTANT PART IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF COLLEGE WOMEN, NOT ONLY IN HELPING THEM PHYSICALLY, BUT BY GIVING THEM GREATER MORAL AND SPIRITUAL COURAGE; THOUGH INTER-SCHOLASTIC COMPETITION IS FORBIDDEN, THERE IS AMPLE OPPORTUNITY FOR THE NECESSARY PARTICIPATION IN PLAY DAYS AND INTRASCHOLASTIC ACTIVITY THROUGH EAST CAMPUS' WELL-ROUNDED PROGRAM.

EVERYONE in sports is the motto of the Women's Athletic Association which has been organized on a different basis this year. Instead of the usual interclass competition, clubs have been formed to encourage the particular interests of the approximate three hundred and fifty members of the association. These clubs seek to create a greater interest in such sports as golf, riding, tennis, outing, fencing, badminton, hockey, softball, and archery.

The association is governed by a board composed of eighteen members, including the presidents of the various clubs, a freshman representative, and the Executive Committee. President Doris Goddard, Vice President Eleanor Tarpley, Secretary Nancy Wrenn, and Treasurer Mary Burchett serve on the Executive Committee. The Physical Education staff cooperates with the board in conducting plans for the activities of the various clubs. Emphasis has been placed upon participation in athletics for the enjoyment of the sport as well as for improvement of skill and technique.

Special attractions of the year have been week-ends spent at Crabtree Creek sponsored by the Outing Club, the annual Hockey Play Day this year at Salem College, Basketball Play Day at the University of North Carolina, the annual horse show sponsored by Pegasus, fencing exhibitions, and a Square Dance given in the fall. In addition to these there have been weekly hikes, horseback rides, tournaments in badminton, ping pong, basketball, tennis, golf, and bowling. Basketball and bowling are the only sports that do not require membership to the W.A.A. There is competition between dormitories for the bowling tournament. For the basketball tournament, there is inter-sorority as well as interdormitory competition. The nurses, faculty, and Delta Phi Rho Alpha enter teams in the interdormitory tournament. The Ark serves as the recreational center on East Campus, and it is here that the bowling tournaments are played off. During Freshman Week of each year, the W.A.A. entertains the new girls at a picnic at the Duke Homestead. At this time the purpose and scope of Women's Athletics are explained. The Riders use horses from Fisher's Riding Academy and make frequent cross country rides. Members of Pegasus, several times during the year, take overnight and week-end rides to Crabtree Creek. There are also many University Trails in the 5,000 acre Duke Forest which provides the perfect atmosphere for horseback riding, hiking, and picnics.

Nereidian Club members line up along the pool before practice. East Campus' best swimmers make up this club which annually produces its crack swimming carnival. Each girl must pass a rigid swimming test before she can be admitted to club membership.

All women are required to pass with a C average three years of gym in nine different sports. This work may be completed any time before graduation. The year is divided into three quarters with varied and numerous sports offered each quarter in accordance with the season.

The Nereidian Club is the honorary swimming organization to which the best campus swimmers belong. Tests for speed, skill, and form in W.A.A. members scan the bulletin board in Memorial Gymnasium for scheduled athletic matches. The association carries on a program of organized sports for class and sorority teams. Every co-ed is encouraged to participate actively in athletics of all kinds.

V. I. Driver and Emmie Deal participate in a coed favorite of the W.A.A.'s varied sports program.

diving and swimming are given to candidates before they are initiated. These swimmers present an annual pageant; this year's pageant was centered around a patriotic motif. Credit should be given to these girls for their hard work and excellent performance.

One of the more popular organizations is the Modern Dance Group which is composed of students advanced in modern dancing techniques. These members not only execute the dances, but also, working together in small committees, create new dance routines and effects, and also design their costumes. The culmination of the year's activities is the performance of modern dances given before the students at large. In addition the group has sponsored the appearance of professional modern dance groups on the East Campus.

The honorary athletic sorority, Delta Phi Rho Alpha, is the goal to be attained for those girls who are outstanding in athletics. It selects to membership women who have shown continued interest in sports and is a means whereby their ability may be recognized.

Thus the WAA attempts to present a well rounded athletic program which will offer sports of interest to every type of girl. This same idea is developed throughout the entire physical educational program. In this manner women's athletics may become of greater interest to the average co-ed. The system of clubs has worked successfully in encouraging more women to participate in a greater variety of sports. These clubs have become centers of social recreation where girls can play for the fun of the game, thereby arriving at one of the new purposes of the organization. This purpose in no way seeks to discourage talented girls from developing perfection in techniques. All girls have an opportunity of proving themselves capable of advancement in the sports in which they are the most interested. Many co-eds become so interested in some of the sports offered that they form individual teams which compete with each other frequently. These teams are often in no way connected with any club or other activity. The various sororities on the campus often compete with each other in many sports. This year, many of the co-eds have shown an increasing interest in archery. Archery has been offered in the physical education department for some time, but it has never been until the present time that the co-eds have shown such a great interest in it. The student interest in badminton has also increased in the last several years, and it is not infrequent that one sees several matches being played off on the Haines Sports Field near the Women's Gymnasium.

Coeds impatiently await the first signs of Spring. Softball enthusiasts flock to the Haines Sport Field to participate in organized games between classes.

ALPHA SIGMA SIGMA

AT the beginning of the year, the CHANTICLEER staff decided to do away with the usual camouflage given to the members of Alpha Sigma Sigma; a camouflage affected by the inclusion of campus Bigwigs on the list. But because of the unfavorable notoriety which would be given these students, the original plan was discarded in favor of the usual tradition. However, we still retain these students who, throughout this and other years, have ostentized so many qualities and actions of a censorable nature that they are unquestionably eligible for mention in an abridged roll. These individuals have attained an end toward which they have devoted all of their energies, and they should furnish horrible examples of Alpha Sigma Sigma qualities which other undergraduates should shun. The CHANTICLEER staff regrets that these ODD students cannot be openly recognized.

KNOW NORTH CAROLINA

WHEREIN THE CHANTICLEER PRESENTS, PICTORIALLY, THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF INDUSTRIAL AND MER-CANTILE PRESENTATIONS SHOWING THE STATUTE AND FRIENDSHIP OF NORTH CARO-LINA TO THE DUKE COMMUNITY.

FEELING that the State in which a great university is located constitutes as vital a part in the lives of the students as the campus itself, the 1942 CHANTICLEER presents this "Know North Carolina" section. The purpose of this section is to show pictorially the educational, industrial, and vocational advantages of "the old North State" which have made this one of the most interesting and progressive states in the Union.

Geographically, topographically, and climatically, North Carolina offers a variety to be found in no other state. Here Nature outdoes herself and with a lavish hand, places before her guests the most choice of her many wonders—rugged and picturesque mountain ranges; fertile and rolling farm lands; mirror-like lakes situated in breath-taking settings; extended and beautiful shore-lines; an amazing variety of wild-life—all combining to make North Carolina the Mecca of vacationers and the haven of sportsmen.

Unlimited inducements for capital investment and industrial development are offered by North Carolina, one of the leading industrial states in the nation. The climate being neither exceedingly cold in winter, nor exceedingly hot in summer, the availability of intelligent and loyal American labor, the product of a good public school system, promixity to many raw materials and a plentiful supply of electricity at reasonable rates, all contribute to attract the manufacturer who seeks new opportunity. The State ranks first in the production of cotton textiles, tobacco, and second in the production of furniture.

Agriculturally, North Carolina likewise takes her place among the leading states, ranking fifth in the value of farm crops, third in gross income, and third in cash income.

We wish to express our appreciation to those firms, who by their faith and coöperation have made this pictorial summarization of a truly great State possible. It is our hope that in years to come other industries and localities will be publicized and that through these pages of the Duke CHANTICLEER the friends of the University will become as well acquainted with the State as a whole as they are with the campus. We therefore dedicate this "Know North Carolina" section of the 1942 CHANTICLEER to the people of the State of North Carolina and to a better understanding of its advantages and opportunities by the students of Duke University, with the thought that those students will be able to tell the story throughout the entire nation.

DURHAM: FRIENDLY CITY OF EDUCATION AND INDUSTRY

MR. K. P. LEWIS
President, of the Erwin Cotton Mills

IN the heart of Industrial North Carolina lies Durham. From a lazy Southern town, formerly known as Durham Junction, Bartlett Durham, a physician from Orange County, and his associates, transformed a rocky piedmont section into a thriving industrial center which today stands as a monument to the New South.

Seeing that Durham was destined to become an important factor in Industrial North Carolina, the far-seeing executives of the factories and mills of North Carolina were quick to take advantage of the natural facilities that Durham has in abundance. The center of the Tobacco Belt, its easy accessibility, and a vigorous progressive policy have made Durham the Home of many nationally famous products.

Outstanding among the industries that have brought prominence to Durham is the Erwin Cotton Mills Company; a name characterizing quality cotton fabrics in every corner of the United States and in export markets. The Erwin Mills are located in Durham, Erwin, and Cooleemee, North Carolina.

Not only has Durham industrial facilities to offer, but also educational advantages that are second to none in North Carolina. The home of Duke University, North Carolina College for Negroes, and various business and professional schools, Durham has become the epitome of its motto: "The friendly city of education and industry."

With its colleges and University, with its produce markets, and with its cotton and tobacco employees, Durham offers a well-balanced economy in a well-balanced State.

the country's greatest hydroelectric power developments, excellent transportation facilities, abundant raw materials, peaceful, skilled and dependable labor, and a geographical location that places manufacturers within six hundred miles of markets representing 55 per cent of the total population of the entire United States.

Today large furniture companies of the Piedmont region own and operate their own forests, replanting as they cut. They carry on all the stages of manufacturing from the time the log reaches their factories until it slides out into the waiting cars as finished furniture. A noteworthy example of furniture companies in North Carolina is the Drexel Furniture Company, located in Drexel, North Carolina in the center of the Piedmont section, long famous for its master craftsmen employed in producing furniture of highest quality.

IT has been said that North Carolina is the most balanced state in the union in its contributions to the health, comfort, and luxury of the people of the United States. The state offers variety at its best, not only in scenery, but in recreational facilities, in agriculture, and in industry. In statistical analyses, North Carolina ranks as one of the important industrial states—leading in the production of cotton textiles and in the manufacture of tobacco, and second in the production of furniture.

The progress of the furniture industry in the South as a whole, and in North Carolina specifically has been due to innumerable economic advantages offered in this region.

From the standpoint of inducements for capital to invest in North Carolina enterprises, the state offers one of

BUILDERS of DREAMS

VISIONS created by the imagination precede the achievement of any really great accomplishment. The ability to weave the threads of imagination into the finished fabric is equally important.

It has been the privilege of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY to cooperate with the Chanticleer staff in creating their vision into material form.

Such cooperation is one of the "visions" which precede the building of a successful business, and is a part of the working policy of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY.

To those Staffs desiring complete cooperation, we offer unexcelled service.

You, too, may be proud of your annual.
